CALIFORNIA LIBRARIES: A SHORT REVIEW AND A LOOK AHEAD.*

By MILTON J. FERGUSON, Librarian, California State Library.

In 1904 the world was invited to meet at St. Louis, to exhibit material and things which would show how far it had traveled on the road toward mechanical and intellectual perfection. The world responded in fair measure and the result was the St. Louis Exposition. Librarians who for some years had insisted upon their having arrived in a professional sense were permitted or requested to exhibit the development which their enthusiasm and energy had brought about. This St. Louis fair came at a time when the traveling library was a popular thing—a sort of panacea which if it could not give library service to the inhabitant in the country, on the farm and in the mountains, offered him a substitute therefor. The State Library, accordingly, on behalf of the State of California and its libraries and librarians prepared an exhibit of three traveling libraries of 50 volumes each which were sent to St. Louis, together with a handbook entitled "Libraries of California." The showing made by California was a good one; in witness of which the State Library is now in possession of a diploma presented by the Exposition authorities.

I take the year 1904 and the little booklet, "Libraries of California" simply as a convenient starting point. One might, it is true, go back to the days of the pioneers or even to the time of Mexican rule in this state to catch the first mention of libraries; and the contrast with our present development would be all the greater. As I propose only a short review, such action on my part would be something of an imposition on your time and patience.

A glance at the map which accompanied the brochure of 1904 tells the whole story. While San Diego County on the south could boast of having four public libraries and one of a miscellaneous character, and Siskiyou on the north had only one library which was listed as miscellaneous, Del Norte, Trinity, Mendocino, Lake, Sierra, Amador, Sutter, Calaveras, Alpine, Mono, Inyo, Merced and Mariposa had no libraries at all. Modoc, Lassen and Glenn were only saved from being entered in the same class by their having collections from the recently inaugurated service known as the traveling libraries. I might go down the entire list and the results, from our point of view, would be disappointing.

You may say that I have picked out all the sparsely settled counties, that even today Sierra, Alpine and Mono are without public libraries. Let us therefore look at one of the institutions, which at the time under consideration, was in the forefront: The San Jose Free Public Library. This Library dates from 1872 and became a public library in 1880; it had in 1901 been marked with Mr Carnegie's favor, had gathered a collection of 15,000 volumes, had an annual income of $5,000 and was under the management of an executive who is today one of our most efficient county librarians. Since 1904 the income of this Library has more than doubled, its volumes likewise; it now has nine branches of which three have reading rooms. While the population of the city was making less than a 50 per cent growth, the library was growing at the rate of more than 100 per cent. That, however, is as it should be; and if the next similar period can not show a development almost as startling, I shall be disappointed.

At the time of the St. Louis fair the State Library had scarcely begun the activities which are now so essential a part of it. The first traveling libraries were sent out in the preceding December—and as an earnest of the good intentions of the borrowing club a $3.00 fee was required for each collection of 50 volumes. Study club libraries were promised; but not yet had the organizers gone into the field to encourage the founding of libraries in towns and cities from one end of the state to the other, nor was any service being given the blind. But the State Library had not been standing still during the five years that its late lamented Chief had already been at its helm. Things had been made ship-shape within; a course was chartered and the anchor, after much toil, was loosened from the bottom where for fifty years it had lain and the voyage was fairly begun.

While the booklet which I have already mentioned several times speaks of the great development which had taken place between the year, 1899, and the date of its publication, the next few years were to see more marvelous things still. The State Library, pursuing the policy which it early adopted under the Gillis regime and which it continues steadfastly to hold to, that namely of displacing nothing of a library character, but of assisting, of supplementing, of complementing, sent its organizers abroad, to encourage the giving of better service, to help the librarian who had enthusiasm but little technical skill and above all to show the inhabitants without books how libraries could be builded. Study clubs throughout the state were given the best assistance possible at long distance and by correspondence. Traveling libraries were sent to every community which lacked book service and which could be induced to enter into the work; the $3.00 fee was soon abolished and the expenses to the readers were entirely done away with, even to the matter of express charges. Blind persons were sought out and an opportunity was given them to learn to read; of recent years we have not been content with voluntary service in the interest of this class of readers and have employed teachers, first in Los Angeles and now in San Francisco, to give the intelligent advice and assistance which only the specialist can give.

And then in 1909, and more particularly with the passage of the revised county free library act of 1911, began the service which literally and expositionally speaking was to put California on the map. Do not misunderstand that statement; to me one class of library activity has no prestige over another. Work in the towns and cities is essential; but reaching out to the people of the country has a primary importance because here libraries had hitherto been non-existent. So the development of our educational facilities, in the interest of the farmer and the miner, the stockman and the horticulturist—and his wife and family—should be received by all of us as a sign of better things. It was all, however, especially gratifying to the State Library authorities who were possessed of a great ambition to make libraries flourish, where hitherto none was found; not I can assure for the sake of the library as an institution, but as a means to an end, as a factor in the development and enlightenment of a people and a state, that there might be a greater degree of intelligence, a higher mark attained in the scale of prosperity, a keener enjoyment of happiness and life.

This county library plan then is not to displace other instruments of book distribution; but is first to cover territory which could not otherwise be touched, and secondly, where local conditions and local economies made it wise to bind together the disjointed forces which through sheer weakness were unable to accomplish their legitimate purposes. In this endeavor perhaps no other single phase of the work is so startling as that which has been accomplished with the public schools. California, following the rule of sister states, early provided a library fund for school districts; for decades school libraries have been in process of formation, but today except in those instances when the county libraries or city libraries have offered their services elementary school libraries are worthy of little consideration. This accusation is no serious reflection on teacher and trustee; book service to them was a matter to which they had not given first consideration nor for which they had had particular training. School libraries consequently, and unlike Topsy, did not grow. They lacked that encouraging supervision, that friendly cooperation which makes for progress, efficiency, growth.

On January 1, 1917, thirty-five county free libraries were operating and within this territory were 2611 elementary and high school districts, of which number 1009 were receiving service from the county free libraries. On July 1, 1917, with the same number of counties and the same number of school districts, 1097 districts had affiliated with the county free libraries. Since July 1st, two new counties, Tuolumne and Sutter, have entered the fold, and during the second half of the year it is confidently expected that the additions of school districts receiving this service will exceed those made during the first half. If you have ever attended an ordinary rural school, if you have ever taught therein, or if you have ever inspected such school with a librarian's critical eye, you can realize the significance in the life of the children and the satisfaction to the teacher of having modern library facilities and attention. If the county library system had no other value or purpose than the service which it gives in this one department—disregarding entirely its work in behalf of the adult population—its reason for existence is amply justified. In the place of the weakness which it found, it has been able to supply strength and tone.

With all this development in the state and county and city libraries there has come a new consciousness of the requirements of the profession. We are no longer content to leave our younger candidates to choose between the old fashioned and slower method of gaining knowledge by the apprentice or understudy plan—despite the fact that it has of course developed some of our strongest workers—and a forced sojourn in some eastern fount of library lore. California has three library schools in which the preliminary training for librarianship may be had, as well as the summer course at the University of California, and perhaps local classes to meet local needs.

This intenser instruction must inevitably create a class spirit of the right sort, a feeling of strength and of harmony in the ranks of our workers, to the greater glory of librarianship and always to the advantage of that personage, so often mentioned in our journals and our discussions, who if not intelligently and zealously served by us our labor has been in vain—I mean of course, the General Public.

We are rubbing elbows with the world these days, we are standing shoulder to shoulder with the forces of progress and life. We have long since cast off the garments of retirement and seclusion so gracefully worn by our old time craft, and have donned a newer and more practical garb of service unrestricted. Consequently we see the librarian in war time not retiring to his cell for meditation, but taking his place as a factor of great psychological significance among the forces in the camp and in the field. I know I am only expressing the feeling and conviction of each one of you when I say personally I am heart and soul in this thing, that I welcome the opportunity which has come to serve our nation and our ideals of democracy and liberty, and that I look to the future of librarianship confident that these trials and labors broaden its possibilities and capabilities in the work of the new world when this storm shall have passed.

In the future there must be more of that cooperation which the humorist picks upon as our cant word, our shibboleth. We must continue to give that moral support which perhaps has frequently been made to serve for active cooperation, and must definitely and actually mark out lines of work to be undertaken by each library for the benefit of all. Let us not continue to build up many weak collections of books and other material, wherein strength and completeness are essential to scholarship and productivity, but parcel out the field more definitely and use our resources, not as separate and competing organizations, but as belonging to one great power having a clear objective and an adequate method.

A practical example of the sort of thing I mean is excellently well illustrated in the case of the Sutro Branch of the State Library. Here the needs of the scholar and the special student are especially considered. Strength has been aimed at, for example, by concentrating the interest of the genealogist and the astronomer by taking care of the collections of societies and organizations which make this work their special field. Here, too, an effort has been made to bring together in full harmony the makers of books and the librarians, through whose hands they largely reach the public, by offering to make a publishers' exhibit of books issued in or about California. The Sutro Branch as a scholar's and specialist's library is largely interested in unusual rather than usual book service; we believe in the follow-up system for persons having needs out of the ordinary to the end that the book and the individual may be brought together, not that we ourselves may have all the books, but that we may find them when occasion requires. And above all and at all times, the Sutro Branch and the State Library will be found working not in the field already well tilled, but in subduing and bringing to a state of productivity those which have remained untouched or have lain fallow overlong.

And certainly much remains to be done: the whole subject of music in this state should be given that intelligent consideration from the library point of view that one of the major arts deserves; the stereopticon slide as an adjunct to public speaking and class-room instruction offers excellent possibilities; the motion picture as an educational feature, and not as a means of collecting dimes and quarters, deserves a better trial than has yet been accorded it. We must at all times be alert to the possibilities of library service in conjunction with governmental and public affairs, with economic and trade requirements, as a means towards the saving of goods and materials as a factor in their readier and more economical production. All these activities are in certain quarters and to a greater or less degree being participated in: what we need is a greater coordination, a fuller cooperation.

On this my first appearance before you as State Librarian, I desire to pay public tribute to the man to whom we all professionally and in a friendly sense, owe so much. He began his work at a time and under circumstances not at all conducive to originality or startling developments. But with a clearness of vision, an unbounded energy and a singleness of purpose he labored ceaselessly; and I think you will agree with me that to him more than to any other individual among us, librarianship and library service in this commonwealth are under perpetual obligation. As Librarian he was always eager to learn, always open to suggestion; as friend he was that established rock whose firmness gave double assurance in stress and storm, unrivaled view point in fair weather and sunshine; as chief, his support and encouragement made for joy in the work, for peace of soul. In my administration of the affairs of the State Library, your institution and the peoples, I do not hope or expect to be another James L. Gillis; but I will be bitterly disappointed if, after ten years of association with him and with you, I cannot bring to this work an enthusiasm, an energy and a knowledge sufficient for the needs of the service day by day; if in cooperation with you we can not go forward, in the light of our own day, steadfastly maintaining the banner of California in the front ranks of the world's library forces.

RESOLUTIONS: JAMES L. GILLIS.

It is altogether natural that the bodies and organizations with which Mr Gillis served or which were in sympathy with his aims, personal and professional, should miss his stimulating presence and his ready counsel. Accordingly when they come together for conference several of such boards have taken thought of the man who is gone but whose spirit and example remain; and have given expression to their sentiments regarding him. The following resolutions and memorials have been received; and, as it is no doubt the desire of those responsible for them that they be printed in News Notes of California Libraries, they are herein set out in full.

BOARD OF STATE LIBRARY TRUSTEES.

James L. Gillis died on July 27, 1917; and in his passing the State Library loses a head whose energy, perseverance and wisdom have placed this institution in the fore rank of the libraries of the world. When he became State Librarian, on April 1, 1899, the department of government given into his charge was a collection of about 100,000 volumes largely unused and for which no plan of general use was thought of; when after eighteen years' service an account is rendered of his stewardship, we realize how intelligently and faithfully he has labored. From an institution whose influence could hardly be said to extend beyond the walls of the capitol building, he made it one whose power for good is not limited by the boundaries of California or even of America, for his example is being followed in the spreading of information and knowledge in foreign lands. He began as the State Librarian of California but became a librarian of the world. In taking the isolated county library idea and developing it to serve the needs of a state or a nation he was the great inventor who used an incidental idea or device in the fabrication of an instrument of high importance and of universal application.

As a man James L. Gillis stood foursquare to the winds of the world. When he gave his hand to a cause, no bond was needed to keep his faith; when he gave his heart to a friend, no journey was too long and no night too dark to prevent his bringing succor in time of need. He was impatient of subterfuge and sham and inefficiency: he sought to better conditions in the world not by destroying evil alone, but by substituting for it a satisfying good. To his work he brought open-mindedness, energy, resourcefulness. He adopted a plan, developed it, held to it until a better one could be devised. His brain never grew old and fixed. Ill health did not dampen his ardor, disappointments did not leave him soured. He did not put off until the morrow the beginning of a worthy service which the day could not see completed. He lived every day in its greatest possibilities. The hour of his death found him going straight forward in his duties.

The Board of State Library Trustees deeply mourns the loss which it as a public body has suffered in the death of James L. Gillis; and it offers its kindest sympathy especially to his family and also to the library staff. The Board feels that the noble life of service and of friendship which James L. Gillis lived is a monument so beautiful that those who loved him may view it with growing pride and ever-increasing satisfaction. He is gone, but what he was will live.

CALIFORNIA LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

Executive Committee.

In the death of James Louis Gillis, state librarian of California for the past eighteen years, the State has lost a valued servant and workers in the library field a respected and efficient leader. Until Mr Gillis assumed charge of the State Library it had served only local needs, and had been of little value to the state at large. Library development, outside of a few of the larger cities, was in a primitive stage. Mr Gillis gathered about him a staff of capable and enthusiastic assistants whose efforts under his wise direction soon brought the State Library to a foremost position among progressive institutions and gave a strong impulse to library activities throughout California.

In 1906 Mr Gillis was elected president of the California Library Association, a position to which he was unanimously reelected seven times until at last the state of his health made inadvisable his longer continuance in the office. To the conduct of the affairs of the Association he applied his characteristic foresight, persistence and energy. It was under his administration and largely through his efforts that much of the present strength and influence of the Association was attained.

Mr Gillis' greatest achievement, however, was the establishment of the county library system. Without going into details, let it suffice to state that the entire system represented pioneer work, and its establishment an undertaking so huge that one less courageous would have shrunk from it appalled. The system once conceived could become operative only after securing necessary legislative enactments and after overcoming the inertia, if not antagonism, inevitable in certain districts. Every obstacle was gradually overcome and the county library system which has been evolved stands as a splendid achievement in constructive work which promises to be second only to the public school system in its enduring influence on public welfare.

As fellow members in the California Library Association, we are glad to make this record of the very great indebtedness owed to Mr Gillis by the library interests of the State, and at the same time to express the high personal esteem in which he was held by his associates. His untimely death is lamented by us all. His memory will long be deeply cherished.

ROBERT REA, Chairman.

Second District.

Resolved. That the Second District, California Library Association, at its first meeting after the sad event desires to place on record its profound sense of the loss the library profession at large no less than the State Library and the libraries of California have sustained in the death of James L. Gillis. The years of his library service have been those that have marked the advance of the library cause of California to a distinguished leadership throughout the country, and we recognize that very much of this advance has been due to the practical wisdom and the entire devotion of Mr Gillis to this work.

Resolved further. That, as Mr Gillis would himself have wished, we pledge ourselves anew to the task he has laid down of making California libraries still more worthy of the great trust that has been confided to them by the public, and we promise to give to Mr Gillis' successor the support that will enable him also to lead us in the road on which the present progress has been won. The State Library must continue to be the center of our work, as in no other way can the library forces of the state be coordinated and made effective to the best results.

Resolved, further. That these resolutions be spread on our minutes, printed in News Notes, and a copy be sent to Mrs Gillis, whose sorrow we sympathetically share.

BOARD OF LIBRARY DIRECTORS OF THE LOS ANGELES PUBLIC LIBRARY.

In the death of Mr James L. Gillis, State Librarian, California has lost one of its loved and honored citizens, and the library service of the State one of its splendid leaders.

For twenty years our beloved State through its officers has approved the tireless energy and successful work of Mr Gillis as he spread through most of its counties the influence of the splendid library collection of which he was the custodian. As the State officers commended him for his splendid work, so, too, the citizens of the State, feeling the influence of his work, have praised him.

The Board of Library Directors of the city of Los Angeles sharing in the sorrow caused by his death wish to share also in praising his splendid success in the library service of the State.

To the Board of Directors of the State Library and to the family of Mr Gillis this Board with deep sympathy offers its simple tribute to the memory of him whose death they mourn.

BOARD OF LIBRARY EXAMINERS.

The death of Mr James L. Gillis, State Librarian, on July 27th brought deep sorrow to a large circle of friends and to all those who had been associated with him in the work which he had so much at heart. It was the great privilege of the members of the Board of County Library Examiners to assist him in an especially important part of his work, which perhaps was nearer to his heart than any other, that of selecting the librarians who should go into the county library field. In this, as in all affairs, he showed himself a man of large vision, with a comprehensive knowledge of the library needs of the people of the state, and with a fine discrimination in choosing those who could most effectively respond to those needs.

But more than all this, we wish to testify to our appreciation of him as a man, to those genial and lovable qualities which endeared him to everybody who knew him, and which make his death seem a personal loss. It is rare indeed to meet a man who combines such wonderful gifts of leadership with such unusual capacity for friendship. We deplore his sudden and untimely passing, and we extend our heartiest sympathy to his family and to the staff of the State Library.

EVERETT R. PERRY.

ROBERT REA.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

Resolved, That this Association express the sense of loss which its members feel in common with California librarians, in the death of Mr James L. Gillis, librarian of the California State Library. We feel that the notable results achieved in perfecting so well the library organization of the state of California are due in large measure to his wise and devoted leadership and we wish thus to acknowledge our indebtedness to him for the standards set and for the inspiration which his accomplishments have given.

LIBRARY WAR SERVICE IN CALIFORNIA.

By MILTON J. FERGUSON, Librarian, California State Library.

Fund Campaign.

While some preliminary communications and notices had passed between Washington and the State Library, the first definite step was taken in the campaign in California upon the arrival of Mr Bert Wells on August 27th. Mr Wells as field director and representative of the Library War Council explained to a small group of interested and influential citizens, the plan which had been outlined in order to make the work as easy as possible; he also made certain recommendations looking towards the inauguration of the drive in this state. California, however, was in the fortunate condition of having machinery in existence through which the work could be done without the necessity of adopting the rather elaborate plan recommended by headquarters. Mr Wells paid visits to several of the larger cities in the state—Oakland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego—and conferred with local librarians and citizens about the campaign. Mr Everett R. Perry very generously volunteered his services in any capacity whatever, and was made director for southern California and Arizona, thereby relieving the divisional director of any worry or work in his field. And the drive, so called, was on.

As was intimated above it seemed a needless duplication of organization to create a new system to carry this movement forward. Consequently no central state committee was appointed. The plan thought most feasible was to consider each county, with few exceptions, a unit, to leave the local organizations to the ingenuity and business judgment of the local city and county librarians, educators and patriotic and willing citizens; and to give advice and encouragement only where needed and called for. Of course circular and personal letters were written in rather large number; and visits were made in several instances where a personal word and consultation promised better results. It was found, however, that as in the case of the county free library, and indeed in practically all other county functions, that each unit is a law unto itself. No plan can therefore be said to be the general rule.

In counties which have a large rural population and in which the county free library system is well developed, the county librarians assisted by their custodians, and citizens enlisted by them for the duration of the campaign, had no trouble in raising their quotas. In counties in which the population is for the most part gathered into cities and towns several more or less separate bodies took charge in their respective territories. And in other counties, largely rural in population and without county free library organizations, the schools led by their county superintendents entered into the work with a will and in many instances greatly exceeded their quotas.

The undertaking was of course a library affair and it is only reasonable to expect the librarians to throw themselves into its prosecution with unabated zeal. It must be recorded, however, and with pleasure, that the schools, pupils, teachers and other officers took a wholesome interest in the work, that they did far more than their proverbial bit. Schools may always be expected to be awake to the larger interests of this nation. No doubt the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Recreational and other campaigns have profited by the activity of the persons in our educational system. But the movement to give book service to the boys who are fighting and preparing to fight democracy's battles had a special appeal for the schools. While no doubt many of the books will be used primarily for recreational purposes, still many others will be truly educational. It meant that the school children were helping to continue the educational opportunities of their big brothers who have been called for a time to do a grim and serious duty.

One other class of persons must be mentioned as especially active in this work; and that is the women's clubs. In some places where it would otherwise have been very difficult to make a creditable showing the club members turned to with a will and gathered in the funds.

In the list which is appended hereto an effort has been made to credit the cities, counties, schools, libraries, and other organizations which raised or took the lead in raising the amounts set opposite thereto. As the funds were frequently however forwarded by a county treasurer without submitting a detailed list of the communities which contributed a portion it is true perhaps that the account given herewith is not as fully itemized as could be wished. Naturally it would be impracticable to attempt here to give a list of individual donors. In this statement the counties are given in alphabetical order, with credit to towns and cities therein whenever such information is available. Note should be made however that of the total southern California, including Imperial, Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Ventura counties raised $23,507.22 and Arizona, which was included in this division, $2,257.85. These two sections were under the direction of Mr Perry.

The quota of each municipal unit was arrived at by taking 2 per cent of the population of 1910 and striking off two places for cents. On this basis California's quota would be $47,550.98; while the amount actually raised amounts to $48,320.55. And even yet money continues to come in from places which have found it impossible to finish up their campaigns during the period scheduled.

Book Campaign.

The fund campaign was scarcely out of the way when the book drive was inaugurated; or to be exact the gathering of books was suspended until the money to buy books could be collected. In December word was received from the Washington headquarters that gift books were to be solicited for use in the camps, in order that the funds for book purchases might be conserved largely for the buying of technical and professional literature. Librarians throughout the state were accordingly circularized on this subject and they immediately set about the work. The plan adopted was for the local librarians to sort the books and to discard all volumes which because of poor print, shaken condition or uninteresting subject matter would be an encumbrance on the shelves, to process the remainder and to forward to the nearest camp—that is either Kearny or Fremont. Recent advice from Washington seems to contemplate a belated but considerably different plan; but for the time being California librarians are requested to act upon original suggestions. Books are badly needed; therefore energetic prosecution of this campaign is urged upon all librarians.

Development.

The article by Mr Quire in this number of News Notes of California Libraries explains in detail the progress which has been made at Camp Kearny. Library development at Camp Fremont, for reasons which have been given full publicity, was, with the primary objects of the cantonment itself, seriously retarded. When it became evident however that the camp was to be finished Washington was persistently urged to authorize the construction of the library building. It is true that Miss Patterson, Miss Bailey and other librarians in the vicinity of the Camp had furnished many books to the regulars who were first stationed there, but full library service was impossible through such voluntary effort. Finally word came that the contract could be let, and in the last days of 1917 the workmen laid the foundation of a 40 x 93-foot structure.

George W. Clark of Stanford University consented to act as library supervisor during the period of construction. But when the frame was up and the roof on, W. E. Henry of the State University of Washington came south to take up his duties as library organizer. In the middle of January, Mr Henry and the writer of this statement were personally conducted by Mr Clark to the most interesting spot—from a librarian's point of view—on the grounds. We tried to visualize the structure in its completed form, and to imagine the boys in khaki thronging its reading room or coming from its door with volumes for study or recreation. Fortunately camp buildings grow in a very few weeks and before these notes are in print Mr Henry and his staff will be giving library service to the soldiers.

Before our Washington friend, whose stay I am sorry to say will be limited to two months, returns to the enviable dampness of Seattle I hope to be able to induce him to write of the joys and sorrows of his California campaign. Personal narratives by home coming veterans are quite the thing and librarianship should in time have its "over the top."

There are several smaller posts in California which need library attention and to which some books have been sent. The boys at Goat Island can use a certain amount of recreational reading but for the most part desire technical literature which will help them in their studies and their effort to advance themselves professionally. The same condition is found at Mare Island where larger numbers of men are engaged in shipbuilding and other nautical works. Headquarters at Washington have begun to send out some of the special books needed but the number received so far has had little appreciable effect upon the situation. Doubtless however better progress will soon be made. The State Library has been able to supply several hundred standard and recreational volumes, not only to Mare Island and Camp Fremont, but also to one of the smaller vessels of the navy which was about to put to sea without any reading matter whatever.

Present Needs.

The foregoing is largely about the past. What of the future? Librarians have been accustomed to growth of a painstaking slowness; their collections have been brought together as the labors of years; their buildings in time outgrown and inadequate have been replaced only after much effort and long lapse of time. War conditions do not brook delay; deeds must not be put over until the morrow. Herein librarianship may well take a leaf from the book of experience of the Y. M. C. A. This organization is on the ground when the men arrive; it meets their needs at once; it looks out for the comfort of the first comers and is still on the job when the latest recruit comes in. Consequently when the Y. M. C. A. purse becomes empty thousands are ready to replenish it. The boys have been cared for, they have told the folks at home. The answer is easy.

Librarians in America for the first time have been called for professional war service. An appeal has been made for $1,000,000 and the people have responded with almost $1,750,000. It is up to the profession to show that it can, in the language of the street, deliver the goods. That it can do so I have no doubt; but if all of us are willing to overlook the pre-war rule which may have been important in its time but is now as nothing in the face of world wide conflict; if we answer each call to duty with that promptness so necessary on the part of the man in the trenches whose life depends upon instant obedience; if we do our share always and then look about for ways to heap up the measure, the verdict of the men we are trying to serve today, will be unanimous and the record in history tomorrow will make us proud.

Here are a few things to do. (1) When there is a soldier or a small body of soldiers in your neighborhood lend them books without formality. Uncle Sam's uniform is sufficient guarantee. (2) If your friends who have money can be enlisted in our work accept their donations in amounts from a dollar up. That million dollar fund will not last forever. (3) Be busy at the work of book collecting all the time. Book giving is a habit which may be made to become chronic with some of our citizens who can not shoulder a rifle or become a Red Cross nurse. (4) Lend your services to the preparation of books for camp use. If you are near a camp arrange with the librarian to do your turn each week. Unfortunately as yet women are not permitted to be on duty in the reading room, but they can catalog, etc., behind the scenes. I truly hope that the War Department may soon see fit to dispense with such a discriminatory rule. (5) If you are a man, are not subject to the draft and can possibly arrange your own affairs volunteer for duty at a camp library. If you can not serve without pay the American Library Association War Service can perhaps pay you a living wage. At least make your conditions and willingness to serve known. Let us work at this library business as if it were the one contribution we can make towards winning the war. It will help win the war.

LIBRARY WAR SERVICE AT CAMP KEARNY.

By JOSEPH H. QUIRE, Camp Librarian.

Camp Library Service is a legitimate war undertaking, desired and used by officers and men, and warranting the expenditure of money contributed by a generous American people and the expenditure of time specially contributed by libraries and librarians.

This, at least, is the deduction from the six months' existence of the Camp Kearny Library as a loose collection of books scattered strategically over several square miles of tented area and its one month existence as an entity with walls, a roof and more or less of the other conveniences associated with the word "library." Just enough news has filtered down this way to give assurance that in the stories of the other thirty-four American Library Association camp libraries this conclusion will have plenty of supporting evidence.

Camp Kearny's story must still be taken pretty much on faith. Statistics sprout slowly when little attention is given to their cultivation. The time demands made by the construction of the new building forestalled any great regard for this detail. Not until the week ending January 27 has it therefore been possible to gather in a complete crop of circulation figures, for instance, for the whole camp.

The Loading Platform—One day's shipment of gift magazines—35 sacks.

Figures and curves are not the standards for judging this form of library service. In one sense, they tell only a part of the story. With what accuracy can circulation figures be regarded when a man reports that each time he takes out a book, it is given a thorough reading by the seven other men in his tent before it returns to the shelves? How much of the labor and expense expended by a library in preparing a shipment of gift books is reflected in a formal accession entry?

Indeed, figures do not tell any story whatever. If not a single book circulated in a day, such a day would have been worth while if a private came to the desk with the remark, as he does come oftener than you would think: "By George, here's a book on gas engines I've been wanting to read for the past three years and now its the very thing to study up on for an ex. to transfer to the aviation service."

Or if a corporal, as he turns in a copy of "Macbeth," asks: "What else have you got in of Shakespeare? This is the first time I've had the chance to enjoy what he has written."

Or if a captain comments: "This is the greatest place in the camp."

Or if Major General Frederick S. Strong, Commanding Officer of the Fortieth Division, inquires: "Where's that dictionary? I want to look up a word."

Such incidents can not be checked and tallied. They must be taken on faith or substantiated by a visit to the camp. Nevertheless, let the figures be marshalled. On January 28, the total number of volumes in the camp library and its branches was 12,355. These volumes had reached the camp in the following manner:

Prepared gift shipments collected by southern California libraries	7,317
Gifts directly to camp	2,010
Loaned from San Diego County Free Library	1,047
Purchased from A. L. A. war service fund	1,797
U. S. War Department documents	184
Total	12,355

Of this number 1289 were awaiting preparation for circulation. The total number of books, therefore, in circulation was 11,066, divided into 7155 fiction and 3911 non-fiction.

These books were distributed over the camp in the following manner:

	Total	Fiction	Nonfiction

Circulation figures are not available in as complete form. The week ending January 27 was the first for which complete figures for the entire camp are available. The total for the week was 4483, distributed as follows: central, 1807; branches, 2676.

(Note: This picture and the one on page 25 were taken the same evening. Together they give some idea of the number of soldiers served by the camp library.)

To date a separate circulation record for fiction and nonfiction has been kept at the central building only. For the week ending on the dates given, the circulation has been as follows:

	Total	Fiction	Nonfiction
December 30 -----	152
January 6 -----	626	493	133
January 13 -----	808	521	287
January 20 -----	1,259	824	435
January 27 -----	1,807	1,253	554

These figures at best are incomplete. Their chief use at present is to show general needs and tendencies.

Attendance records at the central building were begun on January 24. These follow:

January 24 -----	348
January 25 -----	489
January 26 -----	829
January 27 -----	1,574

The seating capacity of the reading room is 150. From 6 to 8.30 each evening even standing room is at a premium and on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, the same condition exists. The library is open from 8 a.m. to 9.45 p.m. There are always from ten to fifteen men awaiting the opening.

Thirty-five daily newspapers from the states represented by men in the camp are being received. These are supplied through the courtesy of the management. The daily edition of the New York Times and the Courier des Etats-Unis are supplied by the A. L. A. Thirty-five magazines are received regularly, twenty-nine by A. L. A. subscription and six by gift.

These figures represent but a cross section in the development of war library service at Camp Kearny. Its beginnings go back into the summer of 1917 when the San Diego Public Library and the San Diego County Free Library cooperated with the camp Y. M. C. A. in placing books on the grounds. These were the beginnings of the present branches of the A. L. A. Library. Additions were made to these collections with gift books sent to the San Diego, Los Angeles, Riverside, Pasadena and other southern California libraries and forwarded for use. When the camp librarian arrived on November 22, there were 4936 volumes or approximately 1000 to each of the five Y. M. C. A. buildings.

The response which the libraries and librarians of the territory from which the camp would logically draw for its reading needs made in these pioneer days can without question be counted as the most important single factor in the rapid organization and development of the A. L. A. war service program at Camp Kearny. The fact that it was made at all gave the men of the camp books far in advance of the arrival of an A. L. A. representative. The fact that it was made when it was, permitted the camp librarian to devote all thought that the re-erection of a camp library building, secure in the thought that the resources at hand would care temporarily for the needs of the present. Names aplenty of people known and unknown who participated in this work deserve to be mentioned; it would be an injustice not to say that the energetic and resourceful labors at this time of Miss Althea H. Warren, librarian of the San Diego Public Library, have left their lasting impress on the work.

The outstanding task when the camp librarian arrived in San Diego on November 22 was therefore to secure as rapidly as possible a library building from which the books in camp could be administered and where the men of the camp would find comfortable reading room accommodations. From this point I take the privilege of lapsing into personal narrative.

First of all, my entry into the work with the solemnity almost of prayer. When Miss Warren, Miss Katharine Post Ferris, acting librarian of the San Diego County Free Library, Mr I. N. Lawson Jr., the acting camp librarian and newly-appointed assistant, and I gathered in Miss Warren's office for the first meeting, there was on the office table a gift book containing a calendar of inspirational readings for each day of the year. It was natural for someone to turn to the selection for that date, and lo! this was found, from Matthew 7:7. "Ask and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

Two months have now passed since that time, and I desire to testify that texts do have their mission.

Two disappointments and one surprise awaited at this meeting. One disappointment was that construction work on the building was being held in check pending the settlement of the question of making certain fundamental changes in the plans. The other was the news that the Ford truck which I presumed was in use was somewhere out in the Mississippi Valley elbowing its way west through the freight congestion.

The surprise was Mr Lawson. "Aggressive young lawyer" he had been described in the official dispatches. Instead he was a recent engineering graduate, familiar with a Ford and its ailments and with a leaning to devising short cuts in system and making mathematical calculations valuable in the emergencies of the time. He had a car available for library service pending the arrival of the Ford and also possessed a long acquaintance with San Diego and vicinity.

The first visit to the theatre of operations was made on the following day. Camp Kearny is located about fifteen miles due north of San Diego and about ten miles inland from the ocean. It is in the center of a broad, red-soiled plateau on ground rescued for use from the greasewood which thrives in the vicinity. This background gives a monotonous perfection to the khaki-brown color scheme of tents and uniforms.

The central feature of the camp is the parade ground, running east and west, and two miles in length. On either side stretch the company tents and mess houses, in which the 25,000 men of the camp live. At the northwest corner of this rectangle and about half a mile distant is the base hospital. Due west about half a mile is the remount station.

The camp is divided in the middle by Center street. On or near Center street, at the northern rim of the camp, the community buildings are located. The library building is on Center street, between the division post exchange, or camp department store, and the post office. Its neighbors across the street are the Y. W. C. A. hostess house, the church federation building and a pool hall.

On this first day, however, the post office was the only completed building at hand. The hostess house was almost finished. The site of the library and other buildings was covered with what looked like permanently-rooted bunk houses.

The first need was for a place to work, sleep and eat. The first two were made available immediately by the Y. M. C. A. Dr John R. Voris, acting general camp secretary and since made general camp secretary, invited me to move my desk into the assembly room of the Y. M. C. A. administration building, located off Center street, but a step from the building site, and my cot into the moving picture booth of Y. M. C. A. building No. 3, which was the only available space nearby. This hospitality was not only greatly appreciated at the time but is increasingly appreciated for the head start which it was possible to make. The eating question was cared for at a handy quartermaster company's mess.

The first conference with the supervising contractor had its original features. It took place in the garret of the Y. W. C. A. hostess house on the afternoon of the formal opening of that building. Directly beneath us was a regimental band presenting such selections as "Poet and Peasant," and with all instruments pointed our way. Between band numbers, vocal solos were presented inside. Up in the garret two carpenters were pounding away on storage shelves—pounding except when one of the ladies of the reception committee would put her head through the hatchway and suggest that it might be well if at least the high notes of the singer could be heard. It was a good introduction to the fascinating commotion of camp life. Here, partly by signs, and sometimes by the spoken word, all questions for which no certain answers were found in the plans and specifications were settled.

Actual construction of the building began on December 1. Twenty working days later, on Christmas night, at 6.30 o'clock, to be exact, the building was opened and service begun. There were no doors, heat, water or sewer, but the lack of these details was immaterial to the utter convenience and satisfaction of finally being settled. On December 31, twenty-five days from the beginning of work, the contractor turned over the building. Only the rare good fortune that the library building was the final job of the contractors who built the camp and were therefore efficiently organized for rapid work was responsible for this accomplishment.

The building is 40 by 93, with a porch 10 feet wide extending across the front. Open shelving with a capacity of over 9000 volumes extends down either side of the reading room. In the center of the room is the charging desk and in back of this a space set apart for a workroom. Leading from the workroom is a small room intended as a packing room but converted into a magazine sorting room. A wide sliding door in this room opens out onto the loading platform.

At the south end of the building a section has been set aside for living quarters. This includes two bed rooms, a shower room, ladies dressing room and a connecting hallway, in which storage shelves and supply cupboards have been built.

The interior is finished in a golden oak stain tempered with a dash of green. The ceiling is of white pine oiled in natural finish and a strip of buff-tinted plaster board extends between the ceiling and the wainscotting. The exterior is a battleship grey, with frames in a bronze green and sashes in white.

In the period of building construction were the "great days" of the work. Life was nothing but a series of complex uncertainties. In the natural collision of interests which was to be expected in the temporary office quarters, many amusing distractions would take place. In the midst of filling out a long inventory urgently wanted by headquarters, a quartet would appear to rehearse or the Swedish men enter for services. Telegrams went astray—the wire from Washington transmitting money for the Ford wandered about camp for four days; phone messages and important letters never received or delivered weeks late. Even the quiet of the moving-picture booth bed chamber, made comfortable on movie nights by the genial warmth of the machine, was not immune. Without warning, carpenters appeared early one morning to build a partition. One had climbed astride the bunk and was boring a hole through the roof before the descending sawdust caressed my face to announce that day, and lots more, was breaking.

During this period little library activity was possible. However a branch was opened on December 13 in the newly completed Knights of Columbus building and another on December 17 in the recreation room for the enlisted men of the base hospital company. In both cases, typewriter and other equipment was moved bodily to the branch for the necessary work. Additions were also made to the established Y. M. C. A. branches which heretofore had had only small allotments.

All during this trying period of operating with no permanent base very cordial assistance was given by the military authorities. The camp quartermaster in particular gave greatly needed aid in moving furniture and equipment from San Diego, moving books and otherwise assisting in work now handled by the Ford truck.

No formal opening attended the induction of the building to use. The doors—borrowed from a nearby bunk-house—were simply opened. The Christmas spirit was observed, however. From the center of the charging desk rose a fifteen-foot tree, decorated with the balls and spangles of custom and illuminated with vari-colored electric lights. At the windows were red-ribboned wreaths. The staff and the two hundred men who came in were bundled in overcoats, but the scene warmed the spirit at least. On the shelves were a few hundred gift books. In the newspaper section about thirty newspapers were ready for business and the magazine shelves were camouflaged with three dollars worth of magazines rushed out from a San Diego newstand.

With the opening of the building, work began in earnest. Over a thousand purchased books arrived from the East and several hundred gift books arrived unprepared. The staff of two was swamped and a call for help sent to San Diego. The San Diego Public Library and the San Diego County Free Library willingly responded and four assistants made the thirty-mile round trip to the camp. Six times did the call go out and each time the response was the same. There should therefore be included in the camp library staff the following members who filled the breach: Miss Marie E. Maloney, Miss Irma Brink, Miss Madeline Marie Scanlan, Miss E. Louise Peck, Miss Helen Dysart, Miss Lena H. Hunzicker, Miss Esther Wrottenberg, Miss Elizabeth Bailey, Mrs Emma G. Sprouse, Miss A. Clover Hall, and Miss Nellie Gish of the San Diego Public; Miss Grace Taber and Miss Florence Webb, who served for three days, of the San Diego County Free Library.

Simplicity governs the system used in the library. The cataloging and charging systems suggested by the A. L. A. War Service Committee have been followed. One catalog card, which also serves as a shelf-list and routing card, and one charging card are typed for each book. The catalog card is so ruled that a record of branch shipments may be entered. The charging card has spaces ruled for stamping the date due and inserting the name, company and regiment of the borrower.

No borrower's cards or pockets are kept at the main building. A man writes his name, company and regiment on the charging card of the book he draws. The charging cards are filed alphabetically by author under date due. One week is allowed on all books. The Browne system was placed in use in the Y. M. C. A. branches. This is still retained in some, but the majority of the branches are using the same system as prevails at the central building.

Catalog cards for fiction are filed by author and for nonfiction by class and then by author. Library of Congress cards have been supplied by the A. L. A. for all purchased books. These will be used for subject and title entries when facilities are available for this work.

A book pocket is placed on the inside of the back cover of the book. This is used as a dating slip.

No accession record is kept other than the number of books received in each shipment of books and the name of the publisher or library sending the shipment. The aid which libraries preparing books for the camp are giving, in addition to care in selection is (1) to write on the inside of the back cover or type on the inside flap of the book pocket the author and title, (2) type one catalog card on plain manila stock, using author and title in simplest form, (3) type a charging card, (4) paste a plain book pocket on the inside of the back cover and insert the catalog and charging cards, where they will be handy for classification and shelf-listing. All nonfiction is classified at the library to secure uniformity. Except in only a few instances, only a three number classification is used.

One perplexing problem which will not down is the gift magazine to which a penny stamp has been placed in response to the printed suggestion of the Postmaster-General. Since the opening of the library, 154 sacks of the matter, or approximately 15,400 magazines, have been received from the postoffice.

Much of this material is not usable. For instance, each week approximately 6000 current Saturday Evening Posts pass into camp to regular subscribers. This reduces greatly the demand for Posts of 1912 and 1913, of which a bountiful supply keep coming in. A great quantity of religious material is received which, in order to play no favorites, cannot be used. And again there is that great group of magazines, represented by "Needlecraft," Ladies World" and "Priscilla" which find no appreciative group of readers except at the telephone exchange and nurses' quarters. By agreement between the postoffice and library, all gift magazines are delivered to the library for sorting. The sorted magazines are sacked and labelled for each of the branches and delivered back to the postoffice, where mail orderlies see them to their destination. Libraries are therefore asked to go cautiously in sending gift magazines. They can perform a large service in seeing that more of the right kind, not received from the postoffice, arrive.

There is always a field for the following: Popular Mechanics, Popular Science, Illustrated World, Scientific American and Scientific American Supplement; all technical magazines, such as Engineering News-Record, Electrical World, Power, American Machinist; automobile magazines, such as Motor, the Automobile; New York Times Mid-Week Pictorial and similar publications, Life, Judge and Puck; picture magazines, such as Country Life in America, Travel, National Geographic, House Beautiful, Architectural Record.

On the negative side, it is urged that no library shipments of the Saturday Evening Post, Colliers or the Literary Digest be sent.

"What kind of books do the men like to read?" ask the visitors. There is no way of knowing definitely but there are indications.

They assuredly like the war books. Thirty-three copies of Empey's "Over the top" are listed but every copy is in constant use. Other personal narratives of the war are nearly as popular. The Camp Kearny men want western stories. This is probably true of the other camps, but here so many men have lived in the country in which the action of these stories takes place that their interest is two-fold. Therefore, the heavy runs on Zane Grey, Rex Beach, Jack London, Stewart Edward White, Harold Bell Wright and Ralph Connor. In the 800's, Shakespeare and Robert W. Service share honors as far as popularity goes. Single play editions of Shakespeare are very much in demand. Just why Kipling stays so much in the background I am unable to understand. Technical books, especially those on aeroplanes, gas engines, photography, telephones and telegraph, have a large circulation. Four bound volumes of "Life" will probably be the first books in the library to require rebinding.

Need and space exist for about 8000 more books of the general type indicated above. Part of this number will be received from the New York distributing station of the A.L.A. War Service Committee. The greater number, however, must come by gift and principally at the solicitation of libraries.

Although it is unwise to look the gift horse in the mouth, it would seem that the smaller libraries should have their inning on the second drive. The larger libraries of the south have carried the burden of placing books in the camp and making required additions. Queries already received from several of the smaller libraries indicate that books are available in the smaller centers. These small quotas are now wanted.

The range of usable material is too wide to permit of positive suggestions. There are three negative suggestions, intended not so much for librarians as for those who may have books to give. Here is the negative list:

1. No oversize collected works of fiction; works of Charles Reade or Bulwer Lytton, for instance. Such editions are not only usually unattractive, but also inconvenient for the men to use. Most books are carried from the library in overcoat pockets or shirt-fronts. This does not apply, of course, to reference or technical books.

2. No religious or semi-religious books. This is indefinite and subject to misinterpretation. One reason for the suggestion is that the various religious organizations are attending to placing books in the camp. Another is that there is a large class of literature such as was received recently when a whole Sunday-school library arrived at the loading platform for which there is no possible need or use.

3. No dilapidated, poorly printed, or poorly bound books of any kind. There is need for books, but there is no more reason for providing the men with shoddy reading material than giving them shoddy clothing. This is a point not grasped by a large group of donors. It is one to be continually and firmly made. The camp libraries are not a charity. They are a recognized element in the training and teaching of the men of the service, and deserve a support commensurate with the task which has been set for them.

The work at hand is to bring the catalog into a more ordered condition and to make more flexible the movement of books to the branches. These are routine matters which have been postponed until more pressing problems of quarters and equipment were settled. Then it will be felt that the work has been placed in order, but not finished.

No matter what the duration of the war, of the life of the training camps or the resources at the command of the libraries, it will at least be a brave camp librarian who will say that he has exhausted the opportunities for service and that his work is at an end.

AN EARLY CALIFORNIA PHOTOGRAPHER: C. E. WATKINS.

BY CHARLES B. TURRILL.

NOTE.—The following account of the life and work of C. E. Watkins was written to accompany a catalog of the Watkins' stereoscopic views. It is printed here as it is believed that the work of Mr Watkins was a valuable one for California, and also that it is well to draw the attention of California libraries to the worth of these stereoscopic views, some of which every library may have. The State Library would be glad to complete its set and would like to hear from libraries having any of the Watkins or Hart stereoscopic views, which they would be willing to donate to, or deposit or exchange with the State Library.

The accompanying catalog* of Watkins' stereoptic views is an accurate transcript made by me several years ago from Mr Watkins' negative register. It is a complete copy of what is designated as "Watkins' New Series." Any other Watkins' stereos, excepting the Hart stereos, to be referred to later, belonged to the earlier work of Watkins. Those bearing smaller numbers are extremely rare.

The series of Watkins' stereoptic views in the State Library collection numbered, for instance, 9, 41, 73, 330, etc., are a portion of what Watkins designated as the "Hart negatives." This series, numbering somewhat more than three hundred, was made by A. A. Hart, a Sacramento photographer, during the period of the construction of the Central Pacific Railroad. Watkins purchased these negatives many years ago, and incorporated them in his series, printing for sale a portion of them. I have a complete catalog of these Hart negatives which I also copied from Watkins' record, and which is annexed to this copy as a part thereof. It is questionable whether there are prints in existence of all these negatives. My collection lacks perhaps a dozen or so, and it is the largest collection of the Hart views in existence.

The reason for calling these Watkins' views "New Series" is that at one time advantage was taken of the gentleman's absence from the city and through the dishonorable treatment of a man who had advanced money to him a sale was made of his entire property at his studio, 26 Montgomery street. At that sale the negatives and photographic equipment were purchased in the interest of I. W. Taber. Prior to that time Mr Taber had been known as a portrait photographer, though in those days the lines were not closely drawn between portrait and view men. Watkins' earlier work formed the basis and the greater part of the well known Taber collection of scenic negatives. After losing his property Watkins started his photographic life anew, and with the knowledge of what were the most salable subjects retook these on the various sizes of negatives which he used, giving to the new work the title of "Watkins' New Series."

Carleton E. Watkins was born in the State of New York and came to California as a young man. He was working as a clerk in a store on Montgomery street in 1854 when the Montgomery block was erected. He has told me of watching that construction, and it is an interesting fact to note his statement that the lot on which the Montgomery Block was erected was driven almost solid with piles. As the old gentleman expressed it, it was a "forest of piles." Being on made ground this construction is undoubtedly the great reason for the safety of that building which has withstood every earthquake shock that San Francisco has experienced since its erection.

It was about this time that Watkins began his life career. He became acquainted with R. H. Vance, who had a gallery in San Jose, as well as in San Francisco. It chanced that the operator in the San Jose gallery suddenly quit his job and Vance asked the young man Watkins to go down and take charge of the gallery until he got a new man. Those were the days of the daguerreotype. Watkins went by stage to San Jose, and the gallery was turned over to his care. He knew absolutely nothing in regard to photographic processes, and was simply for the first few days a care-taker of the place. In that town the great amount of business done in a photograph gallery—or as it was then called, a daguerreotype gallery—was on Sunday. On Friday or Saturday Vance visited San Jose to see how the young man was getting along. He had not gotten a new operator, so he showed the young man how to coat the daguerreotype plate and how to make an exposure for a portrait. This instruction occupied only a few minutes, and naturally did not go into the minutiae of the profession. Vance told Watkins that when the visitors came in on Sunday he could make a bluff at making the exposures and take their money and that when they came back the following week he would have an operator there to make over anything that had to be made over—it being the idea of both that the green young man would not succeed in his daguerreotype operations. As good fortune would have it, he did succeed, however, and no new operator was ever sent from San Francisco to take the place his predecessor had resigned. He remained for a short period operating and entirely conducting the Vance gallery in San Jose. While I am not at the present time absolutely certain about the two daguerreotypes of Mission Santa Clara, (one of which exists, and the other of which we have a Watkins photographic copy) both were probably made by Watkins during this San Jose career. In the Vance gallery in San Jose he found a number of landscape daguerreotypes. A few of these he copied. One is that of a daguerreotype (destroyed in the 1906 fire) of Sutter's Mill at Coloma, with Marshall standing in the foreground. While I do not recall that Watkins ever told me that this was a Vance daguerreotype. I have always considered that it was. That daguerreotype was made about 1850. Watkins had two other copies of the mining settlement at Mormon Island, which belonged to this same series of daguerreotypes. The daguerreotype of Mission San Jose now in the Golden Gate Park Memorial Museum was another of this old series. Watkins had made a photographic copy of this, probably at least thirty years ago. As a matter of verification, some three years ago, I also photographed the daguerreotype in the Golden Gate Park Museum. The two photographs show distinctly that they were taken from but one daguerreotype.

In 1856-7 Watkins visited New Idrea and the Almaden quicksilver mines. This was during the time of the celebrated litigation and his photographs were of value, undoubtedly, as evidence, and he received quite an incentive in his photographic career from the sale of pictures.

This may safely be called the beginning of his work as a photographer in contradistinction to a daguerreotypist.

It may be mentioned here that his experience in lighting, posing, etc., gained in the gallery in San Jose led to his doing a vast amount of portrait work. The specimens of this portion of Watkins' career are extremely rare. The earlier ones will be found almost entirely in the old fashioned card-de-viste. While on this point, I would state that one of the noted pieces of Watkins' portrait work was the celebrated portrait group showing William C. Ralston and the employees of the Bank of California, made in 1874. This large picture is remarkable for its system of construction. Each figure in the group was carefully posed (with the pre-arranged plan of its being placed in a large picture) as a portrait study in Watkins' studio, at 26 Montgomery street. Prints of these portraits were made and carefully trimmed around the margins and then mounted on a large sheet of Wathman drawing paper. Then Burgess, the writing and drawing teacher, carefully drew, in india ink the entire background for these figures, representing a room in the Bank. This large picture was afterward photographically copied by Watkins; but these copies are now extremely rare.

Watkins returned to San Francisco during 1857 or 1858. He kept no definite record on his negatives as to when they were taken and it was difficult in his old age for him to state definitely when certain negatives were made. In his entire collection there are but one or two exceptions to this rule. These are the stereoscopic negatives made during the period of the Centennial celebration of 1876, which covered a period of three days, and one Southern California view. Very few of the old Watkins pictures from '57 to the latter 60's have been found. I have probably either the originals or copies of nearly all that exist.

It must be borne in mind that all these photographs were made on wet plates. Owing to the scarcity of glass, if it was found that the prints from the negatives proved unsalable or a commercial order had been fully executed, the glass was cleaned off and again coated for another exposure. Watkins had several extra prints of most of these. These were at his home and did not escape from him when he lost his negatives as above; some were quickly made proofs and others imperfect prints. I copied all but about a dozen of these which were in Watkins' possession at the time of the 1906 fire, when everything in his gallery was burned. A stereo of this period can be recognized by the fact that it is mounted on a plain stereo mount and the title (sometimes with a number and sometimes without) written in ink beneath the picture, or on one end of the mount. Usually Watkins wrote his name at the end of these mounts. What might be called the Second Series of Watkins' stereos which Taber secured, were always mounted on printed mounts, bearing serial numbers. Usually these mounts bore a copyright notice and on the reverse was printed a reproduction of the medal awarded at the Paris Exposition, being the first medal, according to Watkins, ever awarded for view photographs.

Watkins' earlier stereos were all taken by what was then known as a stereo camera. The Hart stereos were also taken in the same way. In the "new series" of stereos a different system was adopted. Watkins had constructed a camera which would work a plate $5\frac{1}{2}'' \times 14''$. Thus he made at each exposure two negatives approximately $5\frac{1}{2}'' \times 7''$. From these ends of his stereoscope plate he made prints, approximately 5×7 , which he published as his "Boudoir Series," using the same plates for stereoscopic views by employing mats, properly cut out. He printed a certain portion from each negative for a stereo. In the catalog of his "new" series in certain instances two or more serial numbers are given, connected by brackets, as, for instance, 3013 and 3014. The meaning of this is that, using one mat, the proper portions of the large stereo negative were used for a certain view, as, for instance, 3013, and by repeating the process with another mat the stereoptic view 3014 was produced. In at least one instance, the interior of the dining room of the Baldwin Hotel, three of these stereoptic pictures were printed from one negative. In my research in regard to photographs and photographic methods I believe that this system of Watkins was never used by any one except himself.

We have seen that Watkins had returned to San Francisco some time in the latter part of 1857, or the early part of 1858. The New York country boy was gifted with a deep love for nature. The young man who had been forced through circumstances to make good, in his mature years did more to introduce to the world and to perpetuate the scenic beauties of California than any other man who has lived in our State. In 1858 or 1859, he visited the Mariposa Grove. He was the first man who photographed the "Grizzly Giant." A print from that negative showing Galen Clark standing by the side of the "Grizzly Giant" is our first photographic reproduction of the sequoia gigantia. These trees had been drawn previous to that time and had been illustrated in Hutchings California Magazine and on old letter sheets, but Watkins is entitled to the credit of having been the first man to photograph any of them. In 1861 Watkins first visited the Yosemite Valley and made the first 18×22 landscape photographs in California, if not in the world. In our present day photographic methods, it is almost impossible to understand the difficulties of the task and the indomitable energy and courage of the man who produced those pictures. Watkins had had constructed in San Francisco a camera sufficiently large for this class of work. From the window of his studio (on the southeast corner of Clay and Kearny streets) he made a test plate. This is quite likely his view "Over the Plaza." The next morning he set out on his pilgrimage. At that time travel to the Yosemite Valley was difficult and the Valley itself accessible only by very crude trails. At least twelve mules were required to pack the outfit of the indomitable photographer. It must be borne in mind that large glass plates formed a very important part of his equipment. The tent used in coating and developing these plates was a load for one mule. This young man was compelled to take five mules in his train carrying camera, tent, etc., around the Valley with him, from point to point. As each picture was made the tent had to be set up, the plates coated and then immediately exposed and at once developed. Photographic processes were slow, as also the exposure, which must necessarily be prolonged. One of the most beautiful pictures in this early series—a view of Sentinel Rock—was taken in the early morning light, with an hour's exposure, before the sun had risen on that part of the valley. Only by this method was it possible to have stillness among the leaves of the trees. These prolonged exposures will explain why there is no detail in the foam indicated in the waterfalls, as is shown by the rapid processes of today. When Watkins had finished his work on the floor of the Valley and wished to reach Sentinel Dome he was compelled to retrace his course for a considerable distance, down through the gorge toward Coulterville, and then gradually make trails backward until he reached the southern wall of the Great Valley. These old photographs are now extremely rare.

It was Watkins' practice to devote a large portion of the summer to photographic trips to different parts of the State, leaving his gallery and studio in San Francisco in the hands of an assistant. Incidentally it may be mentioned that during the early 80's while he was at 422 Montgomery street, on the upper floor of the Austin Building, where he lived with his wife and children, he had as a printer a most capable Chinaman. This man whom Watkins had trained for this particular line of work, was careful and efficient. He became an adept in "Silvering" the old albumen paper and in the difficult chemical manipulations required in early day photography. He got out the negatives and did the printing, while Mrs Watkins and an assistant attended to the business part of the establishment. It was along about this time that Watkins opened an elaborate establishment in one of the stores on the New Montgomery street side of the Palace Hotel. This room was handsomely carpeted and fitted up with solid walnut show cases, tables and easels for the display of the superb large photographs that Watkins had made. These were of the new series. About this time Watkins made a continuous exhibition of his 18x22 views, (entirely filling the wall space and with center structures covered with views) in the second story of the Aquarium Building at Woodward's Gardens. It was his habit along about this time to sell many of his photographs already framed. These were always framed in heavy black walnut frames, usually with a gilt band close to the picture, which was always matted. He also sold his larger views in portfolio form. For some of his earlier stereos issued during the 60's and perhaps as late as the early 70's, he used a sliding cloth-covered card board box holding respectively one or two dozen. Along about that time these pictures were sold for $5.00 per dozen.

In 1868 Watkins made his first Oregon trip. The stereos, probably something over a hundred in number, made along the Columbia River, were the first photographic reproductions of its scenery. At least this is the statement which Watkins made to me many years ago. Later, while working up his new series, Watkins again visited the northwest. His stereo series for this trip commence with No. 5201. It may be noted that it was Watkins' rule in numbering his negatives, to begin a series with the first unit of a new hundred or a new thousand. The reason for this was to allow filling in with subsequent negatives should they be made, in order that those relating to a particular locality should, as far as possible, be numbered consecutively. There are few exceptions to this rule, where San Francisco views may have been inserted. In the case of his Mission stereos, those of Carmel are listed under two serial numbers—this being the only instance of such duplication.

On his second trip to the northwest, Watkins visited the Port Blakeley Lumber Mills, where he made a number of stereoscopic views and also several 18x22 negatives. The series of Victoria, B. C., stereoscopic views made at this time is extremely valuable, as showing marked development in that city. It was probably at the time of this trip that Watkins extended his journey to Montana, where he made a magnificent collection of large views, 18x22, of the Anaconda and other properties. It is interesting to recall that a part of the 8x10 photographic work on this trip, unfortunately, was a failure. Watkins visited the lower levels of the mines for the purpose of making 8x10 flash lights of the workings. He spent an entire day on this work. Part of his negatives were ruined through the inquisitiveness of some unknown parties drawing the slide in his plateholders, which he had left in the superintendent's office while he went to dinner. Other interesting views showing the workings proved failures, owing to a condensation of moisture on the lens. Nevertheless a vast amount of historical material relating to Butte was gathered in pictorial form.

It was in 1880 that Watkins made his first trip through southern California along the line of the Southern Pacific Railroad (later he went to the "End of the Track" and as far as Tucson, Arizona). This series of stereos commences with No. 4301, "The Loop Tehachapi Pass, S. P. R. R." This series historically is of extreme interest, inasmuch as we find a large number of the earliest photographic views of San Bernardino, Los Angeles, Pasadena, San Diego and coast towns when those places were in their infancy. In the series are many views of the vineyards, orange orchards, etc., which have been swept away by the town lot activities of southern California. In this series also is the extremely valuable collection of photographs of the various missions. It may be remarked that in all of Watkins' tours, with the exception of his first into the Yosemite Valley, he traveled with a two-horse wagon in which he carried his paraphernalia and developed his negatives. While traveling on long reaches of the railroad his wagon was conveyed on a flatcar. On his first southern California trip Watkins returned in his wagon from San Diego, following the old overland stage road the greater part of the way, and visiting most of the Franciscan missions. Not only did he make his stereoscopic pictures of these, but also a collection of 18x22 negatives. From the latter he made prints of varying sizes. This collection of mission views is the earliest general photographic collection of California Missions made. They are extremely valuable in showing details of construction which the hand of time has swept away. It must not be supposed that all of the mission stereos were made during this trip, there being a few exceptions. For example, those of Carmelo were taken during a photographic visit to Monterey county and the Hotel Del Monte.

As previously mentioned, this series of stereos was made on a series of negatives $5\frac{1}{2} \times 14$. Consequently there were printed boudoir views of a very large portion. This especially applies to views of the missions. Also Watkins issued printed lists of his stereoscopic negatives of this southern trip, which I am quite positive is the only printed list of his work that was ever issued.

It has already been noted that Watkins obtained from Alfred A. Hart his series of 364 stereoscopic negatives showing the construction of the Central Pacific Railroad. These were progress pictures, and it seems to have been Hart's plan to go each successive season to the then terminus of the road, photographing the work in that vicinity as well as in sections which had not been visited on previous trips, and also filling in views of structures which had not been begun at an earlier period. This explains the view of the round house at Rocklin, which chronologically is not in its proper place in the list.

Watkins purchased from Louis Heller the extremely valuable small series of stereoscopic negatives relating to the Modoc war, which thereupon became a part of the Watkins series. These probably went to Taber. Heller was a local photographer in the northern part of the state, Fort Jones, and made a series of Modoc war negatives, including the portraits of the captive Modoc chiefs which were certified to by General Jefferson C. Davis, and became the official pictures of the war. These are the ones which later passed into the possession of Watkins. Some time after the Modoc war Heller gave up the photographic business and destroyed all of his remaining negatives. Beautifully executed large portraits of Captain Jack and Sear Face Charley in the Watkins gallery were from these Heller negatives.

During the development work of the Kern County Land Company Watkins visited Bakersfield, where he made a series of some seven hundred views on the Haggin and Tevis property. These were all 8×10 negatives and were dry plates. This was probably his last large commercial job and long country trip. It is a matter of regret that I did not make a copy of but a small portion of Watkins' catalog of his larger negatives. About the only ones of these which I noted were his 11×14 and 16×20 historical views of San Francisco. Nearly all of these are preserved in my collection.

Specimens of the magnificent collection of large Yosemite Big Trees, Del Monte, Virginia City, Railroad and Mission views are extremely rare. Watkins' last work in a photographic way was the making of a series of 16×20 transparencies from selected negatives of these large views. This superb collection of most valuable subjects was lost in the 1906 fire, together with all but a very few of Watkins' negatives, which at the time were in my possession. But one of his 18×22 negatives exists—his copy of the first Admission Day celebration in San Francisco. Two or three of his earliest stereoscopic negatives and possibly three or four dozen 8×10 originals and copies remain sole survivors of thousands of negatives representing a life work of forty years.

The last photographic work done by Watkins was for Mrs Phoebe A. Hearst at her Hacienda, at which time the old gentleman realized that his eyesight was rapidly failing. The work then undertaken was never completed.

The life-long friendship between Carlton E. Watkins and Collis P. Huntington are bright spots in the life histories of both men. During his youth Watkins' father kept a hotel at some small town in the state of New York. During that period Collis P. Huntington was making his living as a "tin" peddler. It was his habit when in that particular section of the state to make his headquarters at the Watkins' hotel. A life-long friendship grew up between the two young men. Both came to California. Huntington's activities were of a broader nature than those of his friend. During the construction and the early days of the Central Pacific Railroad, Watkins did a large amount of photographic work for the company, though for some reason this did not begin until after the making of the Hart series before referred to. Watkins made photographic reproductions of a great many plans and drawings for the engineering department and for other departments of the road. Only one or two of these are preserved in prints. Owing to the close friendship between Watkins and Huntington the making of bills for this work was a secondary consideration. Much of the work done was purely on the grounds of friendship, and no bills were ever presented. Watkins always traveled, and his outfit was transported, free. During the entire time that Collis P. Huntington was connected with the road Watkins was the recipient of annual passes. This return from the railroad was only a small recompense for the expenditure of time and material on the part of the friendly photographer. An amusing circumstance and one showing the magnificent fidelity of Collis P. Huntington may be instanced: As is well known, Huntington's activities in connection with the railroad required his residence in New York, with an annual visit to San Francisco. On the occasion of one of these visits he found that a clerk in the Passenger Department, a most accomplished amateur photographer, had been making photographic copies of documents for the company, and also doing certain other photographic work for the corporation. In order that this work might be done more expeditiously rooms on the top floor of the Fourth and Townsend Street building had been well fitted up for operating purposes. When the railroad magnate discovered the photographer's shop in the building he at once ordered it closed and the clerk discharged. Incidentally it may be remarked, that the clerk was simply put back on his other work; and while the room was closed some necessary railroad photographing was carried on there. Later this clerk retired from his clerkship, opened up business for himself and has done magnificent service for photography and for the railroad company which he served with fidelity. Probably no one knew Huntington's reason for ordering that clerk discharged and the company's photographic activities ended. Even his friend Watkins did not know of the circumstance until some years later; and never profited financially by it.

Watkins was a man who was deeply loved by those who were, through his reserve, permitted to become his close friends. I recall but two portraits of him, one in which he posed in one of his stereos, taking the picture himself, personating a miner using a rocker; the other a print from an amateur's film, showing the old man being led in his blindness along Ninth street on the morning of April 18, 1906, after he had been ordered from his studio, which was also his home, by the United States troops, and just prior to the time when the fire swept out of existence his negatives and thousands of prints. He was a man of strong likes and dislikes. He had been helped financially and socially by some of the most prominent people of San Francisco and California. Naturally, he made some enemies. For those he had no charity, and never forgave those who injured him, and of whom he spoke in the harshest terms. He was always generous to a fault, but more of an artist than a business man, which accounts for his lack of financial success. He made enormous amounts of money from his photographic work, but through friends lost it all.

During one of his trips to California Collis P. Huntington arranged to have a small ranch in the Capay Valley deeded to Watkins by the Railroad Company, as a partial recompense for the man's fidelity and unpaid-for labors. The last few years prior to 1906 Watkins lived in his studio on the top floor of the building on the southeast corner of Ninth and Market streets. Part of the time his wife, daughter and son lived with him. The greater portion of the time, however, the wife and son or daughter were away, most of this time at the Capay Valley ranch. The son attempted to help his blind father in his photographic work by making prints from negatives but was not very successful. A photographer* in the city volunteered to make these prints and assist the old gentleman in many ways where possible, making sales of his wares and cataloging and arranging his stock. At the time of the great fire the entire Watkins family was living at the studio. The wife and daughter went to a refugee camp at the Presidio. The blind old gentleman was led by his son to the home of the photographer, who for a few years had been helping to keep the Watkins bark afloat. There he was left by the son, to be cared for by the photographer friend, who took care of him almost continuously until the following October. The old gentleman was suffering from very bad ulcers on his legs, making it almost impossible for him to walk. Dr E. M. Bixby kindly and without price, dressed these ulcers, and D. H. Wulzen, a druggist, without cost, supplied the necessary medicine and dressings. A small amount of money was given to Watkins from the relief fund sent by the American Photographers Society for the rehabilitation of San Francisco photographers. Watkins visited Governor Pardee in Sacramento and was financially helped by him personally.

About two weeks after he had been left by his son at the home of the photographer friend referred to, the son called to see how his father was getting along. He was informed that the old gentleman had been placed, after some difficulty, in St. Joseph's hospital, where he would undoubtedly have been allowed to remain indefinitely. The son, however, procured his removal to the hospital at the Presidio. Later on, a stranger appeared at the door of the friendly photographer with Watkins, who said "I have come to stay with you."

In October a lease having expired on the Capay Valley ranch, the Watkins family decided to go there, and through help of the Red Cross the blind photographer also went to his country home.

MISCELLANY.

THE PACIFIC COAST CONFERENCE ON RURAL EDUCATION AND COUNTRY LIFE.

By MRS MAY DEXTER HENSHALL, School Library Organizer, California State Library.

The Pacific Coast Conference on Rural Education and Country Life conducted by the United States Bureau of Education held its meeting at the California State Normal School, Chico, December 3d to 6th.

J. L. McBrien, School Extension Agent, United States Bureau of Education, presided. Four years ago he held a Rural Life Conference at Chicago. A year later one was held at Nashville, followed by others in subsequent years. He had the daring to start a National Country Life drive at St. Paul in September and the courage to carry it through by sectioning off the United States and continuing the meetings at the Hot Springs of Arkansas, then on to Denver, following that with a conference at Butte and ending with a big one at Chico, California.

Among those scheduled to take part upon the program from outside of California were the state superintendents of Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Arizona. Dr A. E. Winship, editor Journal of Education Boston, Mass., and presidents and instructors from normal schools of Oregon, Washington and North Dakota.

The normal schools of California were well represented. President Allison Ware (U. S. A.), State Normal School, Chico, who was home on leave of absence attended the convention. It was a never-to-be-forgotten sight to see the soldier-president in the peaceful halls of his normal school. The audience was deeply stirred by his address of welcome yet over it all there seemed to hover a sense of unreality.

He said he awakened mornings in his tent with the bewildered feeling that he was leading a dual life and that he had difficulty in determining whether he was a schoolmaster or a soldier.

Not only were the California state normal schools well represented but also many cooperative forces throughout the state all aiding in the work for better rural schools and the improvement of country life.

Among these forces were the commissioners of elementary and of secondary schools and of industrial and vocational education, various departments of the University of California, the State Library, county school superintendents, county librarians, California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association, the rural church, Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Children's Agent of State Board of Control, University Farm at Davis, and California Federation of Women's Clubs.

It was a convention filled to the brim with interest and an evident desire to winnow the wheat from the chaff and then spread throughout the United States all worth-while propositions that are applicable under varying conditions.

Of it Dr. Winship said in an editorial in the Journal of Education, "Never, anywhere, under any leadership, so far as we can learn, have there been assembled for three days such a body of men and women representing every phase of civic, industrial, social, religious and educational country life problems, who were attacking these problems at first hand."

The California County Free Library plan met with decided favor. The fine record of the Butte County Free Library, with the County Librarian in attendance at the convention, made it possible to give first hand information directly to those seeking it.

The excellence of the Butte County Free Library service to the schools was cited as an example of what is being done in many counties of California. For the year ending June 30, 1917, the Butte County Free Library furnished sixty-seven school districts having ninety-three teachers and two thousand one hundred eighty-three pupils with a circulation of thirty-three thousand four hundred seventy-seven books, one hundred sixty new maps, four hundred seven pictures, one hundred two music records, with a pooled school library fund of two thousand eight hundred two dollars.

Throughout the convention speaker after speaker, representing the various activities, spoke in terms of highest praise of the far-reaching help of the county free libraries of California.

In addressing a large evening audience during the convention Mr McBrien said, "My job is to go over this great nation of ours, learn the best plans in operation for improvement of rural life, and then give them the widest publicity possible." He then mentioned three such plans in operation in California, one of which he designated as, "Your wonderful county free library system."

At the close of the session resolutions, drafted by representatives of five states, were adopted favoring the nine propositions included in the program of the United States Bureau of Education for the improvement of rural schools. The county free library plan was one of these nine propositions.

In addition to this the resolution also urged such legislative and administrative changes as may be necessary to make the nine propositions effective throughout our country.

Before adjourning President Allison Ware was called upon for a parting message which he gave in soul-stirring language.

J. L. McBrien, School Extension Agent, United States Bureau of Education, who had commenced on the Atlantic coast this nation-wide campaign for better rural schools and the improvement of country life ended the last session of the campaign by declaring the Pacific Coast Conference adjourned.

THE FIRST PUBLIC LIBRARY IN CALIFORNIA.

By J. C. ROWELL, Librarian, University of California Library.

Rev Samuel Hopkins Willey was the founder not only of the first college, but also the first library, in California. In his manuscript Diary (preserved in the University of California Library) under date of April 8, 1850 appears the statement "Sent for library for the 'Monterey Library Association' by the mail of the first of March."

In one of Dr Willey's letters to Rev E. W. Gilman, of Lockport, N. Y., dated Monterey, April 26, 1850, we read: "The situation of a minister in California is peculiar. It is impossible in my town at least to depend on other people much. Others will do what they think they can, and for the rest the minister must provide for it somehow. E. g. Our library which we have sent for, the plan of which I proposed, required a great deal of work, in getting up the list of books, collecting the money, transmitting it, etc., etc. * * * Now when the question of having or not having these things depends on one's self at last, who that appreciates their influence and importance can forbear exerting himself for procuring them."

How long the Monterey Library Association remained a living force in the community is doubtful, as its founder left in the fall of 1850 to take up his permanent residence in San Francisco.

NOTE.—In connection with the first library it is interesting to note an extract from a letter on file in the California State Library. The letter written from Monterey, Alta California, and dated, March 1, 1850, says, "The people here are about to order 700 or 800 volumes of books for a public library. They have collected $1,200 for the purpose."

This letter was written by Joseph A. Benton, who came to California in 1849 and lived here until his death in 1892. He was pastor of the Sacramento Congregational Church from 1849 to 1863. He was one of the founders of the College of California, was a professor in the Pacific Theological Seminary in Oakland from 1863-1892 and edited the Congregational publication "The Pacific" during that period as well as during the earlier years of 1851-55. Mr Benton is the author of that early and now rare California pamphlet "California—as she was, as she is and as she will be," which was a printed copy of his Thanksgiving address delivered November 30, 1850. (This is believed to be the first pamphlet published in Sacramento.)

The letter, from which the above extract regarding the Monterey library is quoted, was written while Mr Benton was on a trip to Monterey for his health.—Editor.

A LETTER FROM ANOTHER TEXAS LIBRARIAN.

By E. SUE GOREE, University of Texas Library.

I came to California with a receptive attitude toward the county library system. My own state had, during the last legislature, passed a law patterned after the California law, and after having read it, talked it, and worked for it a bit, it is keenly interesting to see it in operation.

I have been fortunate enough to work for several months in the Kings County Free Library—one of the counties in which every school in the county has joined the library. It is quite worth the pain of sloughing off a few standardized ideas to go out to the one-room rural schools in the midst of dreary looking sand wastes and inspect the books from which Young America—often only a few years removed from Japan or Portugal or Mexico—is drinking in the ideals of the New World; or to go into a country home, or spend an hour in a rural community branch and see the pleasure and appreciation of the heads of families at having comparatively easy access to new books on grafting, or Mendelism, or The War, as their tastes may direct.

The value of this system as a follow-up agency for quickening reforms, or for conducting public campaigns has impressed me greatly in Kings County. As soon as the "Red Cross" drive, the "Food Conservation" campaign, or the "Libraries for Soldiers" drive is announced the Library is ready to aid in the work of informing the Public and crystallizing sentiment. The entire system naturally lends itself to expeditious and thorough publicity work. The State Librarian sends out calls to the County Librarian; the County Librarian in turn appeals to her custodians; the custodians are in direct contact with "the people from the forks of the creek"—to quote Texas politicians.

At a first glance the California system is a marvelously organized machine for book distribution, planned and set in motion by a remarkable personality. Otherwise, such progress could not have been made in eight short years. Other states instituting the county system have much to learn if they would begin at the point which California has reached now. This is true, particularly, in the mechanical operation of the library. The breadth of the county system demands greater individual and social understanding on the part of librarians. To extend one's work to county and country limits demands a great degree of flexibility. In order to do it well it may be necessary to violate some of the A. L. A. Catalog Rules, or even to leave in peaceful obscurity the full name of authors who prefer to be known by one Christian name only. The county worker must find her personal and mental equipment vivified and enlarged daily, and even though her work is hard, it is a "big hardness." The idea of the county library is too broad to engender a spirit of drudgery.

ALAMEDA Co. FREE LIBRARY, OAKLAND.
Miss Mary Barnby, Acting Lib'n.

During the quarter branches were established in the following school districts: Green and Sunol.

The office of the county library was moved across the street from the Oakland Library building where it had been formerly, to the room which had been the newspaper room of the Oakland Library. The newspaper room was transferred back to the main building. The county library headquarters are much larger than the room occupied before and many advantages are enjoyed in the new office.

A meeting of the county library attendants was held in the county office on December 14. Twenty-two of the attendants were present. Miss Foley of the State Library addressed the meeting and told in her usual interesting manner of what was being done for the blind people by the State Library. Mr Foss, one of the County Supervisors, attended the meeting and spoke to the attendants and met them personally after the meeting. "Food conservation" was the general topic of discussion and ways and means for helping the cause were discussed.

§ALAMEDA FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.
Mrs Marcella H. Krauth, Lib'n.

The principal matter of interest in our work in Alameda during the past few months is our new Children's Room. It is certainly a success, being patronized more and more by the little folks. The young lady, Miss Schulte, who had charge of the work for a short time, has left and Miss Macnamee has been appointed in her place. Many new books have been added to our already excellent collection.

Mr Courtney Monsen, at present under the employ of the State University, devotes Saturday afternoons to the children, entertaining them with stereopticon lectures and stories. He is also conducting a class for seventh and eighth grade pupils in library work on Friday evenings in the children's room.

The work in the other departments is going ahead in a most satisfactory manner. Our work with the schools is on the increase.

MARCELLA H. KRAUTH,

GREEN SCHOOL DIST. BRANCH, ALAMEDA CO. FREE LIBRARY, was established Nov. 15, 1917.

Hayward.

HAYWARD [FREE] PUBLIC LIBRARY AND BRANCH, ALAMEDA CO. FREE LIBRARY. Mrs Elizabeth Creelman, Lib'n.

Twenty-five additional specimens have been added to the collection of moths and butterflies found within a radius of five miles of Hayward. A collection of colored photographs of the wild flowers of this section is also being made.

We are expecting that 1918 will find the basement of the library finished and ready to install two private pioneer collections we have been promised as a nucleus for our museum.

ELIZABETH CREELMAN, Librarian.

Oakland.

§|OAKLAND FREE [PUBLIC] LIBRARY. Chas. S. Greene, Lib'n.

On November 17 the library was represented at the meeting of the Second District at Redwood City by Miss Barnby of the County Department, and Librarian Greene, who spoke on the War Service Books of the Libraries. At the meeting of the First District on the evening of November 17 the Oakland Library was represented by a considerable number of its staff, ten or more being present.

On November 22 a meeting was called at the Oakland Free Library of the East Bay Library people to hear Miss Edith Guerier of the Library Department of the Food Administration. Miss Guerier expressed herself as pleased at what she found had been done in this region and particularly asked to have a photograph taken of the exhibit of Indian Foods in the Oakland Library. Photographs were

On November 27 the Board of Library Directors opened bids on the Alden and Golden Gate Carnegie branches, the last two of the four in the Carnegie gift. By the device of calling for bids on both branches as one contract a considerable saving was made, and so, in spite of the high prices prevailing, none of the alternatives cutting down were necessary with minor exceptions, and the board was able to replace in the 23d avenue building two items that had been cut out to bring it within the required $35,000. The 23d avenue building is approaching completion and will probably be ready to move in before the end of February. It is planned to have opening exercises with music under the auspices of the local improvement clubs.

Mrs Potter, chief of the Catalog Department of the library, asked to be put on half-time for six months in order that she might give time to the patriotic service in the matter of writing and publishing articles on Food Conservation. She has taken large interest in the matter and has spoken at a number of the women's clubs on the subject. The Librarian has worked closely with her in this service. Exhibits have been continuously made in the library both of printed material, books, pamphlets, and documents, by posters on large bulletin boards, and of actual foods in the museum case. Substitutes for white flour with muffins made of them by the Mills College Department of Domestic Economy, and war candy made by a local confectioner, were some of these.

In January a Book Drive for recreation books for the Camps is being extensively planned for and it has been arranged that the Mobilized Women of Oakland will undertake the collection of books while the library staff accepts the responsibility of sorting, listing, cataloging, and preparing for circulation, and shipping of books so gathered.

The staff meetings during the quarter have been successful under the charge of a committee of the staff which prepares the program and conducts the meeting. At that of November 29 Mr Ferguson gave an interesting talk on the work of the State Library.

The Civil Service Board advertised for an examination for assistant librarian to take the place made vacant by Mr Bamford's resignation, but only one person registered for the examination. The rules of the board require at least two to make the examination competitive, and so has postponed the examination again until March 21. Meanwhile Miss Fenton continues as acting head of the Reference Department.

A great deal of work has been done during the quarter at the Oakland Public Museum. President Hubbard of the Library Directors is an enthusiast on museum work and in particular in the matter of the habitat groups of wild animals. Mr John Rowley, Director of the Museum, is an acknowledged expert in mounting these groups of animals so that they are of great scientific as well as artistic value. During the fall a trip to Nevada by an expedition sent out by the museum resulted in the collection of five fine specimens of elk necessary for a group representing that animal. Sketches were made on the scene of the proper background of the group and collection of the foreground accessories under the direction of Mr Rowley. The local lodge of Elks has undertaken the staging in the City Auditorium of a Sportsmen's Show from January 16 to 19, the proceeds of which will be used to supply the $2000 or more it will take to mount this group, and, it is hoped, supply a surplus to be used as a nucleus of a building fund for a proper building for the museum. Material is on hand for several more such groups, grizzly bear, kodiak bear, Rocky Mountain sheep, Rocky Mountain goat, and wild black goat.

In November the County Board of Education held district institutes and we were asked to speak to the teachers on the work of the County Library with the schools. We were very glad to avail ourselves of this opportunity and feel that much good was accomplished by the talks given at the eleven institutes attended. We now have ninety-one school districts co-operating with the County Library.

The annual custodians' meeting was held at the central library on the eighth of November and was attended by twenty of the custodians. This meeting is looked forward to by the custodians as a place where their mutual problems may be discussed. The meeting this year was especially important as we are changing from the Browne to the Newark charging system throughout the county and it was possible to make explanations to all at once.

A new work room has been fitted up in the basement of the central library and the school and branch departments have moved into it. This room is large and gives ample space in which to carry on the work.

An archway has been cut between the children's room and a room formerly used for magazines, making a large, light room for the children. Additional tables and chairs have been placed in the new part and the children are enjoying their new quarters very much.

Miss Dorothea Davis has resigned her position as assistant in the County Library to become librarian of the Fresno High School. She begins her new work the first of January.

§||LONG BEACH [FREE] PUBLIC LIBRARY. Miss Zaidee Brown, Lib'n.

The library gave its annual exhibit in the children's room of juvenile books suitable for Christmas gifts. Last year we found that the public had difficulty in finding the books in the stores, so this year we made early preparations to overcome this difficulty. In the summer Miss Scales, the children's librarian, made out a list of books to be included in the exhibit, and showed it to each book dealer in town. Each man chose the books that he would carry in stock. The library made duplicate lists for distribution of the books carried by each store, with the name of the store at the top. Packages of these lists were hung near the exhibit in the children's room, and were also furnished to the dealers to give out at the stores. The exhibit was opened November 1, a month earlier than last year, and this gave time to order from a distance any books not carried by the local dealers.

In October, one of the best exhibits we have had was shown in the art gallery. This was a collection of paintings by contemporary American artists, loaned from the private collection of Mr and Mrs William Preston Harrison, of Los Angeles. This was followed in November by the fall exhibit of the California Art Club. On November 27, Miss Alma May Cook, a member of the club, gave an interesting talk in the gallery on the artists represented.

Since December 8, frequenters of the gallery have been enjoying a fine collection of Japanese prints loaned by the County Art Museum, and some beautiful water colors by Carl Oscar Borg and Grace E. McKinstry.

Friends of art in this city are rejoicing in the gift to the library of two paintings for the art gallery, the beginning we hope of a permanent collection. They were presented by Mr and Mrs William Preston Harrison, and formed part of the first exhibit noted above. One is a view of woods in winter, by Alfred Jansson; and the other is a scene on the Atlantic coast, by Wilson Irvine.

§PASADENA [FREE] PUBLIC LIBRARY. Miss Nellie M. Russ, Lib'n.

The Pasadena Public Library is aligning itself with all war activities. We have planned to handle all books collected by the Red Cross for our troops, pocket, list and ship them to their destination. We have recently taken about one hundred technical books from our shelves for immediate use in study classes at Camp Kearny, the books having been selected by one of the officers from the Camp.

We have purchased books at their request for use in the Home Service Department of our local Red Cross, and have created a deposit station at their headquarters for such books, so that they may be easily available.

We are working with the Woman's Committee of the National and State

The Historical Department is collecting photographs of and information about all who have entered any arm of the service.

The trophies won in the past by the now dissolved company of the National Guards of Pomona have been placed in the library as a sort of permanent loan. Veterans in the company have supplied a history of these trophies, for the local history records.

Members of the staff assisted in the campaign for the Liberty Bonds, making talks to clubs and neighborhood gatherings.

A gas furnace has been installed, with some changes in the heating and ventilating system to correspond. The results have been satisfactory.

Displays have been made on food conservation, on the events of the war and on other topics connected with the center of interest.

The patronage at Tenth Street Branch has been such that it is now open two days a week instead of one.

§SANTA MONICA [FREE] PUBLIC LIBRARY. Miss Elfie A. Mosse, Lib'n.

The lower floor of the main library was finished with an entrance from the street in October. In the new arrangement this floor is used for the children's room—general reading room—committee room and for late files of newspapers. With the upper floor free for books, we have an interesting working plan and it is a pleasure to say that the usefulness of the library has been enhanced.

The branch library building, costing $12,500, given by the Carnegie Corporation, is complete and will be open the first of February with a splendid collection of new books and a good list of current magazines.

We have met with a generous response from our people in giving books for "Our Soldiers and Sailors." Boxes of books were forwarded in care of the San Diego Public Library, through the kindness of Miss Althea H. Warren, for Camp Kearny, and also in the care of the Knights of Columbus for this Camp.

On Dec. 5th the branch was reopened as a reading room in the new Page Hotel with Mrs W. W. Page in charge.

The Lincoln Branch was temporarily closed from Nov. 1 to Dec. 19, advantage being taken of the Custodian having moved from the vicinity to see if the school branch was sufficient for the community. The experiment was not satisfactory and the branch was reestablished with Mrs Emma Lambert in charge. The

We are actively engaged in the Food Conservation campaign, taking up a different subject every week. Each week the cooking classes in the schools demonstrate the Library subject and the art classes make posters for it. All Library bulletin boards are given over to Food Conservation and each week as complete a collection of recipes as possible is gathered on the week's subject; local housekeepers test and endorse these recipes.

Our circulation record for last month showed an interesting shift of reading preferences. The number of volumes circulated was about the same as for December last year; the number of reference questions exactly the same (68); but the adult non-fiction circulation jumped amazingly; 868 this year, 743 last. The gains were in the 100's (62 against 26), caused by the Interscholastic Debate on League of Peace; in the 600's (113 against 41) caused by Food Conservation Campaign and Recipe Collection; and in the 900's (129 against 62) almost all books about the war. December also broke two other records: Sunday attendance on Dec. 23 was 138; largest previous record, 116; and 95 children attended our Christmas party (stereopticon stories of "Night Be-

The long felt demand for more room in the main library building has been temporarily supplied by renting an annex. Over a thousand square feet of space on the second floor of the Edmonds Building, next door to the library, has been leased for a large reading room. The current periodicals and newspaper, which heretofore have been in separate rooms, have been placed together in a large, bright, and well-ventilated space, which was formerly a dance hall, and which has been fitted with reading tables and seats for over a hundred people. An attendant is in charge daily, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. It is hoped that the soldiers and sailors will come in great numbers on Wednesdays and Saturdays, when they have leaves.

places and some of the furniture painted a light gray, with line decorations of the colors of the frieze. There is a low window seat across the entire western side of the room, for story hours and reading. The room, under the charge of Miss Helen Dysart, Children's Librarian, is open daily from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Miss Elizabeth Bailey of the Registration Department, was granted leave, with pay, to spend six weeks at the Portland Public Library, where, through the courtesy of Miss Isom, she was given experience in all the library departments. She returned the first of December, with helpful suggestions for every member of our staff.

War times have made many changes in our staff. Miss Verna M. Evans, Wisconsin, 1912, who for the past year has been in charge of recataloging, was married in December to Mr Fred Clapp, of Ontario. She has been succeeded by Miss Madaline Scanlan, Wisconsin, 1916, who was already a member of our staff. Miss Ruth Keefe, librarian of the Marston Branch, was also married in December. Her place has been taken by Miss Elsie Speece. New members of the staff during the quarter are Miss Catherine C. Smith, librarian's secretary, Mrs Elsie Mary Wilson, librarian of the Ocean Beach Branch, Miss Elizabeth Callaway, desk attendant at the main library, and Mrs D. B. Hunt, librarian at the Park Branch.

Our greatest library interest during the past three months has been, of course, the raising of funds for A. L. A. Camp Libraries and the gathering and preparing of books for the nearest one, Camp Kearny, sixteen miles north of San Diego. San Diego County secured its quota, $1700, towards the A. L. A. fund, with $70 to spare. Members of the staffs of the County and City Libraries, with help from the Kelsey-Jenny Commercial School, have prepared the book-pockets, book-cards and shelf-list record for nearly 3000 donated books collected in this town and sent in by other libraries of the state. Even a greater number, having been collected and prepared by the Los Angeles Public Library, there were nearly 7000

§§||[FREE] PUBLIC LIBRARY OF THE CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO. Robert Rea, Lib'n.

The foreign language division of the library which has made steady and rapid growth has recently been enlarged by the acquisition of several collections. Chief among these is the French Family Library, a gift of the French government. This consists for the most part of sets of standard authors and works of description, history and travel. Many juvenile books are included, principally picture books and translations of children's classics of all countries. The collection is distinguished by its fine bindings.

The Spanish section has been strengthened and increased by another donation from Mr J. C. Cebrian. Spanish literature forms the major part of this collection which supplements in great measure the earlier gifts made by Mr Cebrian. The Spanish division is now a very complete and important part of the library. Poetry, drama and music comprise this department for the most part, but all classes are well represented.

The many requests for Swedish literature have been met by the purchase of some two hundred books in that language. These fill a gap in the collection and are in constant use.

Particular attention is being devoted to the foreign language division as the cosmopolitan nature of the population of San Francisco makes it necessary to have books in many languages to meet all demands.

In an effort to make the Newspaper Room one of the feature departments of the library, publications from all parts of the country are being placed on file there. It is hoped in the near future to have every city of any importance represented by at least one paper.

THE MUSIC DEPARTMENT OF THE SAN FRANCISCO PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The Music Department of the San Francisco Public Library since its establishment in the new building and its allotment of a separate room is a department of vital interest to the music lovers of the city. In the temporary library built after the fire there was no provision for the music beyond that made for the entire collection, and the value of these books was not generally known. Since it has been housed in separate quarters with opportunity to develop this side of the library's activities the use of the collection has increased materially.

The Music Room is a large, airy room situated on the third floor of the building. The music is on open shelves, easily accessible to the public. Special cases are provided for the unbound sheet music. A sound-proof room adjoining the main section contains a piano which patrons may use to try over music before taking it home.

The musical library now numbers about 2180 volumes consisting of opera scores and librettos, sacred music, vocal, piano and violin selections. To these will be added the excellent violin collection of the late Mrs Isador Jacobs and a donation of orchestral music from the Rudolph Herald Library. An especial interest attaches to the latter as it contains many of the scores used in the first symphonies in the early days of San Francisco. Among notable additions should be mentioned the gifts of Mr J. C. Cebrian consisting of many volumes of Spanish music.

In addition to the books enumerated above there are almost a thousand works on harmony, history of music, biographies of musicians and works on technique. The steady circulation of these books is an indication of the intelligent interest taken in music. During the entire year of 1916 the circulation was 7418, while that for the first half year of 1917 was 5795.

The department endeavors to keep in touch with all musical events and activities in the city. Programs for concerts, symphonies, etc., are obtained in advance, prepared for study and reference and filed. Musical magazines are indexed also and articles of interest to music lovers are clipped from the daily papers.

§§STOCKTON FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY. Miss Hattie M. Mann, Lib'n.

With the view of co-operating with the U. S. Food Administration, the Stockton Free Public Library has maintained for some time a permanent exhibit of books and pamphlets as well as a poster exhibit on Conservation. This has been accomplished by having a "current events" book shelf where are placed the books, along with a typed list and a poster calling attention to the subject. Whenever the books are changed a short notice is inserted in the daily newspapers calling attention to the new subject. An account of publicity work along these lines has been sent to Frances M. Carlton Harmon, the Library Publicity Director for California, also to the Chief of Library Section, Conservation Division, Washington, D. C. The posters sent to the library by the Food Conservation Committee have also been posted and have also been sent to the county deposit stations.

During the period of war there is a fund of general information which the public is demanding. Aside from "war books" including personal experiences and memoirs of men and women who have been in touch with world affairs and have in some instances been "Over the top," the same interest calls for books of history both of the United States and of other leading countries at war. Under the heading "Emergency war lists" the reference librarian, Lois E. Keys, has been making exhibits of books on the following subjects: Foods and Cooking, Vegetable Gardening, Red Cross, Agriculture, History of the "Allies."

During the last three months the picture collection has been increased and recently an exhibit of war pictures for the current events bulletin board has been made by the Art Reference Librarian, Algie R. Beecher. These pictures were taken from the covers of Literary Digests and mounted on inexpensive card mounts. Each number illustrates some phase of war activity: an airship, a submarine, an anti-aircraft gun, an American ambulance at the front, etc. Many of the engravings of cathedrals are being used by the instructor in the new High School course on "History of Art, comprising Architecture, Sculpture and Painting."

HATTIE M. MANN,
Librarian.

W. F. CLOUDSLEY.

There is a class of pioneers in California whom we often overlook when paying tribute to those sturdy characters who built up the Golden State. Their work, which is as important a factor in California's development as that of the men who crossed the plains in the early days, has been performed quietly, but effectively. It is the foundation upon which rests the state's educational system.

The writer has in mind the late W. F. Cloudsley, for thirty-five years librarian of the Stockton Free Public Library. Mr Cloudsley passed away July 6th last at the family home in Stockton, after a prolonged illness.

Mr Cloudsley was born in Lexington, Missouri, 71 years ago, and as a lad of 17 enlisted in the Confederate Army as a member of the famous Collins Battery in Shelby's brigade under General Sterling Price. And in connection with his record as a soldier it might be interesting to narrate an incident that occurred shortly after his death. His two sons, Charles and Upton, both sterling young men, were granted leave of absence, having enlisted in the service of Uncle Sam. After the funeral Mrs Cloudsley was informed that the military authorities would certainly give one of her sons an honorable discharge in that she needed his support. But Mrs Clowdsley would not listen to such a suggestion, stating that her late husband had done his bit for the cause and that she was willing that her sons should do their part. She declared Mr Clowdsley would certainly have desired that they remain with the service.

It was in 1883 that Mr Clowdsley was appointed city librarian. The library then contained only 4678 volumes, with an annual circulation of 29,487. Since then it has grown under his supervision to one of the best municipal libraries in the state with 80,000 volumes and an annual circulation of more than 200,000.

Mr Clowdsley took a prominent part in the conventions of the state librarians. He extended the service of the Stockton library to the entire county by opening branch libraries in every section and attained remarkable success in this work.

Highly esteemed by the entire community, his death is a loss not only to Stockton and San Joaquin County, but to the entire State of California.

The camp library building has been started and it is hoped that library work from the camp center will soon be a reality.

SANTA CLARA CO. FREE LIBRARY, SAN JOSE. Miss Stella Huntington, Lib'n.

During the quarter branches were established at Shannon and Sunnyvale and in the following school districts: Mountain View and San Martin.

As most of the schools were late in opening this year this has been a very busy quarter. We have sent out 10,428 books; of these $84 were requests and 159 from the State Library. Only 2182 books were returned to the main library during the quarter. At present there are 20,460 books out at the branches. On January 1 there were 12,143 books from the County Library in the schools.

The library has been and still is collecting books for the Camp Fremont Library: 267 books have been donated and passed on to the Camp. The sheriff's office kindly delivered the books, and a great many magazines, to the Camp for us, so we had no expense for delivery.

The library staff has also been "doing their bit" by taking charge of the list of names of soldiers of Santa Clara County; most of the work was done by others, but we have filed the cards and keep them at the library for reference and find them very useful. We hope to keep up the work and have a complete list of the men that have gone from Santa Clara County.

§VALLEJO [FREE] PUBLIC LIBRARY AND BRANCH, SOLANO CO. FREE LIBRARY. Miss L. Gertrude Doyle, Lib'n.

Our main work is "War Work," circulating books for study among the enlisted men on Mare Island, borrowing books needed for examinations and draft work. The help given the men by the Library in first draft was acknowledged by the Local Draft Board by appointing the librarian an associate member of the legal Advisory Board. This and the regular library work was done by regular force without added help.

The Library since the first has been a "Bureau of Information" on the draft question, bringing many people into the library who now have become patrons.

Improvements have been begun on making a large room out of the front basement, for use of enlisted men. Also a small room for Mechanical Books and a study room.

but one are community as well as school branches.

Extensive improvements have been made in the Sonora Public Library since it became a branch of the County Free Library. The room has been enlarged and a skylight added, and a new floor laid. Walls and woodwork were freshly finished and plate glass windows put in.

Some of the money for these improvements was raised by the Tuolumne County Welfare Club, and the rest expended from the city fund. The public library has had to spend almost no money for books, all new fiction, class and children's books being supplied by the county library. Eighteen monthly and weekly periodicals are furnished by the county library.

The county library is assisting in the food conservation campaign. All bulletins, pamphlets and books bearing on the subject are kept on file at the central office and bulletins distributed with every shipment of books.

A collection of material on forestry and kindred topics is being built up for the benefit of the rangers in Tuolumne County. Requests for matter of this sort become more numerous month by month, as the county library becomes better known.

§DEAN HOBBS BLANCHARD MEMORIAL [FREE PUBLIC] LIBRARY. Miss Mabel Gertrude Wood, Lib'n.

In regard to the food conservation campaign, we have distributed a great number of government pamphlets to the public. The interest was largely aroused in the matter through a lecture on the subject at one of the meetings of the Ebell Club, delivered by the librarian of this library. The domestic science teachers in the schools here have been asked to hand in well-tried recipes which may be further distributed to the public through the library, helping still further the cause of food conservation.

are to be pasted in loose leaf scrap books, indexed, and preserved as local history.

Plans for the proposed Carnegie Branch Library building at Yolo are being drawn by W. H. Weeks of San Francisco.

The people of Yolo raised three hundred dollars with which they bought a very desirable lot located in the center of the town. The lot was then deeded to the county and was formally accepted by the Board of Supervisors at the December meeting.

The Yolo County Library and the Woodland Public Library will work together in the collection and preparation of books to be sent to the Camp Fremont Library.

At the request of the local chapter of the Red Cross the County Library made an appeal for the donation of French text books which are said to be urgently needed, especially in the officers' training camps. These books were collected by the library and shipped to Red Cross headquarters for distribution.

DIRECTORY FOR LIBRARY SUPPLIES AND OTHER ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Many public libraries waste a great deal of time and money before they find good places to get supplies. The plan is to give all libraries the benefit of the experience of the older libraries of the State by listing under different heads the houses that have been found to give satisfaction, the names and addresses being furnished by the older and larger libraries of California. In this way suggestions will be given as to where different sorts of books may be bought, where books may be rebound or periodicals bound, where library furniture may be bought, etc., both in California and in the East.

If any information is needed about the firms listed below which can not be obtained from the firms themselves, the names of the libraries recommending the different ones will be sent to any library upon application to the State Library.

DISTRICT MEETINGS.First District Meetings.

A meeting of the First District of the California Library Association was held Saturday evening, November 17, 1917, in the Lane Library building, San Francisco. About fifty members were present as guests of the Lane Library and the Sutro Branch, State Library, and opportunity was given, before and after the formal program, to inspect the two libraries, which occupy the same building. The meeting was called to order at 8.40 by C. V. Park, of Stanford University Library. He called first upon C. S. Greene of the Oakland Library, to bring up the matter of giving library publicity to food conservation. Mr Greene told of the efforts of the Oakland Library to help in this work, especially of an exhibit of food conservation posters and foods. He then referred to a letter from Mrs F. M. Harmon, trustee of the State Library, who desires that a meeting of delegates of the libraries of the district be held, in order that Miss Edith Guerrier, who is in charge of the national work of the libraries, may speak to them. Mr Greene moved: That a meeting of the district be held for this purpose on November 22, time and place to be announced by the Chair, later in the evening. (Announced for 4 o'clock at the Alameda County Department of the Oakland Library).

The President then announced that plans for the year included at least one more formal meeting, probably with the Second District and some walking trips.

He then introduced M. J. Ferguson, State Librarian, who read a paper:

*"California libraries: a short review and a look ahead."

After the meeting refreshments were served, and an opportunity given to see the libraries and to get acquainted.

MINNA STILLMAN,

Secretary pro tem.

Second District Meeting.

The second district, California Library Association, held a meeting in Redwood City on November 17, 1917, with sixty in attendance.

The morning session was held in the Sequoia Theatre, Miss Anne Bell Bailey presiding.

Although the meeting was set for the middle of November, the hope for fair weather was fulfilled by the most perfect day California can boast.

At eleven o'clock the meeting began with a most cordial offering of the city and its representative citizens for the entertainment of its visitors, by E. T. McGettigan, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Redwood City.

While the meeting was most informal, the recommendations of the committee on the Constitution were taken up and discussed, but the members preferred to defer action as to their favor or disfavor of the changes until the next meeting, when they feel that they may be better equipped to discuss the changes.

Miss Bailey was selected as nominator for the second district.

This being the first meeting since the loss of Mr J. L. Gillis, the members of the second district wished to give some expression of the sense of loss felt by everyone. †Resolutions of sympathy were drawn up by C. S. Greene of the Oakland Free Library, upon the request of the chairman, and accepted by the members.

The general topic for the day was "War Service" and Mrs A. G. Whitbeck opened the program with a most helpful and instructive talk on "Help the libraries might give in the food conservation," by exhibits, such as those suggested by the librarian of the Department of Agriculture and the librarian of the Food Administration. She told of an exhibit she had given along these lines, which was most helpful and no doubt will be adopted by many of the librarians present who had not felt confident to go on without someone taking the first step. A general discussion followed Mrs Whitbeck's talk, in which several librarians told what they had done in this work. Mr Greene of the Oakland Free Library showed a pamphlet which his library had issued and sent out, and Miss Barmby of Alameda County telling of a deposit of twenty books or pamphlets which has been sent from one branch to another.

Miss Stella Huntington spoke of war work the Santa Clara County Free Library is doing, along very different lines, than any that had been mentioned. Their library is making a card index record of all the men in service from Santa Clara County, so that anyone desiring information about any of the men will be able to secure the same by applying to the library. Several librarians reported receiving donations of books for the men in the camps.

N. H. Jacks of the Y. M. C. A. gave a most interesting talk on the work of the association in the war, and how thoroughly it was appreciated by the men. He mentioned the help the libraries are giving, but urged the librarians to use judgment in sending material to the camps. While intentions are often the kindest in the world, one sometimes forgets that donating books to men of intelligence does not mean dumping material no longer interesting or useful to oneself, on to the men in camp. He spoke of the type of books to send to the men, and mentioned that magazines containing continued stories should be fastened together.

Mr Greene followed with an outline of the plans of the American Library Association as nearly as he could give them at this time. He assured the members that although matters seemed somewhat disjointed at present, things were slowly taking shape and that all the camps would no doubt be well provided for.

Milton J. Ferguson, State Librarian, who is the division director for the Western States was then asked to give further information. He told of the splendid response California made to the call for money to conduct this huge war library plan. He then spoke most feelingly of his predecessor, Mr Gillis, and asked the same help and consideration that has been shown by all librarians in the past, to assist him along the way that lies before him.

Miss Frances Patterson then read a most enlightening paper on the work that has been done at Camp Fremont. This aroused discussion as to the best service and Miss Etta Eckhart told of the way she tried to serve the men at the Presidio at Monterey. The Red Cross has been given the use of the basement of the library building there.

Two letters were read by Miss Bailey from librarians working with the camp at San Diego, and were so inspiring that every librarian present felt the call to do something for the nearest camp, at once.

Prof. Joseph Smith of St. Matthews Church, San Mateo, gave an organ recital, which closed the morning session.

Luncheon was served at the Sequoia Hotel, where the tables were decorated with suggestions of the military, flags, war vessels and even an aeroplane.

Since the Chamber of Commerce had invited the members for a ride, Chaplain Brasted's talk was left until after lunch, so that his remarks would be fresh in the minds of the visitors when they visited Camp Fremont.

Chaplain Brasted was post chaplain in the Philippines for three years before the troops were sent to Camp Fremont, and he told of the method they followed in conducting their libraries there, and the probable similarity of the plan in the libraries that were being planned for Fremont.

A library of some few hundred books has been started by the combined efforts of the libraries of two counties adjoining Camp Fremont, and this was shown the visitors during the trip to the camp. Chaplain Brasted spoke most feelingly of the influence that books have on the men, and his experience has shown that, given the books, the men will appreciate and use them. As he finished his talk, the members of the Chamber of Commerce who had so kindly lent their machines, arrived and announced that it was time to start. The trip was made in short time, and the 8th Infantry, 15th Cavalry and 13th Infantry were visited, also the Y. M. C. A. building, just completed. The class rooms, pool rooms and other attractions were of more interest to the librarians than the small corner devoted to books, but due respect was shown to the size of the collection when they were told that the books were being drawn out so rapidly that more were needed.

At this point those of the librarians who had trains to catch returned to Redwood City, while the others were driven through the Portola Valley, one of the many beautiful scenic drives in the county. Everybody expressed himself most heartily appreciative of the royal entertainment provided by the men who had planned this trip, and left with pleasant recollections of the town, the camp, and the county.

MARY GERVAIS,
Secretary.

COUNTY FREE LIBRARY LAW.

The "California county free library law and circular of information for applicants for certificates of qualification to hold office of county librarian in California" was published in News Notes of California Libraries, April, 1911, and later reprinted in pamphlet form. The edition being exhausted, a revised edition of the circular was printed in News Notes of California Libraries, January, 1914. This has been reprinted as a pamphlet. Copies will be furnished by the State Librarian.

NEXT EXAMINATION.

The Board of Library Examiners desires to call the attention of librarians to the examinations which will be held at Los Angeles on June 7-8 and at Sacramento on June 14-15 for those persons who want to qualify for the position of county librarian under the California County Free Library Act of 1911. The Board feels that the nature of the work, its importance in the development of the educational life and institutions of the state, its relationship to industrial and economic conditions and the compensation offered successful candidates who receive appointments make this service worthy of the best efforts of the best material in library circles. Of the work which has been done in California since the enactment of this law the examiners feel a justifiable pride; and they are anxious that the new candidates who may present themselves may profit by the experiences of those who have been in the service, and may also bring to this work the best foundation upon which to build a successful career. If, therefore, a librarian who expects to take the examination will add to his general education and his technical training actual experience in a county free library, his chances of passing the examination with creditable showing will be enhanced. Naturally service in any sort of library, however, will give the candidate a certain vantage ground; the wider the range of work, the better are the chances of passing the test with high grade.

California counties have their peculiarities just as have the counties and peoples of other states. One who is unfamiliar with those conditions and peculiarities would in the beginning enter into the service with a certain handicap. The Board, however, wishes to assure librarians who live without the borders of California that they are not barred from taking the examinations. While the tests will only be given within this state and for the year 1918 at the places and times mentioned above, the lists are open to all library workers who have educational and professional qualifications.

To the younger members of the profession particularly the Board would urge that they give the fullest possible consideration to the subjects usually covered in library work, and that they become as familiar as possible with the special laws and conditions under which they would serve should they pass the examinations and receive an appointment.

APPLICATION BLANKS.

All who wish to take the examination should file applications with the Chairman of the Board. For application blanks or further information address the Chairman of the Board, M. J. Ferguson, State Librarian, Sacramento, California.

REFERENCE DEPARTMENT.

SUSAN T. SMITH, in charge.

The Reference Department furnishes information to any inquirer. It furnishes books to public libraries on request of the librarian, and to any other educational institution on request of its official head or its librarian; to individuals through the signature of a state officer, of the Librarian of the local library or of the official head of any other educational institution or on receipt of a $5.00 deposit; to a club or grange on request of its president, secretary or librarian. In counties having county free libraries, all requests must be made through the county free library.

The State Library pays the cost of transportation as follows: to any general branch of the county free library that requests books for general library service and is located in a part of the county supporting the county free library; to any (elementary or high) school district branch of the county free library that has joined the county free library and is wholly in a part of the county supporting the county free library; and, for school service only to any (elementary or high) school district branch of the county free library that has joined the county free library and is wholly or partly in a part of the county not supporting the county free library. In every other instance the charges both ways are paid by the borrower. All express companies grant a half-merchandise rate to the borrower on return shipments, and a half-merchandise rate both ways on shipments sent to libraries.

Librarians are urged to collect bulletins and pamphlets of all kinds relating to war work—those issued by the various departments of the Government, federal and state, on food conservation, war savings, etc., as well as those published by the Red Cross and other private organizations. These will answer many requests that the State Library is now called upon to fill.

Service for high school debates is greatly curtailed because librarians ask for the specified references listed in the University of California bulletins, giving the State Library no opportunity of substituting in case the articles are loaned or not in the State Library. We have added many excellent references to those listed and have had magazine articles cameragraphed, which are not being used because "exact book" is nearly always asked for.

This also applies to requests other than for debates, on current topics to be found only in the magazines. The "exact reference" is often only a paragraph in a heavy bound volume, for which a far more comprehensive article might be substituted. In all cases where possible, then, give the State Library an opportunity to substitute. If the substitutes prove unsatisfactory we will welcome criticism.

CATALOG DEPARTMENT.

The work of the Catalog Department is proceeding along two parallel lines: the cataloging of the regular additions of new books, and the recataloging of much material needing a fuller treatment than it has heretofore received.

During October, November and December 2684 volumes were cataloged, adding 16,438 cards to the catalog.

CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT.

EUDORA GAROUTTE, in charge.

The California Department aims to have a thoroughly good collection of books on the history and description, resources and industries of the State, as well as the works of California authors in all departments of literature. These are made accessible by means of a card catalog. Full names and biographical sketches of California authors, artists, musicians, pioneers and early settlers are being secured, together with their photographs. The collection of bound periodicals is quite large. The Department also contains about 6000 bound volumes of newspapers, a file of which is being indexed with reference to the history of the State. Students will be assisted in their work.

Pioneers and Early Settlers.

Among the many pioneer and early settler cards received are those of three pioneers who arrived in '49 or prior thereto.

Mrs May C. Lassen has filled out a card for Peter Lassen in whose honor Mount Lassen and Lassen County were named. Peter Lassen arrived in 1840 and from that time on until he met his death through the treachery of Indians, he was connected with many important events. Mrs Lassen states that he brought the first Masonic charter to California. This charter was issued May 10, 1848, as Western Star Lodge No. 98, with the seal of the Grand Lodge of Missouri attached. This lodge was located at Benton City, Upper California.

In April, 1846, General Fremont with fifty of his men enjoyed the hospitality of Peter Lassen for several weeks. Mrs Lassen also states that he took the first steamboat up the Sacramento River as far as Red Bluff and planted a large vineyard at what is now known as Vina. Peter Lassen was killed by Indians February 26, 1859.

A very interesting card is that of Mrs Margaret Morfiew, who has the following under "Miscellaneous notes": "I have been a resident of San Francisco since December, 1849, and have followed its history ever since, never having left the state for more than two months at a time. Have lived in my present home since July, 1869."

Other cards received are as follows: Charles and William Ashley, Mrs Sarah Baldwin Dornin, Mr and Mrs George Kaiser, Giles Pease Kellogg, Mr and Mrs Mathew Simpson King, Mr and Mrs Jacob Lynn, Leander Ransome, Edward L. Reimer, John P. Smith, Ezra Snyder.

Catalog.

Four hundred and ten cards have been added to the California catalog during October, November and December.

Donations.

A most valuable and interesting collection of photographic reproductions of William Keith paintings has been presented by the heirs of California's great artist. This collection consists of 85 prints and will become more and more prized by the student and lover of art as the years go by. A picture of Mrs Elizabeth Emerson Keith, who was herself an artist of ability, has been presented by her daughter, Mrs E. N. Harmon. This picture was reproduced from an old daguerrotype and has a quaint charm all its own.

Collections of manuscripts and letters relating to the early days have been received from J. A. Fairchild, Mary B. Hall, T. W. Hubbard, William H. Murray, Dr H. W. Yemans and Mrs E. L. Frisbee.

John F. Ingle has furnished a sketch of Clark Ashton Smith, the young California poet. Mrs May C. Lassen has added to the biographical cards of Peter Lassen and Edward J. Reimer typed sketches and Mrs Mary Dornin Wilkinson has presented the manuscript reminiscences of George D. Dornin. These reminiscences cover the period 1849-1879 and are exceedingly interesting. An unusually large number of programs, pictures and autographed books has been received.

Home Teaching.

Miss Foley, home teacher of the blind, is at the Sutro Branch of the State Library, Sacramento and Webster streets, San Francisco, every Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. She gives lessons regularly in Alameda, Berkeley, Decoto and Oakland. Miss Morrison, home teacher of the blind, is at the Los Angeles County Free Library, tenth floor, Hall of Records, on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons from 1.30 until 5.30 o'clock and at the Long Beach Public Library every other Thursday afternoon. She gives lessons regularly every two weeks in Covina, Orange and Santa Ana.

From October 1 to December 31 they gave 229 lessons in the homes of the blind and 85 lessons at the libraries on the 37 afternoons they spent in them. Miss Foley and Miss Morrison have made 152 visits and calls in connection with the work for purposes other than giving lessons, and received 41 visits in connection with the work.

During the quarter Miss Foley and Miss Morrison spent 192 hours on correspondence and preparing lessons. They wrote 218 letters and 82 postals and received 164 letters and 19 postals. They also answered and made 358 telephone calls. Their various other activities in connection with their work can not be easily tabulated.

Persons who know of possible pupils anywhere in Orange or Los Angeles counties are urged to communicate with Miss Catharine J. Morrison, 306A S. Bonnie Brae, Los Angeles, and anywhere around the bay with Miss Kate M. Foley, Sutro Branch, State Library, Sacramento and Webster streets, San Francisco (telephone West 3046).

LIBRARY SCHOOL.

The Library School was established in 1913 for the purpose of helping to supply the demand for trained librarians in California. The year's course begins in September and ends in June. It aims to cover the various branches of library science needed in all libraries, and at the same time places particular emphasis on the needs and conditions of California libraries.

College or university graduation is required for admission. Applicants must be at least twenty years of age, and under thirty on the day of the beginning of school. There is no tuition charge, and all necessary supplies and textbooks are furnished by the Library.

A copy of the Circular of Information may be obtained, upon request, from the State Librarian, Sacramento, California.

On December 4 and 5 Mr B. B. Futernick, of Foster & Futernick, library bookbinders of San Francisco, gave two lectures before the class on bookbinding for libraries. His talks were illustrated with samples of leather, and books in the various stages of binding. Each student was given a booklet of samples of the different kinds of cloth and leather used in bookbinding.

A new course, started this year, is in high school library work. Miss Jean Ross, librarian of the Sacramento High School Library, will give five lectures on the principles of high school library work. Following these lectures each student will spend the afternoons of one week of the second term in actual practice work in the Sacramento High School Library, thus making the connection between the theoretical and the practical.

In her lectures on school library service Mrs Henshall covers the relationship between county libraries and the schools. This course has been considerably enlarged, and aims to give the students a definite idea of the problems encountered by the county librarian doing work with the schools.

To complete the course in library law given by Miss Eddy, a mock meeting of a board of supervisors in the act of establishing a county free library was presented by the members of the class. The characters taken by the students were the chairman of the Board of Supervisors and the four other members, the County Superintendent of Schools, the County Farm Adviser, the president of the woman's club of the county seat, a trustee of the local public library, the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, the District Attorney and the County Library Organizer from the State Library. The part of the objecting citizen was taken by Miss Eddy. Arguments for and against the county free library were offered and difficult points of the law explained. Needless to say, at the close of the meeting, the Board of Supervisors voted unanimously to establish a county free library in their suppositious county. So clear an idea was given of the work of the County Library Organizer and the method of establishing a county free library, that the mock meeting will be repeated in January at the regular monthly staff meeting.

Just before the Christmas holidays the following subjects were chosen for the bibliographies which will be prepared during the second term to serve as graduation theses: Compulsory health insurance; Gary school system; Modern short story writers; Child welfare; Life and works of Rodin; New theater; County libraries; Life and works of Fabre; Russia, its political and social aspects since the outbreak of the war; Red Cross; President Wilson.

The Circular of Information of the Library School for 1918-1919 has been issued. A copy may be obtained by applying to the State Librarian.

At the January meeting of the State Board of Education a resolution was passed whereby the California State Library School was accredited by the State Board of Education to recommend to county or city and county boards of education individuals for secondary special certificates in library craft, technique and use. According to an amendment passed by the 1917 legislature, a librarian employed for more than two hours each day, in any high school, must hold a high school teachers' certificate or the special certificate mentioned above. Thus the accreditation of the California State Library School by the State Board of Education ensures for each graduate the credential which renders her eligible to a position as high school librarian.

"BRINGING LIGHT TO THE BLIND."*

By PAULINE JACOBSON.

Miss Kate M. Foley is the State Library Home Teacher for the Blind. Her work is to teach raised systems of print to the blind in this state. The soul of her work, however, is teaching the blind how to take the bit in their teeth and convert their blindness into an asset. She does this, as she says, "not by shoving out the darkness but by shining it out."

"You don't shove darkness out of a room, do you?" she queried. "You shine it out by bringing a light into the dark."

Miss Foley's light is not a physical light. This she declares the poorest light in the whole world. Her's is what she calls a "mental light," brought to the mind of the blind through work. Its essence is courage. Reading is only a means to this end. Reading restores the confidence to the blind, where each then, unaided, may pick up the broken threads and swing into the current of work the same as the seeing person.

In 1904, the State Library, as part of its extension work, opened a department of reading for the blind. Up to date it has about 6000 volumes of raised print, to be had on application, and delivered free, by parcel post, to any home in any part of the state. Notwithstanding this unusual advantage, it was soon discovered that in proportion to the number of blind listed, few were availing themselves of the opportunity. The fault lay partly in the fact that many persons stricken blind in adult life did not know how to read raised print. To overcome this obstacle, a department was instituted three years ago, in 1914, for the teaching of the blind. The state had not far to look for its teacher. Constant requests throughout the past years for books coming from the blind in the southern part of the state had been accompanied by the statement that "Miss Foley taught me to read."

For twenty years Miss Foley had been doing volunteer teaching in Los Angeles. Miss Foley is blind. She has been blind since childhood from preventable ophthalmia, an inflammation of the eye which easily could have been averted by a little precaution on the part of the physician. She is a graduate of the State Blind Institute of Berkeley. Proficient in many things, yet owing to the prejudice entertained by the public in entrusting anything to the blind, she was unable to obtain work with pay. Rather than remain idle she volunteered to teach reading to the poor and more unfortunate of the blind.

In the past three years, since assuming her work for the state, she has taught 200 adults and 15 children how to read. Classes were held twice a week, and those too poor, too nervous, or too old to come to her, she went herself to their homes. She not only teaches the blind, but as a matter of conservation of the eyesight she teaches those of failing eyesight who can not read the ordinary print. As part of her campaign for the Prevention of Blindness and the Conservation of Eyesight, she lectures in hospitals, before women's clubs, improvement clubs, parents' and teachers' classes. She is a member of the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness. She is fitting nurses to go to France to teach the blinded soldiers, and in connection with the Red Cross work, fitting nurses to assist the blinded on their return to this country.

She pursues, likewise, a vigorous campaign of public enlightenment with a view to converting the public away from the old notions regarding the blind, to the modern demonstrable fact that the blind can do other things beside beg, and that they need not be set apart from the seeing people. Miss Foley's ultimate dream is to have in this city the blind taught together with the seeing children, as now is done in New York, Boston, Chicago, Milwaukee and Cleveland. And where they are so educated the blind usually outrank the seeing. Miss Foley attributes this to the greater obligations imposed upon the blind—the need of greater effort to encourage the blind who come after them; the winning over the seeing people with a view to breaking down the barrier of separateness, and because of the severe training given the memory.

"The blind are educated never to forget," said Miss Foley. "We can not resort to pad and pencil as the seeing. We must have everything where we can get at it readily. I never take a note. I never look up an address. I sent out seventy-five Christmas greetings to my old pupils and I did not look up an address once. I tell my pupils they must not forget, and they do not forget. I tell them that it can be done, that I do it; and they do it. They walk on my courage.

"The greatest affliction the blind have to endure is this attitude of the public in thinking them apart. I have special classes to instruct the public in this. I instruct them when they buy a newspaper on the street from a blind person to act exactly as they would if he had his sight, not to buy a one-cent paper once a week and give him five cents, which is alms-giving; but to buy a paper each day at one cent, which raises the selling to the dignity of work. Often a college bred man with a family to support is forced through blindness to selling newspapers on the street.

"When people talk to us their voices choke with tears. We don't want tears. When they feel sorry for us they make us feel apart. They will ask my family in my presence questions that I am perfectly capable of answering myself. How long have I been blind? What caused my blindness? Do I dress myself and feed myself? Do I choose the colors of my gowns? Why we are taught combination of colors just as we are our geography. Or someone will rush in the room all excited about a gorgeous sunset she has just seen. Upon discovering my presence, she will check herself and say, 'Oh, I won't tell that now.' People never talk to us about sunsets, when that's what we are just crazy to hear about; nor of pictures. I have pictures all over my home. And they are always offering us armchairs. I just abominate armchairs, yet they are always offering me one. 'Come now, I will give you this nice armchair and place it right up close to the fire.'

"I have a pupil who was stricken blind a year ago. He was a great club man, but since his blindness he has shut himself away from all his friends. I found his family coddling him in armchairs. When the pupil is a man, the first thing I demand before teaching him to read is to walk by himself. Christmas he told me that he had walked four times about the square by himself. I said, 'That is the finest Christmas present I have had.' He said, 'I did that for you. I was prone when you found me. I am on my knees now; do not leave me until I can stand on my feet.' I am teaching him now to read, and I have the telephone numbers of his club friends. I'm going to ring them up and tell them to call. And there are going to be no women folks about to coddle him—just his men friends, as if nothing had ever happened.

"I never let my pupils know that I am sorry for them. I never let on that I know they are crying, even when a man's tears are falling on my hand all the time I'm giving him the first lesson. That would never do. I don't dare let them think their lives are hard. There were some little blind children being sent off to school. I was down at the train. They were crying, with the exception of a little Mexican girl of twelve.

"'Do you hear those children crying?' she said. 'I will not cry. Brave children never cry.'

"'Who told you that?' I said.

"'You did,' she answered.

"Yet I do not care for the constantly cheerful person. Nor do I believe in resignation. I believe with St. Paul in kicking against the pricks. Often when a man thinks he is resigned he is only consumed with self-pity. The resigned man is usually the overly sensitive man. The man who shuts himself away from his friends and his work usually is found to mope and grieve in silence. He is not the brave man. When a man is sorry for himself he is on the road to despair. The only successful blind man is the one who has attained complete self-mastery. Fight, I tell all my pupils; fight to keep in the current of life; lose if you must, win if you can, but fight."

Miss Foley looks upon her blindness not as an affliction but only as a handicap, one which merely imposes greater effort and greater obligations. In her present field she considers it her greatest asset.

"Being blind," she says, "I can speak with authority. The public will listen to me. It is a tremendous argument, for instance, when lecturing on preventable blindness, to tell them I am blind from a preventable cause. And the blind will listen to me when I tell them that I dress myself, and feed myself, and read and write and walk by myself. It takes someone who understands them to bring them out. Who better can understand my people—and the blind are my people—than one who is blind? I can go to the depths of their experience as a seeing person could not. People say to me that I never look tired. That is because of my enthusiasm, for I have always the object in view to bring back confidence, so that they will keep in the current. To do this one must have enthusiasm, all around, above, below, to all sides. Without tremendous energy and enthusiasm one couldn't otherwise build up the broken lives. They must have especial care and especial encouragement to get the best results.

"Before you can teach reading you must adjust family troubles. You find the family out of patience. The rockers are all placed wrong and the doors are half open. I ask how they would like to stub their toes or fall. Or the family coddles too much. 'Oh, Miss Foley,' my pupils say, 'if only you will tell my family to act natural; to go right along as if nothing had happened.' Often you can avert a domestic crisis. I found a blind wife of a laboring man. She was sitting around melancholy with nothing to do. I taught her easy things to cook, how to sew and tidy up. I am teaching her reading now. Her house is as neat as wax. Her home is happy. Had I not come there her husband would have left her.

"One must have infinite patience, and a sense often of the ridiculous. They will say, 'When I want you I will send for you. When I want the state to trouble about me I will let you know. I'm not on charity yet.' They are like hurt children who do not know what hurts them. They need you so badly and don't know it.

"I found a woman across the bay who had been blind for eighteen years. She was doing her own housework, but did not know how to read. She tried to shut me out of the house when I came. I told her I had come a long distance and was tired, and wouldn't she let me rest a bit? She said she didn't think she ever could read, that it would be too much trouble to teach her, and besides, her hands from housework were ruined for reading. I took her hand and found it in splendid condition. That was in November. She has learned to read two systems and to write. She rang me up the other day to tell me she had sat up till two o'clock at night reading the 'Sky Pilot.' She said she thought God had forgotten her, and that she had not been so happy in eighteen years.

"I found a young man of twenty-six, who was blinded by a chemical experiment. He was a graduate of the Carnegie Technical School. He was fighting in the dark with his head down. He was disagreeable and wouldn't speak to anyone. He would go out of the house when he knew anyone was there. I got on the mother's side, and told her to manage to have him in the house when I was there. I found that he was wiring houses, and that it took him half as long as when he had his eyesight. I told him he was the most wonderful blind person I had ever met.

"'Are you on the level, or trying to kid me?' he asked.

"I assured him that I had never heard of an electrician doing that before.

"'Oh,' he said, 'you don't think I'm a failure?'

"So I taught him to read. He would hide the book, so as not to let anyone know I was teaching him, and he would never walk with me on the street. Now he walks with me; reads on the street cars, even. He does wiring on Saturdays and Sundays, and runs a drug store in between. He laughs, whistles and sings.

"My oldest pupil was a man ninety ears of age. He had been a carpenter. He had been blind twenty years. I found his hands in terrible shape, crooked from rheumatism. His daughter didn't think he could learn. He was grouchy and would not receive me. I left a card in large type with instructions to leave it everywhere, on the bed, on the table, where he could feel it. In a few days she rang up. 'Oh, Miss Foley, father knows his letters. Come quick, but don't make too much of him!'

"'I suppose,' he said 'a part of your purpose was to have that card left everywhere.' I had to teach him spelling. He had not read for so long he had forgotten. I'd encourage him with one hand and pat him with the other. He has read now the New Testament, a part of the old, all about Lincoln (he is crazy about Lincoln) and any number of the histories.

"Colored people love the Bible, especially St. John. I taught a colored man to read. I sent for St. Mark, for that is a small volume, while St. John is in two volumes. He rang me up. He was very excited. I thought his wife had died. 'They didn't send me St. Marks,' he said, 'They sent me St. John. I know. It starts, "In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God." I'm reading child, I'm reading.'

"'Didn't I tell you,' said I.

"'Yes,' said he, 'but I disbelieved you.'

"He often told me that he walked on my faith like Peter did on the water. And they do walk on my faith.

"When I can't reach the many other way I teach by correspondence. People often tell me, 'There is no getting away from Miss Foley.' I taught the superintendent of a power plant by correspondence. He was thirty-seven years old when he was stricken blind, and he had a father to support. He was despondent. I taught him two systems of reading and how to write. He is now learning the typewriter. He makes out all his reports, and walks three miles to the different plants each day. Where he might have lost his position he now does as good work as he ever did.

"If you can only keep them in the current of life they can all do as good work as before. Reading is only a means to this end. Reading restores their confidence. It makes them more self-reliant. When I tell them that blindness is not an affliction, but a handicap, all the fighting blood that is in them comes to the call. When I urge them to do things for themselves, to make the most of their lives, I tell them the things they do help those who come after them. Their success blazes the trail for some other discouraged person. And when once they get this mental light they radiate it to others, to the seeing, as well as to the blind."

Since November Miss Foley has been transferred to San Francisco, to organize the work here and in the cities about the bay, exactly along the lines of her work in the south. Her office is in the Sütro branch of the State Library at Sacramento and Webster streets, where on Thursday, from 9 to 4, she gives lessons to those who can come to the library and to give information concerning the work. She invites the public.

BIOGRAPHY OF A. SUNDAY.

(By One Who Knew It Intimately.)

It began like all other Sundays, at twelve o'clock Saturday night, but with a damp nose and tears in its eyes, like the Saturday and Friday before it. This continued gentle warm dampness was fast threatening total destruction to the snow on the Divide. That was why the organizer took eight-hour-old Sunday morning by the hand and started out on the logging train, for over the "hump" was a strategic point in the campaign.

Logging trains are not provided with any ideas except to get logs out of the woods. Mortal passengers are merely tolerated. The tiny protesting engine starts suddenly like a shy colt, and you are thrown against the wooden backed seat, only to have the engine suddenly change its mind and stop, when you plunge madly forward across the seat ahead. After a bit, the engine leaves you altogether, while it disappears down a spur track, and its whistle echoes and re-echoes through the dripping woods. Soon it comes gaily back with several cars of logs, and when it jams them against you to make the recoupling! zig zag lightning and your spine are in the same class for exemption from further service!

After two hours of such massage treatment, Sunday and I reached the stage which was to take us "over the top." We had been told that the stage had a "dead X," but we didn't know that death was so catching and that everything would be dead. Do you remember the time you sat on one end of a "teeter" and the other person suddenly jumped off? That's a "dead X"! The ground came all the way up through your back and made your eyes sting. Four horses pulled us and the stage—called so only by courtesy as it was only an open wagon box set on the wheels and a board for seat,—through interminable seas of mud, while the deep ruts that were often struck made your teeter experience only a pleasant memory.

This dragging, grinding, straining lasted till noon, when the driver pulled up under the trees beside a sled and told me that this was where we changed. The mud had been gradually giving place to snow and ice, and runners were needed to go farther. The change was welcome, but joy was short lived. The heavy mail and express were shifted, from stage to sled and piled so as to form supports for our backs, seats were made for the driver and myself from packs of papers, and we started. Sunday's weeping had done its worst, for the roadbed was a thing of the past. While the top would be tempting with seemingly solid snow, one step of the horses, and crash! the teams would go through the eggshell surface to mud and swiftly running streams underneath. Or more often the horses on one side would break through while the two on the other side would stay on top, their hoofs about even with the backs of the others. The dizzy heights, then depths, to which my side of the sled continued to go can better be imagined than described. While I hung madly to the ropes that fastened on the mountain of baggage behind us, the driver frantically swung his cracking whip and urged

Johnnie and Bill to pull harder, harder. In an interval of lull, the driver would tell me that he "tipped over three times yesterday" or "there is the snowbank where a lady threw her baby when we tipped over Friday." Every crash through the ice, every snort of the horses, I confidently expected to be my last moment right side up. And Sunday kept on its gentle raining.

After what seemed interminable years, the middle of the afternoon brought us to the end of the first half of our journey. Heaven seemed very near by contrast, as we pulled across the bridge and into the ranch barnyard. We tasted the joy of a returned Siberian exile when we went into the house and saw a brisk fire and a set table. There we also met the other stage driver making the return trip, who warned us of hidden holes, of a shaky bridge, of a road gone out, so we must cross the field.

While I dried a bit, the driver again changed our cargo to a stage as we had reached the end of the snow. This time we were blessed with thoroughbraces—a sort of leather springs—a degree better than the dead X. The rest of the afternoon was uneventful. At seven we stopped at a ranch house just long enough to exchange our four wornout horses for two fresh ones. From then on trouble came thick and fast, for it was a four-horse sized job.

About eight a whistle by the road stopped us and we picked up a young man passenger wanting to ride to the next town. Fate was kind to us, but not to him when she sent him to us. Before it was over I'm sure he wished he had walked. In less than ten minutes the driver remarked, "There's a deep hole along here somewhere, I wonder where." But his wonder was at once over, for the right front wheel had found it! Down it went with a crunching thud, and we were all but plunged out over the horses. In their effort to pull the wheel out quickly before it sucked completely into the mud, they lunged forward and snap went a strap!

It was a choice, then, between unloading so as to lighten the wagon, pull it out, and load up again; or try to help the horses pull out as it was.

The two men decided to try the latter. Fortunately, we were by a split rail fence. So the division of labor was as follows: the driver guided and urged the horses, which at times became so exhausted that they actually sat down in the mud; I threw my weight and what strength I could onto a rail that had been put under the hub like a lever; and while the horses pulled and I pried, the other passenger would run a rail under the wheel to keep it from slipping back. "Down and so many inches to gain" was our signal for the next hour, for it took that long to get out of there; and the stage lanterns were our only light.

Nine o'clock—the time we had expected to arrive at our trip's end—saw us started again. The rain of the day had completely changed the road, so the driver was abroad in the uncharted sea of mud. At ten, the blurred lights of a little town across the valley came into sight, and the driver felt that midnight would see us through. Again his boast was no sooner made than ended. The center of the earth came to meet us, again we avalanched forward, again a horse careened and a strap broke. We had sucked down into another hole.

Then all was stillness. A sculptor looking for a new subject to represent "The end of the trail" would have found it there—the horses dropped motionless, the stage half upturned, the driver with his head dropped into his hands. For long seconds he sat thus. No one spoke. Then suddenly he jumped off into hip-high water, and fell to examining the broken strap. A dull moon was beginning to lighten up the mist a little, but only showed water in all directions. The other passenger took the reins, and with the harness spliced, renewed energy was put to getting us out. But each time the harness snapped again, and we settled deeper. It was useless.

With all hope abandoned of getting the stage out, the driver said he'd go to town after a buggy for me, but that plan did not appeal, and I asked to ride a horse. He was delighted to have me offer to do what he had hesitated to propose. How to get me out of the stage was the first problem, and how to find the attitude of the horse towards petticoats was the next one. The boys solved the first by making a "chair" of their hands and carrying me to a high mound where I could stand out of the water. The first horse that was tried settled the second question promptly by thrashing about when a lap robe was thrown over its back to "camouflage" a skirt. My heart sank. If the second should do the same, what was to become of me?

But it didn't. It rose to the occasion and accepted me like the courtier it was. And then the procession began. First went the other passenger carrying one stage lantern and leading the un"cooperating" horse, loaded with the through mail; then the stage driver carrying the other lantern and leading my horse.

A long three miles they walked. The mist cleared, the moon came out, a warm breeze blew. The town was gone to bed, but continued knocks brought the hotel keeper to the door. Sunday and I went to sleep at the same time, cold and wet, Sunday at the end of its journey, but I still fifteen miles from the end of mine.

But this is the biography of A. Sunday.

MEASURES TO BE SUBMITTED AT THE 1918 ELECTION.

By JOSEPH H. QUIRE, Legislative Reference Librarian, California State Library.

Twenty or more propositions will be voted upon at the coming general state election to be held on Tuesday, November 5, 1918. Eighteen constitutional amendments passed at the 1917 session of the California Legislature, an act of the same legislature suspended by the referendum and one measure proposed by the initiative are already assured of a place upon the ballot. The way is open up to within ninety days of the election to file further initiative measures and, according to present indications, one or more propositions relating to the regulation of the liquor traffic will have secured the necessary number of signatures within the required time.

The overshadowing interest in winning the war will leave little desire or opportunity for the usual study and discussion of the propositions up for popular approval or disapproval. But were these normal ante-bellum days, it is doubtful if the questions presented by the 1918 amendments and propositions would provoke the same state-wide interest that prevailed in 1911, when such matters as woman suffrage and the initiative, referendum and recall were presented for settlement, or in 1914, when, among the forty-eight measures on the ballot, were the prohibition amendments, the blue sky law and the red light abatement act. Only a few of the forthcoming propositions present an opportunity for a close and spirited division of opinion. The remainder are either little more than formal changes in structure or are only of local application.

Chief interest will probably center about the following propositions:

1. The initiative measure abolishing saloons and regulating the sale of strong alcoholic liquors, popularly known as the Rominger bill, because of the advocacy of a similar measure in the 1917 legislature by Senator Joseph A. Rominger of Los Angeles.

2. The "tax limitation law," placing a limit upon the amount of taxes which may be raised by a political subdivision, passed at the 1917 session of the legislature and suspended by the referendum.

And the following constitutional amendments passed by the 1917 legislature:

3. The health insurance amendment, enabling the legislature to provide for a system of health insurance.

4. Absent voting amendment, permitting voters absent on election day to vote within the state, or if in the military or naval service, outside of the state.

5. Excess condemnation amendment, permitting a political subdivision to take for a public improvement more property than that actually needed for the improvement.

6. State budget board amendment, creating a state budget board to present the state budget to the legislature and permitting one member to sit in the legislature during the debate.

The Rominger bill raises the question of liquor regulation in the form of an initiative act instead of in the form of a constitutional amendment, as in 1914 and 1916. The act, which consists of sixteen lengthy sections, has been summarized by the attorney general as follows:

"After July 1, 1919, prohibits keeping drinking saloons or similar places, regulates the traffic in and various acts relating to alcoholic liquors, prohibiting sales and various other dispositions thereof (except in specified cases or under specific conditions, some applying to vinous or malt liquors containing distilled liquors or more than certain percentages of alcohol, and others to alcoholic liquors generally, or to other particular kinds thereof) limits number of municipal licenses for sale of vinous or malt liquors for consumption elsewhere than on premises where sold, permits further municipal regulations, and prescribes penalties."

The measure is thus not so stringent as the two constitutional amendments voted down in 1914 and 1916.

The tax limitation law (California Statutes 1917, chap. 729), suspended by referendum, limits the amount which a county may raise by taxation to an amount not in excess of 5 per cent of the total amount raised in the previous year. This percentage may be exceeded only with the approval of a state board of authorization, created to enforce the act, and consisting of the State Controller, chairman of the State Board of Control, chairman of the State Board of Equalization and two other persons appointed by the governor, one of whom shall be a member of the State Board of Control. On the refusal of the board to permit a larger amount to be raised, the question may be submitted to the electors and is carried if a three-fifths affirmative vote is given. Any city, city and county or other political subdivision may become subject to the act by resolution of its governing body. Opposition to the law developed because of its threatened curtailment of school funds.

The health insurance amendment (S. C. A. 26, res. chap 57) adds section 22 to Article XX. The amendment is one of the results of the studies of the Social Insurance Commission, created in 1915 by the legislature, and represents the first step toward the introduction of the principle of health insurance. The section commits the state to the policy of providing for the welfare and support during sickness of those whose incomes are not sufficient to meet the hazards of disability and authorizes the legislature to establish a health insurance system, supported either by voluntary or compulsory contributions.

The absent voting amendment (A. C. A. 1, res. chap. 64) empowers the legislature to provide for the casting of ballots by duly registered citizens whose occupations require them to travel about the state or who are in the military or naval service of the United States. The legislature may provide for the casting of such a vote either at a subsequent date to election in the residence of the voter or in the city of the state in which the voter is on election day; and in the case of persons in the military or naval service, at any point in the United States where not less than fifty soldiers or sailors are stationed. A similar law is now in effect in nineteen states and a law permitting persons in the military or naval service to vote is in effect in eleven states.

The excess condemnation amendment (S. C. A. 16, res. chap. 49) revives a question which was presented at the elections of 1914 and 1915 and failed to carry. The amendment permits the state, any county, city or county, or municipality to acquire by eminent domain property in excess of that actually needed for an improvement. The amendment is presented to further the city planning movement by making it possible for the city making the improvement to profit by the resulting values given adjoining property or to be prepared for future needs.

The state budget board amendment (S. C. A. 15, res. chap. 48) creates a state budget board of the three members of the State Board of Control, the State Controller, and the Lieutenant Governor, ex officio member, to ascertain for each biennial period the financial needs of state offices, departments and institutions and report to the legislature not later than the twentieth day of the session. The report is to be made in the form of two bills, the general appropriation bill and an omnibus appropriation bill, carrying special items for improvements and betterments. The chairman or designated member of the board may sit in either house, in committee of the whole, during the debate on these two bills and may participate in the discussion.

Of the other constitutional amendments, two propose important changes in the judicial branch of the state government. One amendment (A. C. A. 61, res. chap. 79) reduces practically all of Article VI, relating to the judicial department to the status of a general law, amendable by the legislature instead of by constitutional amendment as at present. Such matters as the organization of the Supreme Court, the election and term of justices and the jurisdiction of the Supreme and Appellate courts would be affected. The amendment would leave in the constitution the provisions making the senate a court of impeachment and the section prohibiting judges from charging juries in respect to matters of fact.

The other amendment relating to the judiciary (S. C. A. 45, res. chap. 63) would add to the Appellate courts of the first and second districts (San Francisco and Los Angeles) a second division of three justices each. Existing provisions are also modified by making the presence of only two appellate justices, instead of three, necessary for the transaction of business or the pronouncement of judgment; permitting a Superior Judge to serve pro tempore on the supreme court, in case of a vacancy, by appointment of the other justices; permitting other justices of the Appellate courts, instead of Supreme Court justices, to appoint a justice from another district or a Superior Judge to sit in case of the disqualification of a member; and providing that whenever a person is appointed to a term which expires on the first of January following a general election, the person appointed continues to serve for the unexpired term, thereby making it unnecessary to elect a person only for the two months intervening.

Several amendments are proposed changing Article XI, relating to the government of counties, cities and towns. The excess condemnation amendment has already been mentioned. A change in section 16½ (S. C. A. 34, res. chap. 62), relating to the deposit of public moneys, would permit the state, a county, city and county or municipality to deposit moneys in banks outside the state for the payment of the principal or interest on bonds. By the same amendment, the legislature, or the people acting through the initiative, may determine the conditions under which public moneys may be deposited. These conditions are now fixed by the Constitution. The provisions of Article XI relating to city and county charters are supplemented by section 7½a (S. C. A. 13, res. chap. 46), which permits a county organized under general law and over 200,000 population to initiate proceedings for a consolidated city and county charter. The amendment is similar in its details to section 8½ of the same article, which sets forth the procedure for the formation of a consolidated city and county on the initiative of a city or city and county. The provisions of section 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ are modified (A. C. A. 2, res. chap. 38) to facilitate the San Francisco-San Mateo consolidation plan provided for in chapter 126 of the statutes of 1917.

The remaining two amendments to Article XI are of local application. Section 18 is amended to permit the city of Venice to pay certain indebtedness otherwise prohibited by the constitution (A. C. A. 62, res. chap. 80). Section 18 $\frac{1}{2}$ is added to permit the county of Los Angeles to pay certain indebtedness (A. C. A. 67, res. chap. 81).

Three amendments affect Article XIII, relating to revenue and taxation. Two of these provide for further exemptions of property from taxation, one of all property belonging to the Y. M. C. A. or Y. W. C. A. (A. C. A. 35, res. chap. 77), and the other of cemeteries not conducted for profit (A. C. A. 10, res. chap. 67). The third amendment permits the legislature to reimburse cities for taxes lost because of property exempted under section 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ of Article XIII, which allows a \$1,000 exemption to persons who have been in the military or naval service of the United States (A. C. A. 23, res. chap. 74). The amendment applies particularly to the city of Sausalito, in which is located a branch of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers.

An extension of the principle of eminent domain is proposed in the amendment to section 14 of Article I (A. C. A. 31, res. chap. 76). By this amendment, the state or a county or municipal corporation, drainage, irrigation, levee or reclamation district may, in an eminent domain proceedings, take immediate possession of the right of way desired by giving to the court reasonable security to pay adequate compensation for resulting damage.

Modification of section 3 of Article XII to make the liability of a stockholder in a limited corporation determinable by the legislature is made in A. C. A. 37, res. chap. 78.

Changes in section 9 of Article IX, relating to the government of the University of California, are proposed in S. C. A. 20, res. chap. 51. The amendment confers upon the Board of Regents full power of organization and government subject only to such legislative control as may be necessary to insure compliance with the terms of the endowments of the university and the security of its funds. The political code sections relating to the organization of the board are transferred to the constitution, with the change that the president of the alumni association is made a member ex officio.

Formal changes are proposed to the employers' liability amendment adopted in 1911 to bring the provision into conformity with the interpretation and administration of the present section (S. C. A. 30, res. chap. 60).

A pamphlet containing the amendments and propositions to be submitted at the November election, together with arguments for and against each measure, will be issued by the Secretary of State and mailed to each voter by the clerk of each county not more than twenty-five days nor less than fifteen days prior to the election. In addition to this aid, the State Library, as in former years, is prepared to answer questions and loan material relating to the measures proposed and will welcome the fullest use of this service for furnishing voters every opportunity for making intelligent decisions on the questions presented.

As soon as war was declared by the United States every library in the country began to ask what was to be its share in this great war for democracy. Keeping the public informed as to the progress of events was important, but not enough. The library must take an active vital part in winning the war. But there was no precedent to fall-back upon and so each library has had to dig its own trench and attack the enemy in the way best suited to the vicinity in which it is placed. Although local needs must always be considered, nevertheless there are broad lines along which we are all fighting and the work in one library may give some suggestions helpful to others.

The Oakland Free Library received its first impetus at the time of the second food conservation campaign. We had placed food cards in the library during the first campaign, but this had proved a hopeless failure. Our readers took no interest in the matter and the big pile of cards remained practically untouched.

"Why have our readers not signed?" the members of the staff asked one another. "They represent our most loyal citizens and yet see how they have failed in this big work! What can we do to make every person coming to the library realize the seriousness of the food situation and want to help?"

Each staff member had a different solution.

"We must first let them know that the campaign is in progress and remind them of this fact over and over again." Suggestion one.

"We must impress them with the importance of food conservation by giving facts and figures," said another.

"And we must tell them how they can follow out the orders of the Food Administration," added a third.

A committee on war work was appointed by the Librarian and went quietly around from member to member, collecting ideas, and when the second food conservation campaign was announced the Oakland Free Library was ready to do its "bit."

Bright colored posters lined the entrance hall; some picturing piles of luscious fruit called attention to the use of local food, and others presenting strings of fish, fresh from the water, and good looking game proclaimed the saving of the meat supply. Gayly colored cards called attention to the use of cornmeal and barley, instead of wheat and on the first landing of the stairway, so placed that no one entering the building could fail to see it, was the pictured figure of Liberty, holding out her arms and pleading for the signing of the food pledge.

The big square upper hall afforded an opportunity for a still more telling display. Here two large bulletin boards attractively presented information of interest to housekeepers. Not only were facts as to the need of food conservation posted, but practical suggestions such as uses of stale bread, and recipes for cornmeal muffins. Cakes without sugar were also displayed. On a table, in the middle of the hall, were placed various samples of flours that could be substituted for wheat. Behind this sat a young woman in the food conservation uniform, ready to explain any question which might arise in the mind of the housewife and to furnish her with a food conservation pledge card.

A poster fastened to the door of the Reference Room called attention to the food conservation table, where the latest books on home economics and food values had been placed, as well as a card catalog of helpful recipes.

"Here's some of the best material in the library," said the head of the document department, holding out an armful of Farmer's Bulletins. "But I'm afraid it is useless to put them on the tables because no one will get beyond the dreary looking covers."

"Let's dress them up," suggested one of the staff. "Look," she held up a pamphlet box. "We'll cover three or four of these with red, white and blue paper, paste pictures of honey cake and luscious cornbread on the outside, print the legend 'Suggestions from Uncle Sam,' and the curious housewife will not rest until she has peeped inside."

So this is how we got our government documents before the Oakland public and how it has become known that the latest and most concise information for housewives is found tucked away in the bright-colored pamphlet boxes on the food conservation table. For of course the food conservation table has remained a permanent feature of the Oakland Library and the five hundred food conservation pledges secured during the week of the campaign was only the beginning of the library war work.

Before the posters were taken from the walls a request came from a woman's club that it be allowed to use them for a food conservation meeting, and this suggested the plan of establishing a permanent collection of war posters which might be borrowed as a whole or in part by any organization in the city.

One of the members of the staff developed great talent in making artistic posters and another took the Red Cross course in dietetics so that she might be prepared to direct the poster and bulletin-board work. Gradually the poster collection of the Oakland Free Library began to be known and was in constant use, either at some club, school, or cooking demonstration.

But while these posters were being displayed elsewhere new ones were constantly appearing on the two big bulletin boards, which had been retained in the library hall, and these were always supplemented by a food demonstration prepared by one of the domestic science departments of the public schools. One week would be "Save the Wheat," and the posters would call for the use of rye and cornmeal, while the show case would display soy bean muffins, rye bread and cornmeal pan cakes; and again our bulletin board would proclaim the saving of sugar and our show case would present samples of war candies made from honey, molasses and even potatoes and prunes.

"But we must reach out beyond the walls of the library," we told ourselves; "We must make it known to those not frequenting the library that we have information on food conservation which is invaluable to the housewife." And so we sought the co-operation of the newspapers, and published lists of books dealing with home economics, and descriptions of the week's display of posters. But the spoken word is usually more effective than the written, so we established a lecture bureau and announced that any organization desiring information on food conservation books need only to apply to the Library, and not only would the room be hung with attractive posters and sample books displayed, but a speaker would be sent to tell them of the need of food conservation and the books which would prove most helpful to the housewife.

Food conservation, however, is only one phase of the war work which a library is called upon to do, and the Oakland Free Library has realized this keenly. At Christmas time the Red Cross Campaign was entered into with as much enthusiasm as the food conservation had been. A booth for subscription was placed in the hall and posters pleading for new members for the Red Cross met the eye on all sides.

Books for the soldiers was also taken up with much enthusiasm and a money campaign conducted which netted about six thousand dollars. Then came the call for the books themselves and within a few weeks thirty-three thousand books were collected, sorted, catalogued and twenty-seven thousand sent to camp libraries. The slogan for the campaign was furnished by a member of the library staff and resulted in a most unusual supply of good literature.

“Old books and new books,
But first of all good books.”

This was the call that the library sent out. “Don’t give the books that you like but the books that a soldier would like,” was the key note that was sounded for the drive, with the result that the citizens selected the best books from their homes to send to our War libraries.

Only the work of the main library has been described in detail, but each of the eleven city branches and the thirty-two county branches has been doing similar work to the limit of its opportunity.

This has been but the beginning of the war work which the Oakland library expects to do. As a rule, other organizations touch only certain classes of citizens, but the library reaches out to all and the Council for Defense recognizing this calls upon the library as one of the first and most efficient organizations to present matters of national importance to the public.

LIBRARY WAR PUBLICITY.

By A. L. COWELL.*

I recently read in the Library Journal a discussion as to whether the Librarian's occupation should be regarded as a profession or just a job. Any doubt on this point must arise from failure to understand the scope of a real Librarian's work.

There was a time when a public library was regarded as a charitable institution to furnish reading matter for those who were too poor or too stingy to buy it for themselves. Probably no librarian ever had that conception of the work, but now even those of us who may be denominated rank outsiders are beginning to understand that the public library is an institution with twofold functions that vitally affect the whole social organism. In the first place, it is a part of our educational machinery, and, second, it is an important phase of our business machinery.

In considering the library as an educational institution, it is important to remember that an educated person is not necessarily one who knows a lot, but one who knows how; particularly, one who knows how to discern his needs, to find what he needs, and to apply what he finds to his needs.

We have all probably forgotten most of what we learned at school, but that is not serious if we have retained the habit of mastering difficulties, which it is the chief purpose of schools to develop. Out of seven years study of Latin and eight years of Greek I still have a faint memory of the facts that "All Gaul is divided into three parts" and that, when a Greek of Pericles time became very angry and wanted to swear, he said "Pros ton Kynon," which means "by the dogs," and from which it appears that our "doggone it" has a classical origin. While these memories may not have much practical value, I do not count the time spent on the classics as wasted.

For those who have learned how to discern their needs and where to find what they need, the librarian has only to supply such material as may be called for, but the vast majority of us have learned the lesson imperfectly and therefore a great deal of effort is needed in order to bring to the attention of the public what the library contains and how it may be made of practical use to every person in the community.

When considered as a part of the business machinery, the library seems naturally to demand publicity. Advertising is the life of business, and business men are so accustomed to judge of the importance of things by the degree of public attention they attract, that it is not strange if they overlook the possibilities of a library with an overmodest librarian.

A great deal of the public's money is spent for the maintenance of libraries, and this expenditure can not be fully justified until every person to whom the library can render service has learned what it can do for him and has been induced to form the habit of using its facilities to the utmost.

*Mr Cowell was formerly editor of the Stockton Mail, and is now an attorney in Stockton.

It was the vision of this possibility in library service for all the people that inspired Mr James L. Gillis in his years of effort for a comprehensive library system for California.

The agencies of publicity are numerous. Most effective of all are undoubtedly the newspapers. Of great importance also are the activities of the library itself. Are you sure that every person who comes to your library understands all that the library can do for him or her? If not, then, both by personal conversation and by printed slips inserted in books given out at the library, much valuable publicity may be given. Moreover, every patron has numerous friends who may be reached if the patron is interested.

To secure proper co-operation with the schools is, of course, vital to the success of any library. The habit of using the library can best be developed in the child while at school, and if your teachers are not making the utmost practical use of your facilities you should find out why.

Organizations are effective agencies of library publicity. Every community has its churches, lodges, clubs, unions, brotherhoods, sisterhoods, leagues, guilds, alliances, associations and other social, business and professional organizations. All of them are interested in special problems. Some of them make good use of the library and others know little of its possibilities. Through letters to be read at their meetings and through news items in their special publications, effective publicity can be secured.

Under various circumstances circular letters, book lists, charts, signs and special window displays will be found effective.

We have read in the papers a great deal about "pitiless publicity." This is not the kind for which the Library should seek, but there are numerous adjectives in the same part of the dictionary which suggest methods of securing effective publicity. I suggest that library publicity be: Planned, Persistent, Pithy, Persuasive, Pat and Patriotic.

In planning publicity, be sure to know the most effective agencies. Get personally acquainted with your newspaper men. Find out what kind of material they will publish and then try to give them all the real news of your work written in such style that it will be interesting to the readers of the papers.

You are doubtless acquainted with the school authorities in your territory, but perhaps you have not appreciated the importance of personal acquaintance with the officers of the various organizations represented in your community, particularly those of a business, industrial and professional nature, and yet this is of the utmost importance if you would make your library effective as part of the business machinery of your locality.

Persistence in advertising is a cardinal virtue. If you do not get results as first, do not become discouraged, but study your methods to see whether the failure is in any measure your own fault or whether you are laboring to develop habits in the people, which must necessarily be a slow process.

Pithy publicity is the only kind that counts in this busy age. If you have received a consignment of new books, do not give the newspapers a full list, which will be about as interesting to the average person as the delinquent tax list, but pick out a few books and call attention to their striking features.

Try to prepare your publicity so that it will appeal to the people. Every one is naturally interested in something and can be led from the object of his interest to something akin to it, whereas he might resent an attempt to lecture him.

By "Pat" I mean that the publicity should be adapted to the needs of the community and to the ability of the library to supply those needs. "Advertise what you have and have what you advertise" is a maxim of publicity. Incidentally, I might remark that you should boost the library and not the librarian. One of the most successful publicity experts known in history, the Apostle Paul, once remarked in explaining his methods, "I magnify mine office."

Having used up all my time in these introductory remarks, I come to the subject assigned to me, which is contained in the suggestion that your publicity should be Patriotic.

Primarily, of course, the war service to be rendered by the libraries is in connection with the war work of the American Library Association. Unless peace comes soon, the funds which were raised a few months ago will be expended and more must be secured. The books which you are now collecting will be worn out and furthermore if our armies must be doubled, calls for more literature must be made. You have learned, in the campaigns already undertaken, the fundamental lessons of success, and experience will teach you how to be even more efficient in the future.

The movement for food conservation can receive special impetus through the libraries by the display of posters, by the distribution of circulars to your patrons and by calling attention to books and magazine articles on substitutes for foodstuffs that must be conserved and methods of drying and canning fruit and vegetables.

We are about to enter upon a campaign to sell $3,000,000,000 in bonds of the Third Liberty Loan, and at all times the people have opportunity to invest in War Saving Stamps. Success in this financing depends upon arousing a general realization that the winning of the War is the business of every one of us. Of great value in making the War popular are such books as "Over the Top" and "America's Case Against Germany" and magazine articles telling of the gigantic expenditures for which funds are needed. You can help wonderfully by giving the widest possible circulation to all such literature.

I need not add that the best possible publicity for Liberty Bonds is to buy a bond and wear a button of the Third Liberty Loan.

Miss Mary Barmby, Acting Lib'n.

A new branch was established at Arroyo Sanatorium near Livermore.

The branch at the County Infirmary has been enlarged, made into two sections and is in much better working order.

Two exhibits were held during March. One was for the Federation of Women's Clubs and its reason for being was to show what the libraries of California are doing to help win the war.

The second, an exhibit at the County Teachers' convention, showing the County library work with county schools, was held in connection with the four High School libraries of Oakland.

Work for food conservation and food production has been carried on quite extensively through the county. The county librarians and attendants of the branches have been working in close relations with the District Food Chairman of each of the towns.

in Northern France. Sailing was slightly delayed but she will be doubtless "somewhere in France" by the time this note is printed.

The Book Drive for War Library Service was duly held in the week, January 21 to 26. During that time the Women's Army, as it is called, gathered some thirty-three thousand books and many tons of magazines. These were gathered in six schoolhouses and a vacant store, and from there were brought in drays to the two vacant stores near the Library, the use of which was donated by the owners. From there all the month of February a staff of workers sorted, classified, cataloged and pasted the books. As fast as ready they were shipped to Camp Fremont until twenty thousand had been sent. A thousand books each were also sent to Forts Miley, Baker and Barry, and to the Defenders' Club in Oakland, and to Sacramento for the Aero School, and smaller amounts to the Benicia Arsenal, and to the Benicia and Palo Alto Defenders' Clubs, and to the Radio Station at Loleta.

The results have been satisfactory as shown by the following two paragraphs from Mr Henry, Librarian at Camp Fremont, dated February 18th:

"I want to thank you and your staff and any one else who had a hand in sending us such quantities of books representing the best the people in general are reading. I am curious to know when and how you got them. Our soldiers are enjoying supremely the opportunities the library affords."

And from Mr Putnam, Librarian of Congress, dated February 22d:

"Mr Henry has written me of the extraordinary aid that you and your staff have given in supplying books for the library at Camp Fremont.

I hope you will believe our heartiest appreciation of this service—a service indispensable in a situation which we could not reach promptly nor effectively."

On January 14th Mr Henri Richer of the French Artillery addressed the staff, and March 5th Mr Henry came up from Camp Fremont and talked interestingly about the work there.

From the 16th to 19th of January the local lodge of Elks held a Sportsmen's show in the Auditorium for money to mount the group of Elk for the Museum, and realized something over two thousand dollars for the expenses of the group.

The California Library Association's program committee held a meeting at the Librarian's house on March 25th and made large progress in planning out the events of the days from June 18th to 22d.

The Oakland Rotary Club has recognized the Library Profession by creating the classification in its membership, and has honored me by electing me to represent the profession in the club.

One Friday afternoon is devoted to the children of the primary grades and on the alternate Friday the children of the second and third grades are given the time. Each Friday afternoon there are between thirty and forty children in attendance. Mrs Briggs finds with her other library duties that she has not the time for story telling for the children of the higher grades.

During the week previous to March 15th the county librarian visited all the communities in which there were Women's Clubs and enlisted the club members in the campaign for books for the camp libraries. In communities where there were no clubs, the custodian of the branch library conducted the work. The custodian of Calipatria Branch is now Miss Audrey Patterson.

A window exhibit was made in March to introduce the French relief work for the fatherless children of France. Heading was made of "War work for women." One poster was of a poverty-stricken looking child, saying "Help the fatherless children of France." The window was filled with baby clothes made from old clothes, and hats, etc. It was quite a remarkable display and aroused the interest of many people who want to adopt an orphan, and of women who have volunteered to make the clothes for the babies and children. We are starting a section for that work here.

Up to date we have received 1400 books for the soldiers. All branches and schools have not reported as yet. These are being pasted and written by High School girls.

A war luncheon for all the committees engaged in war work and for all women of Imperial County was held in March. The County Librarian gave a talk on the War library work, and made a plea for donations of their best books.

The Library has recently received as a gift a bronze bust of Benjamin Franklin. The bust is a replica of the head of the large statue on the Chestnut street front of the U. S. Post Office in Philadelphia. There is a replica of the entire statue in the neighborhood of the Place Trocadero, Rue Franklin, Paris.

A splendid purchase has been made for the Mason California Collection in the securing of a set of B. F. Steven's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America, 1773-1783. Beautifully printed on hand-made paper. Twenty-five vols., folio, new half morocco extra L. 1889.

A drive for books was carried out in conjunction with the Branch of the County Free Library during the week March 18 to 25, in which over 1600 books were secured. As the population of Claremont can not be estimated at more than 1500, it means that the average was something over one book for every person in Claremont.

The most interesting event in connection with the library was the book race, during the drive week, to get books for the soldier boys, the boys against the girls. They only had four days to collect the books. Six magazines of the same kind constituted a volume.

The whole school is divided into what are called consultation groups, girls and boys separate. There are about twenty-six of these groups. Each group collected its books and at a general assembly, reported the number of books and number of students. Three fast accountants kept score; one from the faculty, and a boy and a girl to represent each side.

The girls won by a majority of two hundred books. The total score was 1414 volumes. The highest percentage in consultation groups was made by the girls.

The boys were quite chagrined to be beaten by the girls, and are still bringing in books for the soldier boys.

TROPICO BRANCH, GLENDALE FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY. Charles H. Cushing, Lib'n.

The Tropico Library became automatically a branch of the Glendale Library in January and has since that time been under the supervision of Mrs Danford, the Glendale Librarian.

As the consolidation of the two cities left the city clerk's office vacant in the old Tropico City Hall, the lower floor of the building was remodeled and all converted to library uses. This more than doubles the floor space of the library, giving us a commodious reading room on one side and circulating department on the other with charging desk in the center.

A workroom has also been provided and the library hours increased. It is now open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. An assistant from the main library is in charge during the morning.

Changes in the Staff. During the first quarter of the year, the library has lost three valuable members, who have gone to Washington to work for the War Department. Those leaving were Helen Court-right, assistant librarian; Gladys Hanna, desk assistant; and Marion Gwinn, assistant in the children's room. We miss them all, and our only consolation is that they are doing needed work for the government.

Miss Helen Donnan, formerly librarian of the Masonic Library, Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Miss Mary Goodfellow, a graduate of the Riverside library school, have been added to the staff during the quarter. Miss Corina Kittelson, formerly of the Denver Public Library, and the Kern County Library, will join the staff in April. We are meeting the difficulties caused by losing some of our workers, in part, by employing more high school boys as pages. They now do most of the putting away of books and shelf straightening.

Art Gallery. In January, the Art Gallery showed a collection of water colors by Carl Oscar Borg, and a smaller collection by Miss Grace E. McKinstry. Following this was an exhibit of reproductions of famous European pictures, loaned by the Los Angeles Public Library.

In March, the traveling exhibit of the California Art Club, and a collection of paintings by Max Wieczorek, were shown.

Library Work for Food Conservation. The library has been most fortunate in securing Mrs C. C. Adams as a volunteer worker to take charge of the educational work on food conservation that the libraries are asked to do by the government. Mrs Adams is thoroughly trained in domestic science, and has been chairman of the home economics section of the state federation of women's clubs. She has enlisted several other women to help her, and in the last two months much has been accomplished.

First, the library has been advertised as headquarters for information on war food. A bulletin board, and a collection of books and pamphlets, are placed in a prominent place on the main floor. An information desk on food is near; and a volunteer worker is here all the afternoon, and part of the morning, to answer questions. Free recipes are kept here for distribution; and a classified file of tested recipes, for reference. Samples of the new flours are also on exhibit, and help to attract the attention of the public.

Realizing that many housewives never come to the library, but that all go to the grocery store, we have used the stores as aids in educating the women. The library printed 150 large posters, reading as follows:

"Help win our war by feeding hungry Europe. Europe needs certain foods; we can use substitutes. The Long Beach Public Library is headquarters for war food information. Read the bulletin board. Ask for publications. A food expert is at the library in the afternoons to answer questions. This grocery distributes war food recipes furnished by the library. Ask for a recipe when you buy a new kind of flour."

The library printed at the same time 5000 copies each of five recipes for the new flours. These were supplied to the grocers for distribution to customers who wanted information on using the substitute flours they are now compelled to buy. The distribution of the posters and recipes to the 150 grocers of the city was done without cost or effort on the part of the library, through the courtesy of Mr Steepleton, the secretary of the local Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association. The cost of printing posters and recipes was about $20.

Mills College has published a little pamphlet of recipes, called "War breads and meat substitutes." We learned that if we would take 1000 of these, we could secure them for $16.50; though in smaller quantities they cost 10 cents each. The Chamber of Commerce advanced the money to buy 1000, and we have sold several hundred at the library for two cents each. They are to be on sale also at the Y. W. C. A. cafeteria, which will offer on its bill of fare some of the foods noted in the pamphlet.

Through the co-operation of Mrs Adams and Miss Franklin, head of the art work in the grade schools, all the children from the fifth through the eighth grades were required to make posters on food conservation. The results were surprisingly clever and interesting. About 300 of the best posters were exhibited for two weeks at the main library. One reason for requiring the posters was to impress the food rules on the minds of the children; and through them to reach their parents.

Special articles on our work for food conservation have been printed in the local papers, and Mrs Adams and her helpers have spoken before several women's organizations.

Books for Soldiers. Owing to the small number on our staff at this time, and other local conditions, this library did not make an intensive campaign for books during the week in March specified. The public was invited to bring books to the library, posters were placed about town, and notices put in the papers. Our plan is to start a steady stream of books, and keep up the collection indefinitely. About 700 books have been received to date.

The big event for us in the first quarter of 1918 was the book drive for the soldiers. We have collected about 50,000 books. We have shipped nearly 10,000 to Camp Kearny, and in accordance with instructions from Washington plan to send 10,000 more to Camp Cody in New Mexico, 1,000 to Camp Balboa, San Diego, 1,500 to San Pedro, and 1,000 to Nogales.

Nine hundred and fourteen books and bound magazines have been added to the library since school opened in September. Many pamphlets have also been added, largely agricultural in subject matter.

The pupils and teachers contributed more than 550 books to the collection for the Soldiers and Sailors Camp Libraries.

The change to one hour periods the term beginning February 1. has made "study periods" the exception rather than the rule as formerly, so that many pupils come now to the library during the latter or study part of the recitation period, by permission of the recitation teacher. The librarian has thus an opportunity to instruct the pupils in the methods of finding the definite reference they have come for. Use of catalog, magazine indexes, etc., is therefore more easily remembered by the pupils, when they have been of actual personal use toward a definite end. This was the weak spot in much of the lecture work on use of books and libraries—lack of personal curiosity at the time the instruction was given. Teachers often bring a class for the whole or part of the period, to direct them to certain reading or to see pictures. This is an ideal working out of the "supervised study" idea.

The most important work of the library during the last quarter was the collecting of books for the soldiers. Eight hundred and thirty-two volumes were donated by the students and their friends for the first book drive. During the Christmas vacation these books were prepared for Camp Kearny Library by the staff and shipped early in January. Six hundred and forty-seven volumes have been collected thus far for the second drive and books are still coming in. These will be prepared for circulation by the students of the school. §PASADENA [FREE] PUBLIC LIBRARY. Miss Nellie M. Russ, Lib'n.

Pasadena's Book Drive week has gone "over the top" beyond all expectations. It began with enthusiasm, and has not let go long enough for the librarian to enumerate the volumes, while it bids fair to continue right on through the year. Many of the books given are copies of the very latest literature, purchased by tourists, read, and turned over to send on to the camps. The books given have been a source of gratification because of their high quality, and the earnest words of regard and interest which accompany them would inspire the pen of a Barrie to weave them into a story.

Dr Daniel F. Fox, one of the Advisory Board of the library, was one of the representatives at the recent conference at Camp Kearny, which met to plan for vocational reading for the soldiers looking toward readiness for new occupation after the war. Through him the library is pledged to provide books for such reading.

In library activities everything is being made secondary to war service.

A new school library has just been formed, taking in all the juvenile books from the near-by Northeast Deposit Station, and the circulation for the first month shows a marked increase.

Service has been discontinued at the Western Union and the Laundry because there was no further need for it at present.

During the quarter branches were established in the following school districts: Elkhorn and Hames.

Changes in Custodians.—King City: Rev. Geo. A. Lowes, librarian, and his daughter Jean, assistant librarian, moved to Broderick, Yolo County, and Mrs Floyd Zoellin was appointed librarian, beginning work March 16, 1918. Spreckels: Miss Elizabeth Riley was appointed librarian to take Miss Anna Balanac's place. Miss Balanac moved away from Spreckels in January. Stone Cañon: H. B. Jones, custodian in place of L. Reynolds, who resigned March 20, 1918. Washington: Miss Emma Robley in place of Miss Winifred Robley.

The Junior Red Cross has been organized in all the schools of Monterey County. The County Free Library is keeping in close touch with the work and helping whenever possible. The librarian attended and addressed two teachers' meetings during the quarter, one to discuss the Junior Red Cross work and the other to plan for the Joint Graduation to be held in Salinas on May 31st.

Several trips to visit schools were made with the County Nurse during the quarter.

Miss Winifred Robley of the Washington Branch left for Washington, D. C., in March to take a position with the War Department. We miss Miss Robley very much as she also assisted in the Central Office.

Bulletin boards have been made for each Community Branch to display food conservation material.

The book drive for soldiers and sailors was actively carried on during Book Campaign Week. Several of the branches responded very generously and books are still coming in.

We had welcome visits from Miss Eddy and Mrs Henshall of the State Library during the quarter. A trip with Mrs Henshall to visit school districts was planned but had to be postponed on account of bad weather and the condition of the roads.

Signs were put up at all branches visited which were not already displaying them.

Riverside Library Service School.—The Riverside library service school closed a very successful session March 2.

Dr Arthur E. Bostwick, St. Louis (Mo.) Public Library; Mrs Ida Mendenhall Beseler, formerly of New York State Normal School at Genesee, now of Anaheim, Cal.; Miss Alice M. Butterfield, Riverside Public Library; E. P. Clarke, President, California State Board of Education; Joseph F. Daniels, Riverside Public Library; Miss Lillian L. Dickson, Riverside Public Library; Lyman Evans, District Attorney, Riverside, Cal.; Mrs Mabel Frances Faulkner, Riverside Public Library; Miss Adelaide Hasse, Chief, Documents Division, New York Public Library; Miss Margaret Mann, Head Cataloger, Carnegie Free Library, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Lieutenant Geo. E. Price, Military Instructor, Polytechnic High School, Riverside, Cal.; W. Elmo Reavis, Head of Pacific Library Binding Co., Los Angeles.

Caroline Hubbard Bailey, East Auburn, Cal.; Mrs Nellie C. Bartlett, Pocatello, Idaho; Nelle M. Bate, Mason City, Iowa; Mrs J. E. Boyle, Chico, Cal.; Helena F. Curtiss, La Verne, Cal.; Dorothy Deming, East Auburn, Cal.; Margaret Eastman, Sacramento, Cal.; Jessie Fraser, Twin Falls, Idaho; Joanna L. Gaylord, Los Angeles, Cal.; Margaret D. Guthrie, Corsicana, Texas; Jessie A. Harris, Whittier, Cal.; Carolyn Alpha Henry, Santa Ana, Cal.; Lucille Hood, Pocatello, Idaho; Mildred H. Pike, Whiting, Iowa; Elizabeth M. Sheppard, Ontario, Cal.; Betty Mary Smith, El Paso, Texas; Grace M. Stoddard, Missoula, Montana.

This is the smallest class in attendance ever held but we are at war and the whole western country feels it very much indeed.

The Arnold reception is one of the events of the Riverside Library service school short course. Mr and Mrs Chas. C. Arnold on February 22 entertained at an evening reception at their home on Victoria Hill. The young women on the staff assisted Mrs Arnold.

For winning the war the Riverside Public Library and the Riverside library service school have organized in the following manner:

The school and the staff have an association known as the Riverside Library League which is also the War Savings Society. Miss Joanna Gaylord, Hollywood, Cal., 1918 class, is the president, and Miss Nelle M. Bate, Mason City, Iowa, same class, is the secretary. This league has volunteered to do all the record work for the Riverside War Relief Council. That council has charge of all the money raising campaigns and is organized over both county and city.

The Council is preparing a very thorough directory and record of all persons who contribute either money or services. The record goes into details and a part of the record will be useful for a survey of alien enemies. It will become also a source of genealogical and biographical reference in years to come. After the war has been won the whole record will be deposited in the Riverside Public Library as in a department of archives. It will be carefully guarded with some measure of confidence and secrecy.

At this time there has been given over for the use of the Council one section of the reading room (about 20 by 40 ft. of floor space) the whole of the map room and all of the bindery. During a campaign the Council has an organization of more than two hundred workers; more than a dozen typewriters are in use and more will be added.

The new aviation camp situated at Alessandro has been named March Field. It is nearly ten miles from the center of Riverside. The Library League is making plans for branch library service at March Field, another branch at the soldiers' and sailors' club in the city of Riverside, and such other stations as may be needed for the enlisted men and civilian employees.

The general entertainment committee of the Riverside War camp committee service will be assisted by the Library League and Miss Lillian Dickson, reference librarian, is chairman of one of the committees having such matters in charge. It is planned to have our course in storytelling completed at an early date so that a number of the 1918 class may be ready to tell stories to soldiers as a part of the entertainment plan.

The Riverside Library service school will hold a summer session beginning June 24. Announcement will be made in a few days. The 1918 summer school will offer both elementary and advanced courses. Teachers from east and west are being employed and Miss Theresa Hitchler of Brooklyn Public Library will conduct the work in cataloging and classification in both elementary and advanced courses.

Miss Dorothea L. Smith, Riverside, 1916, has resigned the librarianship of the State Normal School at Chico, California, and is going to France as index and filing secretary of the Stanford Women's Civilian Relief Unit. This is the second Riverside girl to go to France, the first being Miss Hilda M. Smeal, who is driving an ambulance.

Several other Riverside graduates have gone to Washington or are on their way to enter civilian service; among them are Lela Clapperton, Julia Clapperton, Nelle Sanford and Lilla B. Dailey.

Miss Winifred Woods (1916-17 long course) has been employed as librarian at National City, Cal., public library.

Miss Helen Mason (1916) is a member of the staff of the Riverside Public Library.

Miss Elma Schowalter (1916) is employed in a physician's office in Los Angeles.

Miss Rita C. Keane (1917) student at the University of California, is cataloging the University high school library.

The Librarian is a member of the executive committee service which assumes the work assigned by the Fosdick commission. Meanwhile, library service to the community and the county is in operation as usual.

The drive for books for soldiers will bring us about five thousand volumes by the middle of April. The American Library Association is sending eighty volumes of choicest and latest books on aviation and we have now the problem of placing a man or woman or sufficient custodianship of some kind at the camp.

The Library staff has also been very useful in the food conservation publicity, furnishing exhibits of all kinds and speakers for addressing the clubs and other gatherings.

Librarian.

On February 25th, our High School buildings were destroyed by fire. At the time that the fire was discovered in an adjoining building our students were assembled for chorus work, and no time was lost after the danger was made known. The Library was the first department to receive attention and practically all of the books were safe out of doors before the fire reached it. This was true also of the greater part of our furniture and equipment.

On March 29th, a bond issue of $30,000 was authorized by the voters of our district and plans are being made for fireproof buildings. Our Library is a branch of the San Bernardino County Free Library.

§A. K. SMILEY [FREE] PUBLIC LIBRARY. Miss Ardena M. Chapin, Lib'n.

Our patrons have continued to take a very keen interest in making scrapbooks for our sick and wounded soldiers and sailors. About 600 have been filled, sets of 50 having been sent to Camps Kearny, Lewis and Cody and 125 to the American Library Association for its distribution.

Fully 5000 very acceptable books were collected during the Intensive Book Campaign, March 18-25. As they were received they were stacked near the entrance where they proved to be an inspiring sight to all. The public schools gave generously and, in collecting, the Boy Scouts were of great assistance. For historical interest a photograph of the immense pile of books was taken.

On April 1st Miss Chapin was given a leave of absence of a few weeks to organize the library at the Y. M. C. A. Naval Training Station at San Diego. This is one way the library feels it is doing patriotic service.

We have begun a new catalog for our library. We are ordering cards from Indexers, Chicago and Library of Congress. We are putting new labels on our books. We have ordered more magazines this year than ever before. The new ones include "Atlantic," "Century," "Current Opinion," "Scribners," "Harpers" and "World's Work." Through our bulletin boards and with the assistance of our art department we have tried to spread the gospel of present problems and our share in meeting them. This year we have a deposit of city library books which we are circulating along with our own. Many pupils are drawing books here who would not go to the City Library.

SAN DIEGO CO. FREE LIBRARY, SAN DIEGO. Miss Jennie Herrman, Lib'n.

Miss Katharine Post Ferris, acting librarian for six and one-half months in the county library, returned to Kings County, and Miss Herrman assumed charge January 2, 1918. Miss Herrman addressed the Normal Heights Welfare Club Friday evening, February 1, "On the progress of the county library."

The Board of Supervisors granted an increase of salary to Miss Taber, Miss Kobler and Miss Kneeshaw, making a total of $85 a month each, beginning April 1. The Board of Supervisors voted unanimously to lease the greater part of the fifth floor of the Scripps Building, seven rooms and the hall, for county library purposes, and the library is to be adequately housed for the present. lease is for $80 a month and runs for five years. The library will be moved May first.

East San Diego library building, a $10,000 Carnegie gift, is progressing nicely and will probably be ready June 15.

Miss Herrman and Miss Tabor attended the Sixth District meeting held at Camp Kearny.

Mr Ferguson visited the county library while he was south to attend the Sixth District meeting.

The library had some gifts from the county branches of both books and money for the book drive beginning March 18.

Civil Service examinations, for the positions of junior and senior assistants in the Public Library, were held on the 12th and 13th of February. Seventeen successful candidates passed the junior assistant examination, and twenty the senior examination. These lists will supply all appointments for positions in the Library for the next two years, unless vacancies should occur in the principal assistant positions.

The long-needed expansion in the main library building was made possible January 1, 1918, when annex quarters were rented in an office block just back of the public library. Here over five thousand square feet of floor space have been secured for the reading-room and children's department. All current periodicals and newspapers have been placed in the reading-room, which is open during the same hours as the main library.

The children's room has been attractively furnished with cream-colored bookcases, and a nursery frieze in lavenders and blues. It is open from nine to six daily. Miss Helen Dysart, the children's librarian, commenced a series of story hours in January, which are to continue every Saturday morning, at ten o'clock, until the summer holidays begin next June. Since moving into the enlarged quarters the children's circulation and attendance have been greatly increased.

In January the Common Council and the Mayor approved salary raises for the year 1918, which have increased by five or ten dollars a month the salaries of twenty people on the library staff.

Miss Elizabeth Bailey, in charge of the registration department, left April first, to accept an appointment in the Ordnance Department at Washington. Miss Bailey's position in the public library will now be occupied by Mrs Emma George Spruse, who entered the library as a junior assistant last July, and was among the first in the recent Civil Service examinations for promotion to the position of senior assistant.

Two new junior assistants who have been added to the staff of the public library in March and April are Miss La-Reine Walton, a graduate of the University at Lawrence, Kansas, and Miss Louise Carson, a graduate of the Illinois State Normal School.

During the opening months of the year all surplus energies in the library have been devoted to patriotic interests. A War Savings Society has been formed among the library employees, which numbers twenty members. One thousand dollars were subscribed for Liberty Loans during the third drive. A number of the staff have, out of library hours, clipped selected short stories from back numbers of magazines, and mounted them in paper covers, for hospital circulation in camps and abroad. The April book drive brought more than two thousand volumes for camp libraries from citizens of San Diego. These books are now being prepared for camp circulation by volunteers from the staff, outside of library time.

LA JOLLA LIBRARY ASSOCIATION LIBRARY AND BRANCH, SAN DIEGO PUBLIC LIBRARY. Miss Nina T. Waddell, Lib'n.

The La Jolla Library Association has sustained a serious loss in the passing away of Mrs Olivia Mudgett, a charter member of the association and a member of the Board of Trustees from the date of its incorporation in 1899, until her death, January 17, 1918. During that time Mrs Mudgett held various offices and was at all times a faithful and interested worker for the institution.

There has been no change of policy in the conduct of the library. Work with the schools increases steadily, the teachers drawing without limit whatever is necessary as supplementary to the textbooks. Collections of mounted pictures covering many subjects are much used by the teachers.

A bulletin board in the reading room, bearing the legend "War Notes" is kept supplied with up-to-date items clipped from the daily and weekly papers—items which are of real interest and instruction, but which did not appear with glaring headlines and might be easily overlooked. Good cartoons and war poems are much appreciated.

The librarian has already collected six hundred volumes for the A. L. A. Library at Camp Kearny, and there will be more as people realize the growing needs of the service.

The Y. M. C. A. and the 8th Infantry Branches at Camp Fremont have been discontinued, both now being served by the A. L. A. Camp Library.

A joint meeting of the First and Second districts of the California Library Association will be held early in May, probably at Camp Fremont.

Work with the Food Administration continues. A set of posters made of colored pictures from the Ladies' Home Journal and the Delineator, accompanied by suitable recipes, and captions adopted from the Food Administration publications, has been sent to all branches. There are thirteen posters, each one provided with twelve address tags, stamped and dated a month apart—thereby covering a whole year. This means that automatically each branch receives a new poster once a month, as it sends its old one out. The majority of the posters urge the use of corn, with attractive recipes to illustrate the possibilities of this commodity, but there are others on saving fats, sugar and meat.

The posters sent out by the Food Administration have been distributed, and the exhibit of literature on Food Conservation is being shown in the windows of the store, where the county library branch is kept. Next month this will be transferred to the Daly City Branch, which is a grocery store, and it is the plan of the custodian to combine her wares with the library exhibit to make her window attractive.

The circulation of the main branch has increased considerably during the past quarter due to the activity of the high school pupils. The county library has gathered a collection of books unavailable at the public library or the high school library for the book reviews listed for the four classes. War books have been those for which there is most demand.

We have taken into our system all books sent to the camp before the library was in operation with the exception of books loaned by local libraries.

We have established three branches outside of the camp. Two of these are at Young Women's Centers or clubs, which are near the camp and have been organized largely because of it. We have also loaned the Palo Alto Public Library books. This library is much patronized by the men of the camp and we believed that they should have some of our books for which they have a great call.

We are building 100 carriers or shelves to hold books in as many company mess halls. The honor system will be used, allowing the men to charge the books out to themselves at any time. Eventually we expect to place these books in every mess hall in camp.

We have had many calls for books on philosophy, psychology, new thought and books on personal efficiency. The war books and manuals are in great demand, Grey, Chambers, Bowers, Beach and London are probably the most popular authors of fiction.

We have been interesting the chaplains in the possibility of taking books with them when they leave Camp Fremont. One of the chaplains has signified his intention of taking 1400 books with him for a regimental library for use in France. It now seems possible for each man leaving here to take one book with him. These books may be reassembled on the other side as a regimental library if the chaplains so desire.

In accordance with Mr Putnam's instruction by telegram, the librarian attended the meeting of the Commission in San Francisco on March 15. The meeting was devoted almost entirely to short talks by the different representatives present, each telling what his organization represents and what it is trying to do. An excellent idea of the work of the Commission as a whole was received.

All Library "sins of omission" this year at least can be laid to pressure of camp work. During the last quarter, as before, the gathering of books for Camp Fremont men seems to have taken most of our time and interest. When W. E. Henry from University of Washington arrived in January, there were about 5000 donated books which had been prepared for circulation and distributed among the Y. M. C. A. buildings. When books from Washington began coming arrangements were made with Stanford by which members of the staff helped in afternoons and evenings, working in the basement, making book cards, shelf list, classifying and filing. Books were sent in from other libraries; Oakland alone sending in 20,000 books gathered from Bay cities.

Later with the opening of the Camp Library, members of the library staff went over to the camp and helped arrange books on shelves. With the Camp Library in running order and in the hands of Mr Richards, there is less need for help, but we go over to help in filing and revising cards.

During March it has been the gathering and preparing for circulation of books for the Palo Alto National Defender's Club. A most delightful, home-like, comfortable room has been furnished by the women of Palo Alto as a club room for the soldiers, and has already proved its usefulness, having from 300 to 400 men an evening. The gathering of books for the club was handed over to the library. About 1000 books have been prepared for circulation and members of the library staff are on duty certain afternoons during the week.

which was built for the housing of the library, and is rented by the County Free Library. The one room is of adequate size, and artistic appearance, and the community is greatly pleased with the change.

February 6th to 9th, the County Librarian made visits to the following county libraries, collecting and comparing data concerning the work with schools: Merced, Fresno, and Kings. The trip was both pleasant and profitable.

During the quarter, the County Librarian has made 63 visits to schools and branches, and delivered nine addresses before various clubs, organizations and schools upon literary and patriotic subjects. She has also assisted largely in organizing Junior Red Cross auxiliaries in the rural schools.

The Book Drive of March 18th to 25th, has resulted in the collection of a number of good books for the camp libraries, which, owing to the lack of time, due to a shortness on the staff, have not yet been prepared for shipment.

TULARE FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY AND BRANCH, TULARE CO. FREE LIBRARY. Mrs Rosa D. Reardon, Lib'n.

It is cheering to note that, notwithstanding all the war work, our circulation continues to increase, and we are issuing more history, biography and books on the war.

The library is doing its "bit" by joining in all the campaigns to win the war—for food conservation by having the food pledges signed in the library, distributing literature in all books issued, making bulletins and having posters in prominent places in the business district, making lists of books and pamphlets and having them conveniently arranged to attract attention.

The response of our people both to the "soldier's book fund" and request for books has been very generous; we exceeded our quota for the fund and have sent two hundred and fifty books to Camp Kearny.

The library helped in the organization of a school for foreign-born men and women; also provides books, pamphlets, etc.

Soldier scrap books have been given to the "Camp-fire Girls" and twelve are ready for next shipment of books.

ROSA D. REARDON,
Librarian.

VISALIA FREE [PUBLIC] LIBRARY AND BRANCH, TULARE CO. FREE LIBRARY. Mrs M. J. McEwen, Lib'n.

One shipment of two hundred and fifty books donated by patrons of the library have been sent to Camp Kearny. Many magazines were gathered and donated to the Red Cross.

The stores, clubhouses, Red Cross rooms, hotels, theaters and restaurants have co-operated with the library in exhibiting posters on books for soldiers.

The library has maintained for some months an exhibit of war books and pamphlets, also posters on Food Conservation.

The war pictures received each week at the library create much interest for the readers. The school children are especially interested and watch eagerly for each new picture as it comes out.

The library loaned, through the Tulare County Free Library, six hundred and fifty books, mostly medical, to the Sutro Branch of the State Library.

The Board of Trustees at their March meeting gave an increase in the salaries of the librarian and assistant librarian. The Board also voted to purchase a flag

§DEAN HOBBS BLANCHARD MEMORIAL [FREE PUBLIC] LIBRARY. Miss Mabel Gertrude Wood, Lib'n.

Owing to the splendid co-operation of the grammar and high schools, both in regard to the teachers and the pupils, we have been able to collect and prepare for shipment 1068 books to send to the soldiers. In addition to books, we have nine Victrola records, two good musical instruments for them, besides $2.00 in cash.

Up to date, since November 1st, we have distributed 2300 sheets of war recipes gleaned from various sources, each sheet containing at least five or six well-trying recipes. Besides these, numerous Government pamphlets pertaining to agriculture and home vegetable gardens have been distributed.

On March 9th, Miss S. E. Blanchard, president of the Board of Trustees, and the librarian, attended the dedication of the camp library at Camp Kearny.

The Librarian has just finished classifying and largely assisted in the cataloging of the Grammar School Library of this city, a library of 1200 to 1500 books. There is perfect co-operation between the schools and the library in Santa Paula.

DIRECTORY FOR LIBRARY SUPPLIES AND OTHER ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Many public libraries waste a great deal of time and money before they find good places to get supplies. The plan is to give all libraries the benefit of the experience of the older libraries of the State by listing under different heads the houses that have been found to give satisfaction, the names and addresses being furnished by the older and larger libraries of California. In this way suggestions will be given as to where different sorts of books may be bought, where books may be rebound or periodicals bound, where library furniture may be bought, etc., both in California and in the East.

If any information is needed about the firms listed below which can not be obtained from the firms themselves, the names of the libraries recommending the different ones will be sent to any library upon application to the State Library.

LIBRARIANS WITH THE COLORS.

An Honor Roll.

The American Library Association wants a card index of the name of every librarian who is in the military or naval service of the United States or Canada, or any of our Allies.

May the Association have the help of all who read this announcement, and know of librarians who are serving with the Colors?

Send the information, if convenient, on a white, punched 3 by 5 ordinary catalog card.

1. Name (inverted) of man in the service. (If hand-written be sure to write very legibly.)
2. Name of library with which he was connected, town, and state or province
3. Position he held in library; e.g. librarian, cataloger, general assistant, etc.
4. Military position now held (rank, arm of the service, etc., e.g. First Lieutenant, Infantry).

Mail this card promptly to the American Library Association, 78 East Washington street, Chicago.

We want a service flag at the Saratoga Springs Conference the first week in July, and we want every librarian in the service to be represented in that flag.

But even more important, the A. L. A. wants to keep this Roll of Honor as a permanent and valued record, which in due time will doubtless be printed.

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION,
George B. Utley, Secretary.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

What is represented to be a new map of the State of California has recently been published. This map, called the Engineers Official Map of the State of California, is dated 1918, but a close examination of the 8 shows that it is a 5 made over into an S. This seems to be the only change in the map. Librarians should be on the watch so as not to be deceived by false representations.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the California Library Association will be held at Hotel Del Monte, June 18 to 22, 1918. An interesting program is being arranged, and the first meeting will be held on Tuesday afternoon, the 18th, at 2.30 o'clock.

The following rates have been quoted at the Hotel Del Monte, and taking the high cost of living into consideration, they are very reasonable.

For two people in room, with or without bath, $4.00 per day for each person, separate beds, if so desired.

For one person in room, with or without bath, $4.50 per day.

These rates are American plan, including room and board. The management has granted these rates to any who wish to stay over Sunday.

It is hoped that as many as possible will stay at the hotel, as so much is to be gained by personal contact outside of the meetings. Entertainment is being planned for each evening.

Sixth District Meeting.

The sixth district of the California Library Association met in convention at 11 o'clock, March 9, 1918, in the American Library Association Camp Library at Camp Kearny. Miss Julia Steffa, president, in the chair.

Miss Sarah E. McCardle, president of the California Library Association, extended greetings to the meeting.

Everett R. Perry explained the history and purpose of proposed amendments to section 6 and section 12 of the constitution of the California Library Association.

Because of the postponement of the division review of the 40th Division to the afternoon of March 9, the program for the dedication of the American Library Association Camp Library was merged with the morning program for the sixth district meeting.

On the arrival of Major General Frederick S. Strong, Commanding Officer of the 40th Division, business was suspended for the informal dedication of the Camp Library.

M. J. Ferguson, State Librarian, and State Director of Library War Service, made the presentation of the building. He gave the assurance that librarians were anxious to do their generous share in aiding to win the war and said that camp libraries were one evidence of that desire.

Major General Strong accepted the building on behalf of the men of the service. He voiced his appreciation of the work which the library was accomplishing in instructing the men in the history and aims of the war and expressed his gratitude to the American Library Association and the librarians of the south for the library building and the opportunities which were placed before the men.

The business session was then resumed. Nominations for district nominator for the California Library Association were called for. Miss Jennie Herrman placed in nomination Miss Julia Steffa and Miss Althea Warren seconded the nomination. The secretary took the chair. As there were no further nominations, the question was put and Miss Steffa was unanimously elected.

Mr Ferguson then spoke on "The librarian in war time." He said that California was better equipped for war service than most states because of the comprehensive library system. He outlined the growth of the system and told of the interest it was provoking in other states.

Mrs Ethel Hueston Best, author of "Prudence of the Parsonage" and other recent popular books, spoke entertainingly of how she came to write the books and of the mission which she wished them to serve.

Mrs Frances M. Carlton-Harmon, Library Publicity Director for California for the United States Food Administration, spoke on "War publicity through libraries," giving concrete suggestions for the extension and expansion of the work already being done by libraries.

Chaplain Arthur W. T. Hicks, 159th Infantry, who had been unable to be present for the address of welcome, spoke briefly of the value of books and magazines in the camp.

J. H. Quire, Camp Librarian, spoke on "The Camp Kearny Library and its needs." He sketched briefly the history and organization of Camp Kearny and the development of library service in the camp. He estimated the needs of the camp to be 15,000 additional books, of which number he asked that 13,000 be sent by gift from individuals. Of these gift shipments, he asked that about 10,000 volumes be fiction and the remainder non-fiction.

The meeting adjourned at 1 o'clock to the mess hall of Company M, 160th Infantry, for luncheon.

After luncheon, the members took seats on a special grandstand provided through the courtesy of the Y. M. C. A. and witnessed the review of the 40th Division. At the conclusion of the review, one party visited the Knights of Columbus building and Y. M. C. A. No. 3, and another party returned to inspect the camp library.

COUNTY FREE LIBRARY LAW.

The "California county free library law and circular of information for applicants for certificates of qualification to hold office of county librarian in California"

was published in News Notes of California Libraries, April, 1911, and later reprinted in pamphlet form. The edition being exhausted, a revised edition of the circular was printed in News Notes of California Libraries, January, 1914. This has been reprinted as a pamphlet. Copies will be furnished by the State Librarian.

NEXT EXAMINATION.

The Board of Library Examiners desires to call the attention of librarians to the examinations which will be held at Los Angeles on June 7-8 and at Sacramento on June 14-15 for those persons who want to qualify for the position of county librarian under the California County Free Library Act of 1911. The Board feels that the nature of the work, its importance in the development of the educational life and institutions of the state, its relationship to industrial and economic conditions and the compensation offered successful candidates who receive appointments make this service worthy of the best efforts of the best material in library circles. Of the work which has been done in California since the enactment of this law the examiners feel a justifiable pride; and they are anxious that the new candidates who may present themselves may profit by the experiences of those who have been in the service, and may also bring to this work the best foundation upon which to build a successful career. If, therefore, a librarian who expects to take the examination will add to his general education and his technical training actual experience in a county free library, his chances of passing the examination with creditable showing will be enhanced. Naturally service in any sort of library, however, will give the candidate a certain vantage ground; the wider the range of work, the better are the chances of passing the test with high grade.

California counties have their peculiarities just as have the counties and peoples of other states. One who is unfamiliar with those conditions and peculiarities would in the beginning enter into the service with a certain handicap. The Board, however, wishes to assure librarians who live without the borders of California that they are not barred from taking the examinations. While the tests will only be given within this state and for the year 1918 at the places and times mentioned above, the lists are open to all library workers who have educational and professional qualifications.

To the younger members of the profession particularly the Board would urge that they give the fullest possible consideration to the subjects usually covered in library work, and that they become as familiar as possible with the special laws and conditions under which they would serve should they pass the examinations and receive an appointment.

APPLICATION BLANKS.

All who wish to take the examination should file applications with the Chairman of the Board. For application blanks or further information address the Chairman of the Board, M. J. Ferguson, State Librarian, Sacramento, California.

CALIFORNIA STATE LIBRARY.

The bill establishing the California State Library was signed by Governor Peter H. Burnett, January 24, 1850.

SUSAN T. SMITH, in charge.

The Reference Department furnishes information to any inquirer. It furnishes books to public libraries on request of the librarian, and to any other educational institution on request of its official head or its librarian; to individuals through the signature of a state officer, of the Librarian of the local library or of the official head of any other educational institution or on receipt of a $5.00 deposit; to a club or grange on request of its president, secretary or librarian. In counties having county free libraries, all requests must be made through the county free library.

The State Library pays the cost of transportation as follows: to any general branch of the county free library that requests books for general library service and is located in a part of the county supporting the county free library; to any (elementary or high) school district branch of the county free library that has joined the county free library and is wholly in a part of the county supporting the county free library; and, for school service only to any (elementary or high) school district branch of the county free library that has joined the county free library and is wholly or partly in a part of the county not supporting the county free library. In every other instance the charges both ways are paid by the borrower. All express companies grant a half-merchandise rate to the borrower on return shipments, and a half-merchandise rate both ways on shipments sent to libraries.

From time to time the State Library is adding slides and stereographs for circulation. The following list gives some idea of the subjects covered by the collection:

CATALOG DEPARTMENT.

IDA G. MUNSON, in charge.

The work of the Catalog Department is proceeding along two parallel lines: the cataloging of the regular additions of new books, and the recataloging of much material needing a fuller treatment than it has heretofore received.

During January, February and March, 2905 volumes were cataloged, adding 15,104 cards to the catalog.

CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT.

EUDORA GAROUTTE, in charge.

The California Department aims to have a thoroughly good collection of books on the history and description, resources and industries of the State, as well as the works of California authors in all departments of literature. These are made accessible by means of a card catalog. Full names and biographical sketches of California authors, artists, musicians, pioneers and early settlers are being secured, together with their photographs. The collection of bound periodicals is quite large. The Department also contains about 6000 bound volumes of newspapers, a file of which is being indexed with reference to the history of the State. Students will be assisted in their work.

Pioneers and Early Settlers.

Alexander Williamson May, a pioneer of '49, is still living and has a lively recollection of many of the stirring events of the early days. His card, which is now on file, contains much interesting information. Mr May's home at the present time is in Oakland.

Henry Custer, a native of Switzerland, came to California in 1849. He was a civil engineer of the highest rank and was employed by John A. Sutter to survey and locate the towns of Eliza and Butteville, also to make a map of Feather River from Yuba City to Nicholas. Later Mr Custer was connected with the U. S. Coast Survey, also assisted in the Pacific railroad, northwest boundary and U. S. geological surveys. At the time of his death, which occurred in Switzerland, he was in the employ of the Swiss government.

Samuel Bell was another pioneer of note. He served as State Controller in the early fifties. He also represented the county of Mariposa in the legislature of 1853.

Other cards of interest received are as follows: Franklin Warner, Thomas S. Hawkins, Mrs Margaret Hostetter and Nathan Weston Blanchard.

LIBRARY SCHOOL.

BEULAH MUMM, in charge.

The Library School was established in 1913 for the purpose of helping to supply the demand for trained librarians in California. The year's course begins in September and ends in June. It aims to cover the various branches of library science needed in all libraries, and at the same time places particular emphasis on the needs and conditions of California libraries.

College or university graduation is required for admission. Applicants must be at least twenty years of age, and under thirty on the day of the beginning of school. There is no tuition charge, and all necessary supplies and textbooks are furnished by the Library.

A copy of the Circular of Information may be obtained, upon request, from the State Librarian, Sacramento, California.

During the quarter several lectures have been given before the class by visiting librarians and others, on various topics relating to library work. On January 23d, Mr Robert Rea, Librarian of the San Francisco Public Library, gave two lectures, one on book selection, and the other on the choice of editions. In February, Miss Katharine Post Ferris, Librarian of the Kings County Free Library, spoke to the class, describing the work in Kings County. Later in the month Miss Lutie E. Stearns, of Milwaukee, Wis., who was making a tour of the West, gave two lectures, one on The rise and fall of the modern magazine, the other on The librarian, the library and education. Early in March Mr W. E. Henry, Librarian of the University of Washington Library, who had been in charge of the Camp Fremont Library at Palo Alto, gave a very entertaining account of his work with the soldiers. On March 15th, Mr Charles A. Murdock, of San Francisco, gave some personal reminiscences of Bret Harte, whom he knew as a young man in Humboldt County. Mr James D. Blake, of Newbegins, San Francisco, spoke to the class on March 26th, on "Selling books and giving service, versus giving books and selling service," bringing out the analogy between the book-selling business and library work.

During his week's stay at the State Library, March 25-29, Mr J. H. Quire, Camp Librarian of the Camp Kearny Library, gave a series of three lectures on legislative reference work, and the final lecture in his course on public speaking.

Soon after the lectures on book binding the class visited the State Printing Office, and was shown the various activities of that institution.

SUTRO BRANCH.

Laura Steffens, in charge.

A FEW MEMORIES OF THE LATE ADOLPH SUTRO

AS I RECALL THEM AT THIS LATE DAY.

By FRANK B. MERCER, Spokane, Washington.

It was during the month of September, 1876, that I first met Mr Adolph Sutro. I had been told by a friend that he wanted a practical printer and newspaper man to publish a weekly newspaper in the town of Sutro, Nevada; that the town had about 350 inhabitants—too small a community to support a newspaper; but that inasmuch as the newspaper was, in a way, an auxiliary of the Sutro Tunnel enterprise Mr Sutro would make a liberal cash allowance monthly towards its support, and would agree with the proper man to pay that allowance for one year out of his own pocket.

It was with such information that I called upon Mr Sutro at the office of the Sutro Tunnel Company in San Francisco, and introduced myself. Fortunately I found him at his office, for he was a very busy man in those days, much of his business calling him to the East and to Europe. I found him very approachable and stated the nature of my call.

“Are you a practical printer, can you run a Hoe cylinder press, and have you had experience in gathering news and writing it for publication?” he asked.

I told him I was a practical printer, but as regards press work my experience had been limited; I could better express my ability as a pressman after trying out his Hoe cylinder. I had had some experience in reportorial work.

“Well, I believe you are the very man I am looking for,” he remarked with an air of assurance. He informed me that the newspaper was at the time being published, but that, owing to certain happenings, some of which he related, he had decided to make a change of publishers. The compensation and agreement were about the same as I had been informed.

“When can you move up to Sutro and go to work?” he asked.

I named a day. It was satisfactory. Before leaving he very cordially shook hands with me and told me to look him up at Sutro when I got there. It was certainly a happy occasion for me, for I had a consciousness that I was about to be brought into close touch with a man prominent in doing big things on the Pacific Coast.

I arranged matters so I could stop over for a day in Virginia City on my way to Sutro. A friend had given me a letter of introduction to Mr Conrad Wiegand, a prominent assayer and metallurgist on the Comstock, who soon afterwards passed away. Mr Wiegand was glad to meet me, coming as I had from a very dear friend. He was much interested in knowing my business, and I told him of my engagement by Mr Sutro. After a while he said he did not like the idea, and thought I could do better. He was a conservative man and a passive friend of Mr Sutro and told me much of the feeling in Virginia City against Mr Sutro: he (Mr Sutro) was visionary and not responsible; he had presumed to oppose and even to fight men who controlled the big mines of the Comstock Lode and the interests of the California Bank; he had forged ahead with the work of the Sutro tunnel on his own individual prerogatives, and there was a strong doubt as to whether he would be able to complete the enterprise.

This is only a part of what I was told. It was not given me with "relentless hostility," but in a calm and deliberate way. I afterwards learned Mr Wiegand's talk was a rather general view held on the Comstock against Mr Sutro, due, in a large measure, I could see, to antipathy shown him by prominent interests and the daily press of Virginia City.

I was a young man—in my early twenties—and naturally was a bit disquieted. But I decided to go on to Sutro, and I did.

After embarking on my new work and getting my bearings, I became better acquainted with Mr Sutro. He showed a decided interest in my work and in myself. I was invited to his home and presented to his family. Later on he would call at my office during early mornings of my easy days, and ask me to ride with him to Virginia City. He was a great lover of good horses, and it was a rare pleasure and satisfaction to ride behind the team of bays at his disposal. If the business of the trip was delayed until or after noon hour, that meant a good dinner at the French Rotisserie before our return home. There was nothing slow about Mr Sutro when it came to eating. The best was none too good. And the distinguished service received, I saw, was due to liberal tips. I was fortunate in enjoying many of these trips and dinners.

There was little going on in or about the Sutro tunnel when he was there that he did not see or know. Hardly a detail missed him. If the fuel supply or the supply of timbers for the tunnel were adequate in size he would look their characters over, and if they were not up to specifications there was "something doing." If the accommodations and conveniences of the miners going on or coming off work could be improved he was quick to see it and act. If the foreman of the tunnel accosted him with details of the work he was an apt listener and conversed freely, and frequently had suggestions to make. And though the civil engineer approached him with data or information while thus engaged, his mind switched to the new work without an effort and with an unusual show of familiarity with the facts. Since those days I have met a number of men engaged in big work with many details, but I have never seen Mr Sutro's equal in acquaintance with every branch. He was quick to see a fault.

I can not recall a single instance when Mr Sutro was justly charged with mismanagement, waste of money, inattentiveness, or using his position to gain private ends. I remember a gift that was to be made to him. It was a large solid silver ice pitcher of a beautiful pattern and design, with elaborate engraving. Nothing, it seemed, was left undone to make it perfect. I can not recall who instigated the gift, but I do recall that a large explosive powder concern with which the Tunnel Company dealt considerably donated a large sum toward its purchase. The gift was to come to him from his miners. Learning the facts of its purchase, and evidently thinking it might be regarded by some as a bribe, he refused it. The last time I saw the pitcher it was in possession of a saloon keeper in the town of Sutro. He was going to raffle it for a good cause.

Once Mr Sutro came into my office on a cold day and asked: "Mr Mercer, where do you get your stove wood?" I answered: "Off and from around the big woodpile." "Don't you know that woodpile belongs to the company, and that the company is not running this paper? What authority have you to use it?" I answered: "Precedent." "Precedent! Huh!" As he walked out he slammed the door.

Home life was much to Mr Sutro. He certainly dearly loved his children, and without an exception that I can recall, they loved him. Frequently he would invite a town friend or one or two of the young men about the works to spend an evening at his home. That usually meant a full attendance of his family. He was an excellent entertainer. There was seldom a lack of sociability, conversation and pleasure. On one occasion, I recall, he requested during the evening that each one present read a selection, recite a piece, sing a song, or tell a story. When it came to my turn I was somewhat embarrassed, but read a selection from Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." Each did his or her part. On another occasion, several young men friends being present, he requested that each of them tell what influenced him to come West. I frankly confessed my reading Mark Twain's "Roughing It" influenced me. On still another occasion he asked that each of the children tell a fairy story. I believe only the two youngest responded, so he himself told stories for the others. He loved home life and he loved to have his children hover about him. I sometimes believed they realized this fully, for occasionally one of them would take, what appeared to me, advantage of the occasion to exact a promise from him, which always meant, if made, fulfillment.

During my several years in the town of Sutro "dabbling in mining stocks" was at times rampant. I really believe two-thirds of the people of the Comstock and contiguous country, say above the age of 18 years, participated in the "get rich quick" game. The quotations of Comstock mining shares were, to say the least, violent at times, often changing 25 to 40 per cent during a day. This applied to both rising and falling values. Pointers, in many cases alleged to originate from the inside, were frequently circulated, and the public "bit" freely. I verily believe that never before the Comstock days nor since the rich discoveries made there has there been known such gambling and speculation. Many in very moderate circumstances were known to have become possessed of from $100,000 to $1,000,000. But, like most gambling, the ones who stayed with it, with comparatively a few exceptions, lost out in the end. It is a sure fact that out of perhaps one hundred people in Virginia City in those days who became possessed of such amounts as above mentioned, not ten emerged from the final collapse with even a small proportion of their gains. Mr Sutro was always violently opposed to this gambling, and often denounced "the methods employed," as he termed it, "to rob the working class." I have heard him sharply denounce the sanity of his best friend if he knew he was buying and selling stocks, and was always quick to tell him where he would "get off" in the end. I was censured severely several times, so I know he never "minced" talk in expressing himself.

Mr Sutro at all times had a sincere regard for his employees and those associated with him. In very many cases this regard amounted to an actual friendship and a fondness. This was evidenced by the many favors he is known to have bestowed on former employees years after he left the tunnel enterprise, by giving them practical assistance. An illustration of his feelings along these lines is shown in a letter that he wrote to Mr H. H. Sheldon, assistant superintendent of the Sutro Tunnel Company under him for several years. It was written in March, 1880, shortly after Mr Sutro resigned as superintendent of the Sutro Tunnel Company. How the letter came to be among my personal effects at this time I can not explain, unless it was handed me shortly after its receipt by Mr Sheldon for publication in the Sutro Independent, and I retained it. The reader will note that his friendly spirit went out not only to those associated with him in his great work, but also to the people of the town of Sutro. It is as follows:

San Francisco, Cal., March 3, 1880.

H. H. SHELDON, Esq.,

My Dear Sir: You are already informed that last week I handed in my resignation as superintendent of the Sutro Tunnel Company, and being prevented from paying you a personal visit just now, which I had intended to make immediately after the election, I take this method of saying good-bye to you and all the boys who have so faithfully stood by me during the many years of struggles in carrying on a work to almost completion, which will stand as a monument to the enterprise and perseverance of all who assisted in its construction.

Please tell all in my behalf, and especially those who have had charge of any of the departments, that they have my sincerest and heartfelt thanks for all the friendship, assistance and earnest good will they have ever shown in my behalf and in the interests of the company, and that although I am no longer superintendent I shall take as lively an interest as ever in the welfare of the inhabitants of Sutro and in the success of the work itself.

I shall probably before long be able to pay you a visit, and in the meantime with many regards and kind wishes to all, I remain

Very truly yours,

ADOLPH SUTRO.

The term "visionary" is generally applied to people opprobriously, but in Mr Sutro's case it can not be so applied. The man certainly had remarkable insight. He could mentally delve into the workings and perplexities of an undertaking and very often see his way through. To accomplish an end meant, perhaps, caution and energy of the strongest type, but if with his vision he could see success, that meant action. I never knew him to "fall down" on any great work he undertook. It was thus with his conception of his great Sutro tunnel enterprise. With his mind's eye he saw clearly what the construction of the tunnel meant in the development of the great Comstock Lode. The work meant a vast outlay of money, and he was at the time a poor man, financially. It meant, also, among other things, hard and indomitable energy and work, and a high degree of optimism. He saw his way, formulated plans, and, knowing the close intimacy he would necessarily have with the Comstock Miners' Union—in those days a very strong organization—he approached them with the project and asked their assistance. This was granted him. The financial assistance given him by labor was meager, but it was wholesome. With so much gained he went East to seek a government title to his enterprise, and to get this he had to go to the Congress of the United States, and with emphatic opposition to him in both Senate and House he in time forced an act through both houses that gave him the desired title, together with terms of compensation for use of the tunnel when completed by the many mining companies on the Comstock Lode. This act of Congress was signed by General U. S. Grant, then President of the United States. In later years General Grant and his party, returning home from a trip around the world, expressed a desire when in San Francisco to see the Sutro tunnel, and Mr Sutro made arrangements for the entire party to ride over the mountains in vehicles from Virginia City, have breakfast upon their arrival at the Sutro home near the mouth of the tunnel, and later to return through the tunnel in ore cars to where it intersects with the Savage shaft, then to be hoisted 1,640 feet to the surface in Virginia City. General Grant afterward spoke of the trip as one of the most pleasurable and satisfactory of his tour, due, in a measure, I suppose, to his participation in the construction of the great work.

Mr Sutro's great effort now was to get capital, which meant millions. He went to New York, but his enemies—mining men of great wealth—had preceded him to disparage the enterprise. Undaunted, he went to London, England, and there succeeded. Then the great work commenced and continued until the enterprise, through years of great difficulties, reached the Comstock Lode, a distance of about five miles. In speaking of all this I do not do so in order to write the history of the great Sutro tunnel, but rather to recall the very remarkable nature of Mr Sutro, which was apparent to me many times, until I learned to regard him as a most wonderful man. I might add, parenthetically, that his chief disappointment, in prosecuting the work, was his failure to strike ore in paying quantities in the large tract of ground ceded his company by Congress.

April 8, 1918.

TWO MEETINGS: A FEW IMPRESSIONS.

By MILTON J. FERGUSON, Librarian, California State Library.

There has long been a feeling among certain librarians of California that the Del Monte Hotel would be an ideal place for an annual conference of the C. L. A. The large rambling building, with its delightfully old fashioned disregard of space and its modern equipment, its art galleries, its location in the midst of a wonderful park, its nearness to the ocean and finally its neighborhood so significant in an historical, artistic and literary way—all made of it a place where an association could do its work uninterruptedly and then could play whole-heartedly. With such attractions Del Monte had in time to be the place of our conference; and now that it is passed those who heard the Del Monte call feel their prophecies justified, and the doubters—if such ever were—are silent. Nothing could be more conducive to a successful meeting than having it under one roof; and certainly nothing more felicitous to the renewing of old friendships and the beginning of new.

The Del Monte conference was in a way reminiscent of one or two that have gone before. The sessions opened with song as at Santa Barbara and Coronado; and the singer again was Miss Hibberd, with a voice richer and fuller and sweeter. The stunts on the evening of our home talent affair were not the same as at Santa Barbara, it is true, but the ring master was the same. What would a C. L. A. dramatic seance be without Mr Greene as interlocutor and declaimer of Daly's dialect verses?

On the other hand there were new features. For the first time a woman wielded the gavel which called the conference to order, delivered the presidential message in a manner anything but haltingly or untried; and in fine ran the week's series of meetings in a business-like and effective way. There had of course to be a first woman president; but I can imagine that in the future they will be no novelty in California.

When we met at Hollywood a year ago the war, for America, had scarcely begun. We had not then the thrill which comes when the news heads proclaim that "Pershing's crusaders feed the Prussian Guard cold steel"—and that the Germans do not relish such fare. And as for a Library War Service uniform, in June, 1917, such a thing was undesigned. Yet at Del Monte the two young library soldiers, one from Fremont and the other from Kearny, wore their new garments with becoming pride, quite as though library service uniforms had been invented back in 1876 when Mr Dewey and his crusaders began their memorable advance. And it may also be recorded, in passing, that to the "female of the species" the Library War Service uniform has all the charm which soldier-garb has ever had—without some form of which a man these days has little chance.

The A. L. A.—to get a jump or two ahead of my story—scheduled a patriotic song hour; and I recall that I attended that meeting, in tuneful mood, ready to "register" song even if I can not really produce it. But by common consent everybody forgot the program and nobody found it necessary to "act" the last three verses of the "Star Spangled Banner." Now at Del Monte the printed program also announced a meeting devoted to patriotic song. And the thrilling thing about it was that the event really took place. It is true there was at first a certain bashful backwardness, like the parties of our youthful days before the ice got broken; but in time the people began to desert the fringes of the room, gathered round the piano and gave themselves up to the singing of the new and the old from "The Long, Long Trail" to "Auld Lang Syne."

The program of the C. L. A., from beginning to end, had sequence and orderly arrangement. It began with a consideration of reading in elementary education, continued with a presentation of library service in the high schools, carried the work on to the university stage in the students' development, and finally covered varied phases of after-college life, or better perhaps, the public at large in its needs and demands for book service. Dr. Frederic Burk raised many a laugh in his witty sallies at the whims and restrictions of the librarians of the past—those who were present were librarians of today and tomorrow, so they could afford to laugh—and quite won the approval of all by his generous surrender of the school system of the state into the hands of the library forces. It is not my purpose to give herein a summary of what the several speakers said. A better idea may be gained by reading the authors in the C. L. A. Handbook and by paying Dr. Burk a visit and getting the word from him direct. The reading I would have as optional, but the visit—if you were there—will, I am sure, insist upon having itself made.

I spoke of the historical, literary and artistic atmosphere of the Monterey peninsula—something which was brought home to us in several ways. One of them was by means of a splendid talk by Mr Michael Williams on "The Inspiration of California to the Artists." There is no need to tell a Californian that inspiration lurks—no, looms large and alluring—in the mountains, the woods, the lakes and streams, the deserts and plains and ocean of this vast state; but to tell the thing in the language and the fine feeling of Mr Williams is another and vastly more significant matter.

All library meetings have drives or rides or excursions into the open; but Del Monte can boast of a real historical pilgrimage. Under the leadership of Mrs Andresen we followed in the pathway of those early characters who have become such large figures in the canvasses of yesterday. War, it is true, permitted us librarians, who as a class claim a loyalty of 100 per cent purity, only a far off view of the Presidio and the hill whence Spain looked down on the Gringo invaders. But the customs house and its storied rooms were visited, and Colton Hall and the oldest wooden house in California, and Robert Louis Stevenson's house. The oldest house looks the part; and R. L. S.'s Monterey abode appears to be a dry husk from which the Scotch romancer had squeezed all the juices of life and adventure—a place quite as uninspiring now as the actor's stage when the footlights are out and sunshine is streaming through the windows. "The House of the Four Winds" as a stopping place in a pilgrim's journey has a refreshing meaning: an old Spanish house given a poetical name and used for various purposes and now by the women of Monterey made into a club house—thus does the loving intelligence of today preserve historical monuments of yesterday. And also be it remembered these hostesses of the old town can not only keep adobe houses from tumbling down, but they can also brew tea and make cakes as refreshing to us no doubt as were the cakes and ale to the pilgrims who in all ages have traveled and grown thirsty.

The visit to the San Carlos Mission took Mrs Andresen's wayfarers more completely into the past than any other part of the journey. Fortunately this mission, despite attempts at restoration, still has many original features. Those old vestments, wonderfully bright and untarnished by the century and a half that are past, embody in themselves much of the spirit which urged the mission fathers on to their noble work. The persons who sat within those old walls will not soon forget the earnest and convincing manner of Father Mestres who gave us not only new historic fact concerning the work and ideals of his order, but also a better and saner view of the methods which should be followed in preserving these monuments of those real pilgrims, Father Serra and his followers.

Let it not be forgot that this C. L. A. conference was a war conference. And in war there are always at least two fronts: the one here at home and that other over there. It is necessary to hold both of them. And in their work with the schools and the farmers, the stockraisers and professions, the housewives and all the folk in town and country, the library forces are merely holding the trenches which are theirs to hold. It would be just as honorable for them to desert this task now in the hour of greatest need as it would be for a soldier in France to leave his post because he saw more alluring adventures or a better viewpoint over in Italy.

Fortunately for us, perhaps, war is no longer a simple matter of food and men; so all of us are given a chance. There are camp librarians and hospital librarians; and a call for a Quire or a Richards to don a uniform, do good work in camp and then come and tell us his interesting story. Libraries can and do help in spreading food conservation information; and thus Mrs Harmon as library publicity director, is given opportunity not only to serve, but also to present a wonderful and speaking array of facts and figures. Dr Rixford spoke on the Lane Medical Library—great in present attainment and greater still in potential possibilities. Miss Foley, on "Re-educating the Adult Blind," has the sort of inspiration which should hearten us all, even in the midst of war when men do not come back, and when many who do are shut away from the light of day. And Dr Reinhardt gave a last finishing touch to the program when she spoke on "War Books." Of course Dr Reinhardt did not stick to the text at all times—that is one of her many virtues—and the address was masterly and fine and full of patriotic fervor.

When Mr Rowell read the report of the Resolutions Committee expressing, in word and in feeling, thoughts and sentiments which were in the hearts of all, the last things had been said: the meeting was over. And it was a good conference; one with a program and a purpose; a meeting strong in unity, enriched by its past history and determined and confident in its future work and service. Not to have held it would have been a shortsighted mistake.

Here we will imagine the curtain rung down, the passage of ten days and a shift of scene of 3,000 miles—from Del Monte and the C. L. A.

to Saratoga Springs and the A. L. A. We are in the city of fast horses, gambling traditions and political conventions on the second day of the big show; everybody is busy, the big tent is open and all the side shows are ready for business. As I have remarked before some time, or if I have not remarked I might have, the A. L. A. and its affiliations are quite the busiest aggregation of cultural industries this side of a Prussian host strategically retreating on the one hand and on the other making certain modifications in the French style of architecture, pruning the French orchards, etc., etc. And always with this difference, of course: the A. L. A. is always welcome to pay a second visit. There is no doubt about it, this national library conference gives the visitor his money's worth, however far he may have journeyed to attend.

One could scarcely go to Saratoga without renewing, to a certain extent, his memory of some of those facts of our national history learned during one's early school days, and I fear too soon forgot. Near the town there now stands a tall monument, reminding us of a Revolutionary battle which was fought by our little army and won. And closer at hand there are other reminders of later events in the history of New York state in particular: the Convention Hall, where the general sessions were held, and where for many years political conventions have found it expedient to conduct their deliberations; Canfield's house, where easy methods were once taught for the winning—and losing—of fortunes; the race track, where the breeding of fast horses is still encouraged, and where I am told good judgment was once essential to one's being able to remain in a comfortable suite at Saratoga's best hotel—the famous Grand Union.

This hotel, the Grand Union, as the stage setting for this year's A. L. A. Conference, and no doubt for itself as a hostelry as well, deserves a special word. It runs around three sides of a big block. It is rambling enough to suit the most peculiar tastes in tavern architecture. It has a history going back to times, to a Californian, almost prehistoric. Its old signboard, now carefully displayed in a protected corner of one of its endless two-story verandas, showing Putnam pulling a wolf from his lair, looks like something made for tourists or found only in a book. Its elevators of exceeding great slowness speak eloquently of times before speed became a national ideal. Its elegant reception room with all the splendor that mid-nineteenth century could devise looked quite disgusted with the great display of library posters and exhibits, booksellers' samples and headquarters long new pine table barricade. And the ball room with its great chandelier and its huge allegorical painting covering one wall, was in its day, I am sure, the very hight of aristocratic richness. But I wonder what that old ball room's opinion may be of the new dancing floor in the inner court of the hotel—surrounded by little tables and expectant colored waiters—and of the jazz band which nightly produces the tunes for fox trotish devotees. And then the dining room a half mile long, presided over by a wonderful grenadier of a southern Negro, with a head of hair worth a fortune to a hair-restoring profiteer and a manner in keeping with the older traditions of the house, and his army of colored waiters—when I think of it and of them I only remember my long, long hours of waiting.

When I arrived the convention had been called to order, words of welcome had been spoken, the president had delivered his address and the informal reception was a thing of the past. Reports of officers and committees, and especially of the War Service Committee, were in printed form in the hands of members. These things had been of more than passing interest, I suppose; but something else stood out very prominently as a dominating feature of the week—a group of camp librarians in soldier-like attire. If two men in khaki at Del Monte created a riot of interest, I leave to your imagination the impression made by the forty, more or less, who gathered at Saratoga Springs. Only one thing was lacking to make the scene complete: Dr Putnam in field marshal's uniform, gold braid, baton.

What everybody said, I again direct you to read in the proceedings. But it is worthy of record that every organization was devoting its energies toward one end—the winning of the war. And these young men and young women—all young in spirit, though some have lived long—who have seen service in camp, in dispatch office and in hospital—had a story to tell that merited and received an attentive hearing.

Every gathering of special workers has its rebellious group, I am told—though generally the rebellion does not arrive at speaking strength. Saratoga was no exception. Some of the women librarians, incensed perhaps at the nattiness of the camp librarians' uniform and reflecting upon the military order which so far has prevented their appointment to camp librarianships, demanded an explanation. Whether the answer satisfied them, I know not; but to me, at least, the War Service Committee's reply, and especially Dr Putnam's final statement just before adjournment sine die, were evidence sufficient. By a gradual letting down of the bars women are taking a more and more prominent and important place in the camp libraries and will in time be recognized as in every way capable of filling head positions. To have pushed the matter to an early decision might have resulted in a military order shutting women out of such places. Those who have handled this situation with such diplomacy and tact are entitled to the thanks of the order, rather, I think, than the censure of the capable but impatient minority.

One session of the Saratoga Conference contrasts itself very sharply in my mind with a somewhat similar occasion at Louisville. The Kentucky city gave us a literary feast at which poets and romancers poured forth their wares in bounteous plenty. The New York town, where the trunks came from or went to and a certain variety of chips originated I suppose, likewise produced a literary spread. Seeing that we are in the midst of war the dishes were fewer in number and the pièce-de-resistance came from the windy city. It was on July 4th, the day of that silent "Conference sing" which I have already mentioned. Carl Sandburg, Chicago's poet, lacks the traditional poetical graces so fittingly exemplified at Louisville by Cale Young Rice; but he has vigor of language and can put a pork chop sandwich and a V of gooseberry pie into verse—something Shakespeare didn't accomplish. I am going to read him—once any way. When the poet had finished, Dr Raney read a report of his adventures in England and France in extending library service to the boys over there and to men at sea. His story had the dramatic elements of a Saturday Evening Post thriller. Read it.

The next financial campaign—which, by the way, will probably be held during November, and during which at least $3,500,000 will be asked for—was carefully considered on several occasions by Dr Hill, Mr Wamboldt, the new national campaign director, and the state directors. Librarianship has learned many things during the past year; and among others the principles and means of conducting a successful money drive have not been overlooked. With wise general direction, with enthusiastic state activity, with every library and librarian a staunch rallying point, and above all, with the foundation of a year's essential library service in camp, hospital, on shipboard and overseas, the work of collecting funds for a continuation of the system will be easier than most of us anticipate. The library forces can still learn, of course, and in one particular must learn—and that is to secure a volume of publicity; not spasmodically, but continuously, every day and every week, through newspaper, magazine and film news.

The Saratoga Conference gave some of the newer recruits in the library army an opportunity to see and hear one of the great pioneers in the work: Dr Melvil Dewey. To some of our people the creator of the D. C. had no doubt taken on a cloak of antiquity, had been placed upon that pedestal reserved for Columbus and the other early voyagers. But Dr Dewey is very much alive; he has been creating a tolerable paradise among his lakes and hills of the Adirondacks, and has found little opportunity during the past ten or twelve years to attend library conferences. But his mind is active and he has not been asleep to the problems which agitate his one time professional associates. His voice, as he addressed a very large gathering at one of the sectional meetings on the subject of "The Functions of the Library Commission in Reconstructing the World After the War" was in a way a voice out of the past, but it sounded very much like the same voice which, during my Albany days, not only frequently reconstructed the world, but at times did not hesitate to remodel the universe. It was good to see and hear him again.

After the conference closed I had the pleasure, through the courtesy of a friend, of making the trip from Saratoga to New York by automobile. The beautiful green hills, the smell of the grass after the rain, the winding roads and good companionship made the journey delightful. That we ran out of New York state, cut off a corner of Vermont, and went clear across Massachusetts and Connecticut all in a day was a novelty to one accustomed to the long, long roads which stretch up and down California.

New York city I found just as large and noisy, with streets as badly torn up and people in as much of a hurry as they have been on every visit I have paid to this melting pot of America. But to a librarian looking for books and prints it is a place of many delights. I had the unusual opportunity, too, of seeing New York in an abandon of feeling: the Mitchell funeral filled Fifth avenue with an endless throng, eager to pay tribute to a dead hero with whom a few months before it had been a case of thumbs down.

If I were going to advise librarians to take a trip during these times when Director-General McAdoo is offering positive discouragement to prospective tourists over his lines, I would recommend a visit to Library War Service Headquarters in the Library of Congress. Camp libraries, hospital libraries and dispatch offices tell their own thrilling stories, no doubt, but headquarters, from the director down to the youngest typist, is a busy place, teeming with plans and capable of turning out a good day's work every day. It is an exemplification of how library work has become a big business—but with all its growth, has remained human and has a will for service.

And then I came home again, left the green hills and the good friends in the East and was happy to be in California once more, with its brown hills and its good friends. Conventions are worth while; and libraries and librarians are doing their share toward the winning of the war—a fact which should suffice.

A CALL TO SERVICE.

BY WILLIAM WARNER BISHOP, President American Library Association.

While the Saratoga Springs Conference is still fresh in our recollection, and before the feeling and enthusiasm engendered there become dimmed, may I venture to urge on all librarians the imperative call of the present day to our best, our most devoted, our highest service?

The war has shown us two great lines of work, peculiarly our own, which can be done by no other agency so well as by libraries and librarians. These are our own library service at home in meeting the enormously increased need for popular education and information, and our direct provision of books to the soldiers and sailors at home and overseas.

Never before have libraries had laid upon them such a burden of duty as in the dissemination of sound and informing knowledge regarding the war, its aims, its conduct, the relation of the citizen thereto, and the whole array of problems arising from an unusual condition of society. Next to the public press, the one agency which can best supply such information to all classes of the community is the public library. If the library was vital before the war, it is tenfold more vital now. Our cities, towns and villages need the best in books and magazines, need the best effort of librarians as never before. The hour calls for definite, earnest, well-thought-out plans for the unifying and bettering of our daily service. And the times are not easy. Our libraries have already contributed to the military and civil branches of the government numbers of their best folk. On us who "stay by the stuff" falls the increased burden. Our call is plain—no falling off in efficiency because of war; rather a higher devotion and a greater service!

Further, and no less vital, is our Library War Service; the provision of books in an effective (because organized) manner to our troops and our sailors. The American Library Association with splendid enthusiasm promised its aid to the government at the Louisville Conference, hardly realizing, perhaps, the magnitude of its task. Last summer the Committee on War Service, through various agencies, planned a great campaign for money and for books. Largely through the efforts of librarians in every part of our land an imposing sum was gathered in the fall. The Librarian of Congress became General Director of the Library War Service. Library buildings were erected in the great camps, innumerable stations were set up in every "Y" hut and house, on the ships, in smaller camps. Slowly and with great difficulty in the midst of a nation-wide dislocation of energy, a splendid service has been developed by the hard and long labor of our devoted colleagues at headquarters and in the field. The dispatch of books to Europe and their supply to the troops there has been well begun. The attempt has proven the value of books in army life. It is no longer an experiment, but an assured success.

On us now rests the burden of carrying onward this work so admirably begun. There will be need of money, much money. Prepare now to bring every effort to bear in your home towns to raise your share, yes, and more than your share. Let your people know what the association is doing, get the papers to print accounts of the Library War Service. Inform yourself by visits and by letter. If our members actually KNOW what is being done, here and in France, the money will raise itself.

There is need of personal service. Offer yourself, and like soldiers, obey orders. If you are called, for whatever work, that is your special call to duty. If you are not called at once, remember that the home service needs your every thought and action. The Library War Service MUST be a selected service, a choosing of men and women for special needs because of individual qualification. In war time men obey and do not growl. The work to be done is vast. It will require every one of us who can work in it, sooner or later. It will hearten every officer of the association, every camp and hospital librarian, to know that the volunteer list is embarrassingly large.

These words, my fellow librarians, are not preaching. Some one must voice the needs of the hour, and you have called me to lead the association for a year in the time of our country's peril and mightiest effort. Therefore, I write this call to service, confident both in your response and in your welcome of the message.

SUMMARY OF COUNTY FREE LIBRARY WORK IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1914, the California State Library felt the need of having its information concerning the county free libraries of the United States brought up to date and verified. Accordingly, the laws of every state were searched for any provision they might contain for carrying on county free library work. This material was tabulated under the heading "Law:". Quotations from books, reports and magazines touching on county library work were collected, and tabulated under the heading "Operation:".

These compilations were then submitted to the library commissions or the state libraries of states reported to have county library provisions, with a request for verification and amplification. In 1915, the statements were brought up to date and verified; and in 1918 the students of the California State Library School have brought the material up to date again, and it has been submitted to the various states for verification.

Following is the result of the investigation: (This summary does not concern itself with individual town libraries which are, in one place or another, reported as lending free to the county. Such an arrangement is more or less informal, and temporary. Only counties where formal or legal arrangements exist are included. If brief, the law is quoted. When lengthy, an outline covering points made by law is given.)

Law: California Statutes 1911, Chap. 68. (First enacted 1909.)

I.—Establishment by boards of supervisors, by resolution, after two weeks' publication of intention. (Sec. 2.)

- a. Headquarters at county seat.
- b. Municipalities and districts maintaining libraries are not included unless the board of municipal trustees or board of district library trustees notifies the supervisors that the municipality or the district wishes to be a part.
- c. Municipalities and districts maintaining libraries may contract with the county free library for service.
- d. One county may contract with another county for library service.
- e. County librarians must be certified by a board of library examiners, composed of state librarian, librarian of the public library of the city and county of San Francisco, and the librarian of the Los Angeles public library.
- f. Boards of supervisors have power to make rules and regulations for conduct of library.
- g. County librarian has power to select books and library equipment purchased, to recommend location of branches, and persons to be employed and dismissed.
- h. County librarian must attend annual conventions of county librarians, and take part; and make annual report to board of supervisors and state librarian.

- i. Tax not to exceed one mill on the dollar must be levied for support of county free library. Municipalities and districts maintaining libraries are exempt unless they have become a part. (Pol. Code, Sec. 4041, amended 1913, gives supervisors power to support the county free library from the general fund.)
- j. County law libraries, district school libraries, and teachers' libraries may contract for service.
- k. County free library may be disestablished by supervisors, by resolution, after two weeks' publication of intention.

II.—Instead of establishing a separate county free library, boards of supervisors may contract with the board of library trustees of any incorporated city or town to provide county free library service. (Sec. 16.)

Operation: Forty-two counties have established a county free library—37* under section 2, and 5 under section 16. For the carrying on of their work see "News Notes of California Libraries," latest issue.

Indiana.—Area 36,350 sq. mi.; pop. 2,700,876; counties 92.

I.—Constitution of Indiana. (Adopted 1816.) Art. IX, Sec. 5—

Sec. 5. The General Assembly, at the time they lay off a new county, shall cause at least ten per cent to be reserved out of the proceeds of the sale of town lots in the seat of justice of such county, for the use of a public library for such county, and at the same session they shall incorporate a library company under such rules and regulations as will best secure its permanence and extend its benefits.

II.—Burns' Annotated Indiana Statutes. Revision of 1914, secs. 4857-4871, 4901, 4929-4941a. (Originally enacted Dec. 17, 1816; revised and re-enacted 1852; and amended from time to time.)

- a. County library to be established and provided for automatically with the establishment of a county seat.
- b. Ten per cent of net proceeds of the sale of all lots in town where county seat is, belonging to county, and 10 per cent of all donations made to procure county seat to be reserved as county library fund.
- c. Many other provisions to regulate conduct of library.

Operation: (Prior to 1917.)

"After the adoption of the constitution, the first general assembly of the state assembled November 4, 1816, and on December 17 enacted a law providing for the organization and incorporation of public library associations. These associations were in the nature of private corporations for the public benefit. This law, in its essential aspects, was re-enacted in 1852.

"At the same session of the general assembly, on January 2, 1817, county libraries were authorized to be established in Pike, Daviess, Jennings and Sullivan counties, with power to receive the county money derived from the sources designated by the constitution. In 1831 the general assembly, by a general act approved February 9, authorized the incorporation of county libraries, and in addition to the 10 per cent, reserved from the sale of town lots, as provided in the constitution, also provided in addition thereto that 10 per cent of any bonus given for the location of the county seat should go to such library. This law was re-enacted February 17, 1838 . . .

“The first act, providing for appropriation out of the public fund for libraries other than the state library, was passed in 1852, the act being approved June 18, 1852. This act provided that a sum not less than $20 nor more than $75 might be appropriated annually out of the county treasury for the maintenance of county libraries . . .

“In 1899 the general assembly enacted a law providing that whenever there is established in a city or town, being the county seat of the county, having a population according to the census of 1890 exceeding 19,700 and less than 20,000, in which there is or may be established a public library containing, for the use of the public, more than 3000 volumes, the directors or trustees thereof on certain conditions, could turn the same over to the common council or board of trustees of such city or town and it became the duty of such common council or board of trustees to levy a tax of not less than four-tenths of a mill on the dollar for the maintenance of such library. Upon the dissolution of such library association the property of such library should revert to the city or town, and that wherever there was established at the county seat of any county having a population of 19,700 and not exceeding 20,000 according to the census of 1890, a public library opened on equal terms to all inhabitants of such county, the trustees of such county library should deposit said library with the trustees of such public library, which library should be opened to all the inhabitants of such county upon equal terms, and the board of commissioners should thereafter appropriate and pay to the trustees of said library annually a sum not less than $100.” (Judge C. C. Hadley, library legislation in Indiana in Indiana Public Library Comm. 6th bien. Report, 1908-10, pp. 54-5, 58.)

Present law: Stats. 1917, chap. 45.

I.—Provision is made for the establishment of county libraries in:

a. Counties in which there is now no public library:

1. County commissioners may voluntarily levy from one-tenth mill to one mill on all taxable property in the county and establish a county library. They may be compelled to take this action by a petition signed by 25 resident freeholders of each township in the county.
2. The library board consists of two members appointed by the commissioners, two members appointed by the county superintendent of schools, and three members appointed by the judge of the circuit court.

b. Counties in which there is one or more public library:

1. The library board of any public library in a county may file notice with the county commissioners that they are willing to serve the inhabitants of the county in return for a tax. The county commissioners may then levy a tax of one-tenth mill to one mill on all property in the county not already taxed for library purposes, and shall levy such tax on the petition of twenty-five resident freeholders of each township not already taxed for library purposes.

II.—The board shall consist of four members additional to the library board of the city or town giving the service; two appointed by the county commissioners for a term of one year, one of whom shall be a woman, and two appointed by the county superintendent of schools for a term of two years, one of whom shall be a woman. These four members may vote only on the levying and expending of the county tax and on matters of library service outside of the city serving the county.

III.—The county library board shall have the control and disbursement of all public funds for library use, and all other powers necessary to conduct the library.

IV.—County aid to city libraries:

If the city board gives to the county commissioners notice of willingness to allow their library to be freely used by residents of the county on the condition that the county aid in its support, the county commissioners upon petition of twenty-five residents of each township shall vote a tax of between one-tenth of one mill to one mill on the dollar, and turn the same into the city library fund, to be continued as long as ten per cent of the county inhabitants outside the city use the library, or otherwise at the discretion of the county commissioners.

V.—Combination of city and county libraries:

If both exist within the county, the city board with the consent of the county board may pay to the county fund its income, and thereupon the county library board shall maintain the city or town library as a branch of the county library. Such library shall remain part of the county library as long as ten per cent of the inhabitants of the city shall be users of the county library through such branch.

VI.—Each county library board, after the first year of service, certifies to the county commissioners the rate of tax levy needed between five-tenths mill and one mill on the dollar and the county commissioners must, under penalty, levy this tax.

Operation:

“The county library law which was passed by the recent general assembly, went into effect July 1st. Before September 1st, four counties had taken advantage of the law and taken steps to organize their county libraries. Switzerland County, through the action of the board of the Vevay Public Library and the county commissioners, seems to have the distinction of being the first county to make use of the new county library law. The public library at Liberty was a close second in persuading its county commissioners to levy a library tax. The other two counties to adopt the county system were both counties in which there has never been a free public library. Scott County has for some years had a county library fund for the purchase of books, but has never been able to maintain a county library under the old law. North Vernon has for some years been one of the largest towns in the state without a public library, but the action of the county commissioners of Jennings County will establish a library at North Vernon.

“Several other counties made efforts to establish county library systems, notably Allen, Clinton and Vigo Counties, but action was postponed until another year. In face of probable increased taxation on account of the war, Indiana seems to have made a good record by establishing four county libraries in the first two months in which the county law had been operating."—Library Occurent, October, 1917.

(May 17, 1918, the above statement was verified by the secretary of the Indiana Public Library Commission.)

Iowa.—Area 56,025 sq. mi.; pop. 2,224,771; counties 99.

Law: Laws of Iowa, 1913, chap. 70, sec. 729a. (First enacted 1913.)

I.—The board of library trustees of any free public library shall have power to contract with any school corporation, the township trustees of any civil township, the board of supervisors of the county in which said library is situated, and the council of any city or town, whether such school corporation, civil township, or city or town be in the same county in which such library is situated or in an adjoining county, for the free use of said library by the residents of such school corporation, civil township, county, city or town, by one or more of the following methods in whole or in part:

- a. By lending the books of such library to such residents on the same terms and conditions as to residents of the city or town in which said library is situated.
- b. By the transportation of books of such library by wagon or other conveyance for lending the same to such residents at stated times and places.
- c. By the establishment of depositories of books of such library to be loaned to such residents at stated times and places.
- d. By the establishment of branch libraries for lending books to such residents.

Such contracts, unless otherwise provided therein, shall remain in force for five years, unless sooner terminated by a majority vote of the electors of such school corporation, civil township, county, city or town.

II.—Sec. 422. The board of supervisors at any regular meeting shall have the following powers, to wit:

24. To contract with any free public library in the county for the free use of the books thereof by the residents of the county outside of the cities and towns therein, as provided in section one (sec. 729a) of this act, which contract when made shall supersede all contracts made by townships or school corporations, and to levy annually on the taxable property of the county outside of cities and towns a tax of not more than one mill on the dollar to be used exclusively for that purpose.

Operation: Nothing found.

(May 13, 1918, the secretary of the Iowa Library Commission wrote that rural extension is so far being carried on under the township plan.)

Louisiana.—Area 48,720 sq. mi.; pop. 1,656,388; parishes 60.

(First enacted 1910.)

(Explanation: Webster defines parish as "In Louisiana, a civil division corresponding to a county in other states." Louisiana constitution provides that a parish shall be governed by a police jury, and confers powers and duties similar to those of county supervisors in other states.)

I.—Condition of establishment:

- a. Petition by twenty-five residents of parish, city, town, village or other political subdivision, to police jury, city council, etc.
- b. Police jury, etc., may then act favorably by promulgating notice for thirty days.
- c. If protest equal to petition is not filed, then police jury, etc., has full power to establish and maintain the library.

II.—No tax limit.

III.—Board of control (i. e., library board) to be not less than five members nor more than seven. Given full control, except that expenditure of over $500 must be submitted to police jury, etc.

Operation: Nothing found.

Maryland.—Area 12,210 sq. mi.; pop. 1,295,346; counties 23.

Law: A.—Code of Maryland, art. 77, secs. 106, 107, 108, 110–119.

I.—Boards of county commissioners have full power to establish a library at the county seat, with branches as necessary, and must establish on petition of a majority of voters.

II.—Tax limit five cents on $100.

III.—Commissioners appoint a board of nine library directors, who conduct business of library.

B.—Laws of 1898, chap. 317. (First enacted 1898.)

Washington County Free Library.

Law authorizes city of Hagerstown to contribute annually $1,000 towards the support of the Washington County Free Library.

Operation: Washington County Free Library, established at Hagerstown in 1901. For the carrying on of its work see Annual Reports.

“The Frederick County Free Library, which was opened May 22d with 1,400 books, is meeting with appreciation and support. The $2,000 with which the library was established was raised by the Civic Club between the fall of 1913 and April, 1914. A library association has been formed, with county as well as city members, and after the first year this will support the library. Since opening, over 700 people have registered, representing 17 places in the county, and the second month’s circulation was 2934. Ten rural schools are using the library, and it is expected that three county branches will be opened in October. It is not known whether the Artz bequest (noted in the July number of the Journal) will be applied to this library or not, and in any case it will not be available during the lifetime of Miss Artz.”—Library Journal, October, 1914; p. 784.

Other libraries to which reference has been made, as “County libraries,” are the Harford County Library at Bel Air; the Kent County Library at Chestertown, which has branches in several towns; and the Queen Anne’s County Library at Centerville.

(No verification of this report was received from Maryland. It is, however, approximately the same as the one verified in 1915.)

Michigan.—Area 58,915 sq. mi.; pop. 2,610,173; counties 83.

Law: Stats. 1917, chap. 138. (First enacted 1917.)

I.—Establishment by board of supervisors—

a. As a separate library

b. Or by contract with a public library to furnish service.

II.—Tax permitted not to exceed half a mill on the dollar.

III.—The library board is as follows:

a. If established separately, a board is created, composed of the county commissioner of schools and four other members appointed by supervisors.

b. If under contract, the public library board shall administer the funds, and an advisory board is created, composed of the county commissioner of schools and two other persons appointed by the supervisors. Duties: To advise concerning the selection of books, location of branches, etc.

Operation: In October, 1917, the supervisors of St. Clair County entered into a contract with the Port Huron public library for service. This was the first county to take advantage of the law.

Minnesota.—Area 60,858 sq. mi.; pop. 2,075,708; counties 86.

Law: Revised statutes 1913, p. 1079 (Amends stats. 1905.) (First enacted 1905.)

Sec. 4921. Any board of directors . . . may also contract with the board of county commissioners of the county in which the library is situated or of adjacent counties, . . . to loan books of said library, either singly or in traveling libraries, to the residents of said county . . . upon such terms as shall be agreed upon in such contract.

All such boards or officers shall have the power to contract with the board of directors of any free public library for the use of said library by the people of the county . . . not having the use of a free library, upon the same terms and conditions as those granted to residents in the city or village where the library is located, and to pay such library board such an amount annually as may be agreed upon therefor, and such county . . . may establish a library fund by levying an annual tax of not over one mill on the dollar of all the taxable property outside of any city or village wherein a free public library is located or which is already taxed for the support of any such library.

Operation: The following ten counties are carrying on county library work, with appropriations ranging from $200 (Clay County with twelve branches) to $1000 (Hennepin County with 58 branches, and Itasca with 87 branches): Anoka, Clay, Hennepin, Itasca, Lake, Meeker, Olmstead, Ramsey, Steele, Washington.

“All libraries having county aid, with the exception of Anoka, have sent out traveling libraries, some of them having their own collections, while others have drawn upon the state traveling library for this purpose.”—Public Library Commission Library Notes and News, 1910-12.

Minnesota Public Library Commissioner says: “Although good results have been obtained through the operation of the present law, comparison with work in other states seems to indicate that a more permanent system could be established if the law provided for a definite basis of taxation for the county library, and accordingly a bill authorizing such taxation will be introduced in the 1913 session of the legislature."

(May 8, 1918, the director of the Minnesota Public Library Commission wrote that the above statement is accurate and to date.)

Missouri.—Area 69,415 sq. mi.; pop. 3,293,335; counties 114.

Law: Revised statutes of Missouri, 1909, vol. 2, sec. 8198. (Revised Statutes of Missouri, 1899, Section 6477.) (First enacted 1899.)

Sec. 8198. The county court in any county wherein is situated an incorporated city containing a free public library, whenever petitioned by one hundred or more taxpaying citizens of said city, and one hundred or more taxpaying citizens of said county, residing outside of said city, for the use by the citizens of said county, residing outside of said city, of said library, shall have the right to contract with the officers of said library for such use thereof by said citizens of said county residing outside of the city, and to appropriate moneys from the county revenue of said county therefor, and thereafter to continue such contract or renewals thereof from year to year: Provided, that the annual amount so contracted to be paid and appropriated shall not exceed three per cent of the county revenue for the year out of which payment is to be made. (County court, as referred to here, corresponds in general to the boards of supervisors in other states.)

Operation: "In December, 1916, the county court of Marion County granted the petition of the citizens to extend throughout the county the circulation of books from the Hannibal Public Library. The establishment of two county branches was reported in October, 1917. This is done under the old law, section 8198." (Paragraph from letter of May 8, 1918, from the secretary of the Missouri Library Commission.)

Note.—1. U. S. Commissioner of Education Report, 1915, vol. 1, p. 515:

"A bill was introduced in the legislature of (February) 1915 providing for the establishment and maintenance of county libraries throughout Missouri. This bill was practically identical with the California county library law and was introduced for the purpose of arousing discussion before the next legislative session, its immediate passage not being expected." Same, Lib. J. 40:289.)

2. "In October, 1915, the Missouri State Library Association appointed a committee to draft a county library law. At the October meeting, 1916, the report of this committee was accepted and bills were presented in the state senate and house of representatives, January 29, 1917. The bill in the house was reported unfavorably. That in the senate went as far as engrossment, but died on the informal calendar at the end of the session." (Paragraph from letter of May 8, 1918, from the secretary of the Missouri Library Commission.)

II.—Withdrawal of towns with libraries permitted after establishment of county free library, and after public hearing.

III.—County commissioners are ex officio library board with powers to:

a. Appoint county librarian, who must—

1. Either be a graduate of a library school;

2. Or have two years of practical experience in a library of not less than two thousand volumes;

3. Or have a county librarian's certificate, if the state board of library examiners has been organized.

b. Make general rules and regulations.

b. Determine number and kind of employees.

c. To employ and dismiss employees.

d. Accept apprentices.

e. Determine books and other equipment.

f. Be paid traveling expenses.

V.—School libraries may become a part of the county free library.

VI.—A county free library may be disestablished in the same manner as it was established.

VII.—Contract plan may be used instead of establishing a separate county free library.

Operation: Phillips County Library: $15,000 Carnegie building, completed September 1, 1917; 7 branches; 3,000 volumes; 1 mill tax on all county property; no city libraries in this county.

Big Horn County Library: $15,000 Carnegie building; not yet completed; 4 branches; 1 mill tax.

“The city commissioners and the board of county commissioners have entered into a contract under the terms of which the city is to give library privileges to all residents of Missoula County in exchange for returns from a half-mill tax levied on all the property outside the city of Missoula. This will be the first* free county library in Montana, and is expected to go into operation January 1. The city is to manage the library as before, according to the contract, but use of the funds contributed by the county is restricted. Of the county fund, $1000 is to be set aside to cover the use of the library equipment and the services of the library staff, but the rest must be applied to county extension. Moreover, all books purchased with county funds must be marked as county property.”—Lib. J., Jan., 1917.

“During the year since the Choteau County Free Library was established its remarkable growth and the great interest manifested in it have proved its need. It possesses nearly 4000 books, which are kept in circulation all the time. Seventeen branches have been established at various places in the county, at which points local custodians serve without pay. Branch libraries are now located at Highwood, Carter, Floweree, Geraldine, Big Sandy, Genou, Sample Flat, Virgelle, Tunis, Square Butte, Lytle, Verona, Graceville, Inga, Shonkin, Goosebill, Egly. It is hoped that a $15,000 central building may presently be erected for administration headquarters."—Lib. J., June, 1917.

(Now 22 branches; building to be completed August 1, 1918; 5700 volumes.)

(On May 7, 1918, the above statements were verified and brought up to date by the librarian of the University of Montana.)

Law: Revised statutes of Nebraska, 1913, secs. 3792–3805. (First enacted 1911.)

Sec. 3792. . . . The county board of any county shall have power to establish a public library free for the use of the inhabitants of such . . . county . . . or to contract for the use of a public library already established, and may levy a tax of not more than three mills on a dollar annually to be levied and collected in like manner as other taxes in said . . . county . . . and to be known as the library fund; provided, that when any county board makes a levy for a county library, it shall omit from the levy of the library tax all property within the limits of any city, village or township in said county which already maintains a library by public tax. Provided further, that before establishing such county library, or levying such tax, the county board shall submit the question to the voters of such county, and a majority of the voters voting thereon shall have authorized the establishment of such county library and the levying of such tax. Such question shall be submitted at a general election only.

Secs. 3793–6. County board appoints a library board with usual powers.

Operation: Edna D. Bullock in Public Libraries for January, 1913, writes: "The county library proposition submitted to Lancaster County, Nebraska, was successfully adopted by the voters in the recent election. The plans for the county library can not be put into effect before a year, but authority to do so has been granted by the voters. Lancaster is the first county in Nebraska to establish a county library. The proposition carried by 32 votes, over 2000 votes being cast.

"In the course of time we hope to have a first class county library. Our county is an ideal one for library extension. In the midst of American farming people are communities of Europeans, veritable little Hollands, Bohemias, Germanys and Scandinavias. In one school district in Olive Branch precinct, all the pupils are Bohemian; in another they wear the wooden shoes of their Dutch homeland. The county is 36 by 24 miles in extent, and has three public libraries—at Lincoln, Havelock and College View. These libraries will not be a part of the county library—though the county library will probably affiliate by contract with Lincoln City Library. No money will be available for the county library before next July. We feel as if Nebraska had made a good beginning."

On December 5, 1914, the secretary of the Nebraska Public Library Commission wrote that in Lancaster County no tax had been levied as yet. The letter continues: "An attempt will be made to amend the law at the coming session of the legislature, doing away with the provision making it necessary to have a vote of the people before the commissioners can make a levy."

No such amendment has yet been made.

(On May 7, 1918, the Secretary of the Nebraska Public Library Commission wrote that the above statement is correct and up to date.)

New York.—Area 49,170 sq. mi.; pop. 9,113,614; counties 62.

Law: Education law, L. 1910, chap. 140, sec. 1118. (First enacted 1909.)

By majority vote at any election, any county . . . may establish and maintain a free public library, with or without branches, either by itself or in connection with any other body authorized to maintain such library. Whenever twenty-five taxpayers shall so petition, the question of providing library facilities shall be voted on at the next election or meeting at which taxes may be voted, provided that due public notice shall have been given of the proposed action. . . . A board of supervisors of a county may contract with the trustees of a public library within such county or with any other municipal or district body having control of such a library to furnish library privileges to the people of the county, under such terms and conditions as may be stated in such contract. The amount agreed to be paid for such privileges under such contract shall be a charge upon the county and shall be paid in the same manner as other county charges. (Amended by L. 1911, chap. 815, in effect July 28, 1911.)

Operation: December 10, 1914, the chief of the Division of Educational Extension of the University of the State of New York wrote:

"The New York legislature in 1911 authorized any county by majority vote at any election to establish and maintain a free public library with or without branches, either by itself or in connection with any other body authorized to maintain such library. By the same act, the question of providing library facilities shall be voted on at the next election or meeting at which taxes may be voted, whenever twenty-five taxpayers shall so petition, provided that due public notice shall have been given of the proposed action. A county is authorized to raise money by tax to establish and maintain a public library, or libraries, or to provide a building or room for its or their use, or to share the cost as agreed with other municipal or district bodies, or to pay for library privileges under a contract therefor. A board of supervisors or a public library within such county, or with any other municipal or district body having control of such library to furnish library privileges to the people of the county under such terms and conditions as may be stated in the contract.

"Advantage has never been taken of the provisions of the act by any county, largely due to the reasons given by Mr William R. Eastman in his review of Antrim: 'The County Library,' Library Journal, v.39:629. Mr Eastman says:

"To one familiar with New York conditions, it is clear that they can not be judged from the county library law of that state which is of recent date and practically quite worthless as it stands; not, for the reason given in this book that it calls for an appropriation instead of a tax, but because, under its provisions the property of any city or town maintaining a library must be taxed a second time if the contract for the outside districts is made. A test was made in the case of Broome County, where there was a strong demand for county service from the city library of Binghamton. The library was eager to furnish books if assured that the county would bear the added expense. But the city, having received a Carnegie building some years before, was committed to a yearly library expenditure of $7500. The cost of procuring and sending books in needed measure to the towns was estimated at $5000 a year. If the county was to pay it, the city, containing three-fourths of all the taxable property of the county, must then pay three-fourths of the extra cost of lending its own books to its neighbors. To this, the county board, on which, of course, the city was strongly represented, would not consent. The alternative, under the law, was for the county to assume the entire support of the city library. But this would tax the county for the benefit of the city; would break up a long established control, and interfere with contracts and other interests. The city could not consent to relinquish its library charter, and so the practical obstacles to action under the county law appeared insuperable.”

(May 8, 1918, the chief of the Division of Educational Extension verified the above statement, and added, “No new county legislation has been effected.”)

Law: A.—Annotated general code of the State of Ohio of 1910; vol. 1, secs. 2454-2456. (First enacted April 26, 1898.)

Sec. 2454. The county commissioners may receive a bequest or a gift of a building or of money or property wherewith to construct a building for, or to furnish and equip a county public library. They may accept the gift of a library or of its use for a term of years or permanently, and may agree on behalf of such county to provide and maintain such library.

Sec. 2455. A library association or other organization, owning or having the full management or control of a library, or a board of trustees appointed by authority of law and having the management or control of a library free to the whole or a part of a county may contract with the county commissioners for the use thereof by the people of such county.

Sec. 2456. A county accepting such bequest or gift, or entering into such agreement, shall faithfully maintain and provide such library. At their June session each year, the commissioners thereof may levy a tax not to exceed a half mill on each dollar of taxable property in such county. The fund derived from such levy shall be a special fund, known as the library fund, and shall be used only for the purpose contemplated in this section.

B.—Annotated general code of the State of Ohio of 1910; vol. 6, section 14993. (First enacted April 21, 1898.)

Sec. 14993. Every resident of the county within which is situated any city of the first grade and first class having therein established a public library, shall be entitled to free use of such library on such terms not inconsistent herewith as the trustees may prescribe.

Operation: One county, Hamilton, is operating under the act of April 21, 1898; and six counties, Erie, Greene, Paulding, Richland, Ross and Van Wert, are operating under the act of 1906 (first enacted April 26, 1898, for the benefit of Van Wert County).

May 29, 1918, the librarian of the Public Library of Cincinnati writes regarding the Hamilton County service: "We now have our main library, 11 branches in buildings of our own, 14 branches in quarters not owned by us, 25 deposit stations, 140 classroom libraries in schools, and six school libraries. We no longer have any delivery stations, as all these have been converted into deposit stations."

Oregon.—Area 96,030 sq. mi.; pop. 672,765; counties 34.

Law: General laws of Oregon, 1911, chap. 151 (amending sec. 4356 and 4357 of Lord's Oregon Laws). (First enacted 1903.)

I.—Sec. 4356. Any county in this state is hereby authorized and empowered in its discretion to assess, levy and collect, in the manner provided for the assessment, levy and collection of other taxes for county purposes, a special tax not to exceed one-half of one mill on each dollar of the assessed value of all taxable property within such county, such special tax to be assessed, levied, and collected for the purpose of establishing, maintaining, or assisting in the establishment and maintenance of a public library within such county. The proceeds of any such tax shall be placed in a separate fund, to be known as the "Library Fund" and shall be expended only for the purposes for which the same is levied.

II.—Sec. 4357. The county court for any such county in which the special tax provided for in section 4356 may be levied, may use said library fund to establish, equip, maintain, and operate, at the county seat of any such county, a public library, including branch libraries, reading rooms, lectures and museums, and may do any and all things necessary or desirable in its discretion to carry out such purpose. The county may, however, in its discretion, contract upon such terms and conditions as it may determine, with any corporation maintaining a public library at the county seat of such county, for the use and application by any such corporation of said library fund to all or any of the purposes more particularly specified above in this section. (The county court, as referred to here, corresponds in general to boards of supervisors in other states.)

Operation: Oregon has five county libraries, all operating under the county library law of 1911. The oldest is the Multnomah County Library of Portland, established under the original enactment of 1903. The other county libraries were more recently established—Hood River, Wasco, Umatilla and Klamath.

December 5, 1914, the state librarian of Oregon wrote: "The main point of the law is the latitude allowed the county court in making contracts."

(May 9, 1918, the state librarian wrote: "The enclosed statement is correct. There have been no changes in the Oregon county law nor in the number of county libraries.")

Law: Purdon's Digest, 13th ed., v. 5, p. 5637. (First enacted 1907.)

This law gives authority in title for county free library, but through an error in punctuation exempts counties in the body of the law. Various bodies, particularly the Pennsylvania Free Library Commission, have been trying ever since then to have a general library law adopted by the legislature in which provision has been made for county support for libraries. Finally, in 1917, such a law was passed with the following main provisions:

I.—Establishment and maintenance—

- a. Any municipality (includes county, city, borough, town or township) may make appropriations to establish and maintain a free public non-sectarian library for the use of the residents.
- b. The municipal authorities may submit the question to the voters voluntarily or upon petition of 3 per cent of the voters.
- c. The appropriation shall not exceed 2 mills on each dollar of taxable property.
- d. The question of establishing an annual tax shall be voted upon at the same time.
- e. If by popular subscription a sum equal to or more than the 2 mill tax is raised, it shall be accepted for library purposes, provided that not more than 2 per cent of the said sum is subscribed by one person or firm.

II.—Plan of operation:

- a. The library fund and the maintenance and control of the library is in the hands of the board of library directors (between 5 and 7 members) which is appointed by the municipal authorities.
- b. Two or more municipalities may unite in joint written agreement in maintaining a free library.
- c. A municipality may contract with any existing non-sectarian library for the use of such library by the residents.
- d. Whenever any county commissioners take advantage of this act and levy a tax for library purposes, they must exempt from such a tax all property already taxed for the purpose of maintaining a free library unless the municipality may wish to join with the county in the library project.
- e. The board of directors may establish branches, deposit stations, or traveling libraries and the right of eminent domain is granted for library interests.
- f. Where a free library exists in a municipality, no new library shall be established, but all the library aid provided by this act shall be given to the existing library.
- g. If 5 per cent of the voters petition the municipal authorities, the latter must submit to the voters the question of creating a bonded indebtedness for the purpose of purchasing grounds or erecting library buildings.
- h. All library property is exempt from taxation.

Operation: Nothing found.

(On May 7, 1918, a letter from the Pennsylvania state librarian verified the above statement.)

Law: Stats. 1917, chap. 293. (First enacted 1917.)

I.—Establishment: Optional with county commissioners, upon the filing of a petition signed by at least 20 per cent of the qualified voters (and from a majority of the districts of the taxable area).

II.—Plan of operation:

- a. In counties containing no public libraries—
 1. County commissioners appoint a board of five library trustees, two to be women, and not more than one a county commissioner.
 2. Members receive no compensation, and are given usual powers, as locating library, appointing librarian, fixing compensation, selecting books, making the estimate for support, and making general rules and regulations.
 3. Tax must not exceed one-half mill on the dollar, and taxable area must not include towns already supporting libraries.
 4. Towns already supporting libraries may receive county library service by arrangement with county library board.
- b. In counties containing one or more public libraries—
 1. County commissioners may take over care and control of public libraries upon conditions agreed upon with library boards.
 2. County commissioners may contract with one or more libraries for service.
 3. In case no satisfactory terms may be agreed upon, the county commissioners may proceed under section 2.

III.—Library board operating county free library must make annual report to county commissioners, Free Library Commission, and if operating under contract, to the body appointing such board.

Operation: "The South Dakota County Free Library Law was passed in the early part of 1917. Since then our county workers, who would ordinarily have seen to it that their counties worked for the law, have been so busy with war work that it has been impossible for them to do anything with county libraries. I think we may expect very little development until after the war." (Paragraph from letter of May 10, 1918, from the Field Librarian.)

Texas.—Area 265,780 sq. mi.; pop. 3,896,542; counties 251.

Law: Vernon's Supplement to Texas Statutes, 1918, art. 1498 $\frac{1}{2}$ –1498 $\frac{3}{4}$ u. (First enacted 1915; superseded by act of March 5, 1917.)

I.—Forms of county library service:

- a. An entire county or that part of a county not already maintaining a public library may establish a county free library—
 1. Commissioners' court may, upon their own initiative or upon the petition signed by 100 or more voters of the county or that part of county affected by this act, call an election to be held not less than 15 days or more than 60 days after the order is given, to determine whether or not a county library shall be established. If passed by a majority, the commissioners' court shall proceed to establish and provide for the maintenance of such library. No other election shall be held on the subject for two years.

2. Upon the petition of 500 or more voters, the commissioners' court shall call an election to determine whether or not the county library shall be disestablished.
- b. A county may contract to secure service from a library already established—
 1. Upon the petition of 100 or more voters the commissioners' court shall order an election to determine if they shall contract for service with an established library. If such is the will of the people, the commissioners' court shall draw up a contract with said library, which shall assume the functions of a county free library. The librarian shall hold or secure a librarian's certificate. The commissioners shall pay to said library such sum as may be agreed upon, out of the library fund.
 2. Contract may be terminated by six months' notice from either party.
- c. A county may contract to secure service from another county—
 1. Commissioners' court has the power, upon the establishment of a county free library, to enter into contract with any other county to secure services for that county upon a specified compensation.
 2. Contract shall not bar said county from establishing a county free library.
 3. Contract may be terminated upon the establishment of a county free library in said county, or may continue till expiration.
- d. Two or more adjacent counties may establish a county library—
 1. The counties shall operate jointly as if they were working as one library.
 2. If any county desires to withdraw, it shall be entitled a division of property as agreed upon in the terms of combination.
- e. Any town or city maintaining a public library may contract with the county library for service—
 1. Commissioners' court has the power after the establishment of a county free library to enter into contract with any city or incorporated town maintaining a free public library, to secure to said library the same privileges of a county library, upon such consideration as may be agreed upon.
 2. Disposal of property to be determined by the terms of the contract.

II.—Any town or city in the county maintaining a public library may become a part of the county free library, said city or town being liable for the library tax:

- a. Legislative body of town or city may notify commissioners' court that they desire to become a part of the county free library system.
- b. After two years town or city may withdraw upon six months' notice and cease to be liable for the library tax.

III.—Other provisions:

- a. Tax not to exceed 5 cents on the hundred dollars must be levied to support the county free library.
- b. The county library shall be located at the county seat. Branches are to be established throughout the county.
- c. Librarians shall hold a certificate of qualification from the State Board of Library Examiners. The librarian shall be appointed by the commissioners' court.
- d. Commissioners' court is authorized to accept gifts for the benefit of the whole county or any part thereof.
- e. The county library is under the general supervision of the county commissioners' court. Each county librarian must make an annual report to the State Librarian.

(N. B.—No salary schedule provided.)

Operation: "The war upset our plans for putting a county library into operation, and possibly nothing will be done for some time. The state examining board has been formed." (Extract from letter of May 6, 1918, from the Gainesville, Texas, librarian, a member of the examining board.)

Washington.—Area 69,180 sq. mi.; pop. 1,141,990; counties 38.

I.—General county free library service:

Law: A.—Annotated codes and statutes of Washington, 1910, vol. 2. General Statutes, sec. 6980. (First enacted 1901.)

Sec. 6980. The board of trustees of any free library in this state may, under such rules and regulations as may seem necessary, and upon such conditions as agreed upon, allow nonresidents of the city, town, village or district in which the library is situated to use the books therein and may make exchanges with any other public library, either permanently or temporarily; and any such board may contract with the board of commissioners of the county in which the library is situated, or with the board of commissioners, village trustees, town or city council, of any neighboring county, village, town or city, to loan the books of said library to the residents of such county, village, town or city, upon the terms agreed upon in such contract; and every such board of trustees, board of county commissioners or village trustees, town or city council, is hereby empowered to make contracts for such purpose and to pay the consideration agreed upon therein to the board of trustees of such library out of the county, town, village, or city treasury upon the rendering of proper accounts therefor.

B.—Laws of Washington, 1915, chap. 12 (amending sec. 6971):

Sec. 6971. By a majority vote at any election, any (county), city, village, town, school district, or other body authorized to levy and collect taxes, (or by vote of its county commissioners upon petition of one hundred voters, voting at the last election, any county,) or by vote of its common council, any city or incorporated town may establish and maintain a free public library, with or without branches, either by itself or in connection with any other body authorized to maintain such library. Whenever twenty-five taxpayers shall petition, the question of providing library facilities shall be voted on at the next election or the meeting at which taxes may be voted; Provided, that due public notice shall have been given of the proposed action.

Operation: County library service has been legally possible in Washington since 1901, when by virtue of section 6980 the county commissioners were given authority to contract with public library trustees for county library service.

In 1913 county libraries were made possible by direct tax on the county by virtue of inserting the word "counties" in section 6971, where can be found a list of political divisions of the state which are authorized to establish libraries.

In 1915 the unintentional omission of the word "counties" in section 6971 was made, and so county libraries can not be established at the present time.

The county of Thurston, organized under the law of 1913, continues and is doing full county work with branches, and under joint county and city support.

II.—Special county free library service (the state of Washington has also a law which extends county library service to the schools. In fact it is more effective than the regular county free library law):

Law: Remington & Ballinger Annotated Codes and Statutes, 1910, vol. 2, sec. 4592-4597.

1. The county superintendent of each county of this state may establish a circulating library for the use and benefit of the pupils of the common schools of such county.
2. At the time fixed for the levy of the county tax, the county commissioners of each county may levy a tax sufficient to carry into effect the provisions of section 4592: provided, that said tax shall not exceed one-tenth of one mill on each dollar of the assessed valuation of the said county. Proceeds of said tax shall, when collected, constitute circulating school library fund for payment of all bills created by purchase of books and fixtures by the county superintendent.
3. The county commissioners shall allow no bills against said fund until it shall have been certified to be correct by the county superintendent.
4. The county superintendent shall purchase no books or fixtures for such circulating library until there shall be to the credit of the circulating school library fund sufficient money to pay the purchase price thereof.
5. No book shall be placed in the county circulating library unless it has been recommended by the state board of education or superintendent of public instruction.
6. It is the duty of the county superintendent to purchase the books and to enforce rules and regulations for their distribution, use, care and preservation as he may deem necessary.

Operation: Three counties have taken advantage of this law. They are, Walla Walla, Pierce, and King.

Wisconsin.—Area 56,040 sq. mi.; pop. 2,333,860; counties 71.

Law: Wisconsin Statutes, 1917, secs. 4317–4323. (First enacted 1899.)

- I.—Board of supervisors may establish a board of libraries.
- II.—Appoint five directors thereof.
- III.—Board of libraries appoints supervising librarian. Salary not to exceed $50. Salary and expenses not to exceed $75.
- IV.—Librarian must be resident of county. May be either sex. Must make annual report to board of supervisors.
- V.—County can not pay for keeping, care, transporting, or librarian's service of traveling librarian.
- VI.—Appropriation paid out of the county general fund. First year not to exceed $500. Thereafter not to exceed $200 (not including librarian's salary).
- VII.—Forms separate library fund.
- VIII.—State free library commission may advise.
- IX.—County may receive bequests for establishment of county libraries.

Operation: June, 1918, the secretary of the Wisconsin Free Library Commission verified the following statement: "In Wisconsin the state form of extension predominates, but there are sixteen county systems of traveling libraries organized under a special act of the legislature, besides two county systems supported by private benefaction. The Wisconsin Free Library Commission will aid in establishing county systems in counties where the library conditions at the county seat or elsewhere give assurance of permanent supervision by one experienced in library routine and management."

Wyoming.—Area 97,890 sq. mi.; pop. 145,965; counties 21.

Law: Wyoming Compiled Statutes, Annotated, 1910, secs. 1316–1321. (First enacted in 1887; modified in 1899 and revised in 1901, 1907 and 1910.)

I.—When the commissioners of any county have received proper guarantees that a suitable place will be furnished for a public library they shall levy annually a tax for the establishment and support of a public library to be located at the county seat.

II.—The tax shall be not less than one-eighth mill nor more than one-half mill on the dollar on all taxable property in the county. (Maximum was changed by amendment to one-fourth mill in 1911, and back to one-half mill in 1915.)

III.—The county commissioners shall appoint a board of three directors.

IV.—The books purchased with the county library fund shall be of a kind best suited to inform the mind and improve the character of the reader; neither sectarian nor professional books shall be purchased out of said fund.

V.—If no other provision can be made for the location of the library without expense to the library fund, it shall be located by the board of school trustees in the best situated school building at their disposal.

VI.—The board of directors shall appoint a competent person to have immediate charge of the library, with such duties and compensation for services as they shall fix and determine.

VII.—Best possible provisions shall be made for the convenient use of the books by out-of-town residents of such county.

VIII.—The board of directors shall make an annual report to the county commissioners.

Operation: It is interesting to note that the law was enacted as long ago as 1887, and that it makes each public library in the state a county library. There is no provision for the public library as we know it in California. In 1915 (U. S. Commissioner of Education—Report 1915, vol. 1, p. 22; 521) fourteen of the twenty one counties had county free libraries (15 now). Of these, five send out boxes of books in the form of traveling libraries to the rural districts.

There is no provision in the law for giving service to the schools and none was given so far as could be found. Also there is no definite provision for the establishment of branches, doubtless due to the very scattered population. There are practically no small towns with the exception of the county seats, where branches could be established.

§OAKLAND FREE [PUBLIC] LIBRARY. Chas. S. Greene, Lib'n.

One of the most important matters of the close of the year is the making up of the Annual Estimate for the Budget of the following year. In preparation for that the Staff of the Library appointed a Committee, which draughted a strong argument for increases in salaries, and presented it to the Library Board. The Library Board considered the matter sympathetically, and held several conferences at the house of President Hubbard, at which members of the Staff were present and explained to the Directors the results of putting the branches on half time, and the other cuts that had been made.

The Library Board then in turn requested a joint meeting with the Civil Service Board, which was held on May 28th, and there the two boards worked out a salary schedule increasing salaries approximately 10%, and this schedule has been put into effect beginning July 1st.

Civil Service Examinations have been held twice during the quarter. On May 23d the deferred Assistant Librarian examination, to fill the position vacated when Associate Librarian Bamford resigned, was held. Three candidates took the examination, and as a result Miss Mabel W. Thomas, head of the City Branch Department, was appointed to be Assistant Librarian. On July 1st, Miss Nye, first assistant in the City Branch

Department, succeeded Miss Thomas, as chief, and Miss Clara N. Bishop of the same Department was made first assistant.

The other examination was for substitutes, and was held June 13th. A class of eighteen was examined and all of them were passed. Eleven of them have been called for duty and are in active preparation.

On March 18th, the Librarian had the pleasure of accompanying Dr Herbert Putnam of the Library of Congress, and State Librarian Ferguson, to Camp Fremont on a tour of inspection that Dr Putnam was making of the War Camp Libraries. On the following day Dr Putnam dined at the Librarian's in Oakland, and after dinner met the Directors of the Library Board, and a very helpful conference was held.

On June 1st the Fruitvale Branch was moved to a new building especially constructed for it, on a five year lease, by Mrs Ellen Merrill Wetherbee.

Beginning June 3d, a party organized by Mrs McConnell, of the Oakland Staff, organized the Library for the Letterman Base Hospital at the Presidio. When the approximately four thousand books had been put in shape, the Library Board allowed Mrs McConnell to continue there for the month in the administration of it. She has applied for leave of absence from her library duties to continue in that work under appointment by the A. L. A.

Exhibits of Food Conservation Material were prepared for the Del Monte and Saratoga Conventions, and a permanent collection of posters mounted on cloth has been begun.

Other War Work has been kept up with great vigor. The amount subscribed by the Library Staff to the Third Liberty Loan was over $5000, and to the War Savings Stamps $1150. Two hundred seventy-six dollars ($276) was subscribed to the Second Red Cross War Fund.

The Oakland Museum during the quarter has opened a Bird Room, showing in a unique manner a whole suite of California land and water birds, mounted in Mr Rowley's masterly style.

The Museum has undertaken to supply for the Land Show, to be held in the Auditorium during September, a very elaborate setting of birds and mammals, ranging from the Musk Ox to the Sea Lions. The cost of this exhibit will be largely met by the Land Show, but the resulting mounted animals, which Mr Rowley's skill is making remarkable, will be the property of the Museum.

The Library delegation of nine at Del Monte returned enthusiastic from the success of the conference.

At the end of the quarter the Supervisors of Alameda County served notice on the Library Directors that they wished to discontinue the contract in which the Oakland Library has been serving Alameda County. The agreement as to the cancellation is to go into effect August 1st.

§LONG BEACH [FREE] PUBLIC LIBRARY. Miss Zaidee Brown, Lib'n.

FOOD CONSERVATION. The library is a center for information on food conservation. Mrs C. C. Adams, a volunteer helper, is in charge of the work, and has made it of far-reaching influence. On two afternoons a week, she arranges to have some one at a special desk in the library to answer questions, show samples of the new flours, sell cookbooks giving war recipes, and tell women about the books and pamphlets in the library that might help them. A bulletin board on food conservation is given a prominent place on the first floor. Mrs Adams has also given many talks to organizations of women.

An exhibit of local food products, each one equal in calories to a quart of milk, was given, and created a good deal of interest.

Perhaps the most useful part of the work has been the distribution by the library of recipes for the new foods. Besides those printed by the library, we have given away hundreds of the government leaflets. We sold at cost hundreds of the pamphlet cookbook issued by Mills College. This we supplied at 2 cents a copy. Later, I learned of a much larger cookbook published by the State Council of Defense of Illinois, 120 West Adams street, Chicago. We have sold several hundred of these at 8 cents each, which covers the original price to us and the transportation. They are very popular. The library also printed and distributed freely a table published by the Department of Agriculture, giving the amount of each new flour that equals a cup of wheat flour. With this table, a housekeeper can use her old recipes.

A large exhibit of food posters made by school children, received much attention.

WAR LIBRARIES. Over 4000 books have been collected for the camp libraries. This is the number of those accepted and prepared for use. The total number given would probably be well over 5000. About 3000 of the books were collected by the pupils of the high school, under the direction and stimulus of the Girls' League. The pupils also prepared them for circulation. The library is receiving more books weekly.

ART GALLERY. In April, the annual exhibit of the Print Makers of Los Angeles was shown. The May attraction was a very interesting collection showing the art work in our local schools from the kindergarten through the high school. In June, through the courtesy of the County Museum of Art, we obtained a fine group of paintings from the private collection of William Preston Harrison, of Los Angeles.

A lecture on the processes of making etchings and other prints was given at the library by John Cotton, of Los Angeles. He illustrated his talk by references to the Printmakers' exhibit, then hanging in the Art Gallery.

THRIFT STAMPS. The library staff is organized into a War Savings Society. The total value of stamps sold to June 20 was $291.

In May, all available space on the main floor of the library was given to an exhibit of thrift stamp posters made by pupils of the public schools. They were very clever, and attracted much attention.

CHANGES IN THE STAFF. In March, Miss Helen Courtright, assistant librarian, resigned to work for the War Department in Washington. Her library friends will be interested to know that she is to return in August, to take the position of librarian of the Long Beach Polytechnic High School.

Miss Geraldine Shipley, who took the apprentice training in this library in 1916-17, and later the course in the Los Angeles Library School, has been appointed to the staff.

Mrs Violet Gresham, formerly an assistant in this library, and for several years librarian at the high school, will begin work in the library in July.

A STEP FORWARD IN SCHOOL LIBRARY WORK. For some time, we have felt that the library work in the schools would be much more effective if the Board of Education would employ a supervisor of library work, to speak to the children in the classrooms on the collections of books sent out by the public library, to stimulate the teachers who do not show enough interest or intelligence about the general reading of the children, to give a regular course of lessons in the use of the library and reference books, and to keep the teachers informed of new material coming into the library that would be of interest to them. She could also serve a very useful purpose by suggesting to teachers sensible questions that the children might look up, instead of the kind that tax the ingenuity of the most experienced reference assistant.

The matter was presented to the Board of Education at their last June meeting, by the librarian of the public library. She took with her, as evidence of the need of expert assistance to the teachers, a list of actual questions that had been assigned in the schools to be looked up in the library, and a table showing the great difference in circulation of books from the rooms of the same grade, according to the interest of the teacher. Within five minutes, the board voted to employ a person of suitable training and experience to undertake this work in the schools. She is to give part of her time to work in the grade schools, and part as an assistant in the High School Library. This will make it possible to give regular lessons on the use of a library in the high school also. We feel that this appointment means a great increase in efficiency in our school library work.

LIBRARY TRAINING SCHOOL.

During the last quarter of the school year, the work has been diversified by library visits, the Red Cross parade, visitors' week and social events. The students visited representative libraries in southern California, including several municipal libraries, and elementary, high school and normal school libraries, and a college and a scientific library. Each girl was assigned to some committee to report in detail the methods used in the different types of libraries at a seminar later in the year.

The Red Cross parade of May 18 was a patriotic demonstration in which the library staff in appropriate costume took part. The faculty and students of the Library School marched as one unit in the parade.

The school has adopted a French orphan.

Librarians from other cities and members of the Los Angeles Public Library staff were invited to attend a week of lectures on inspirational phases of library work given by the faculty to the school during the last week of April. Among these were lectures on Publicity, with a striking exhibit, by Miss Drake; Care and use of pamphlet material, Mrs Brewitt; The right book for each reader, Miss Zaidée Brown; The war as reflected in literature, Miss Darlow; Library associations, Miss Haines. The attendance at these lectures, in addition to the regular students, was 306.

The Class of 1918 entertained the faculty and the Class of 1917 at an evening party at the home of Miss Edna Osgood.

On May 28 the alumni gave a tea in honor of Mrs Brewitt, who has accepted a position as librarian in the Alhambra Public Library. Representatives of the five classes she has taught were present to assure her of their appreciation of her work in developing the school. Miss Haines presented Mrs Brewitt with a mahogany tea-wagon on behalf of the alumni and the staff.

The alumni entertained the Class of 1918 and the faculty June 18 at a delightful picnic at Sycamore Grove. The new officers elected at the meeting are Mrs Emilie T. Jackson, president; Eloise Carwyle, vice president; Van Tyne Smith, secretary; Cosby Gilstrap, treasurer.

The following subjects have been chosen by the students for their graduation bibliographies:

Library work with children, Marguerite Cameron.

Mystery stories, Dorothy Dobbings.

Bookplates, Louise Emmons.

Western stories, Geraldine Graham.

Interior decoration, Marion Gregory.

Chinese and Japanese immigration to California, Helen McDonald.

Plays for amateurs, Gertrude McLaughlin.

Short stories for high school students, Elza Miller.

Psycho-analysis, Gabrielle Morton.

Russian novels in English translation, Isabelle Park.

The little theater movement, Lucia Railsback.

California artists, Mildred Schaer.

Theses on The opportunity of the Library instead of original bibliographies have been presented by Frank Helm Hout, Genevieve Kelly, Gladys Knowlton, Sidney McClees, Edna Osgood, and Geraldine Shipley.

The following appointments have been made:

The Monrovia Public Library has met with a generous response from the people in giving books for "Our Soldiers and Sailors." §PASADENA [FREE] PUBLIC LIBRARY.
Miss Nellie M. Russ, Lib'n.

The second quarter of 1918 was marked by the opening of the Government Balloon Station at Arcadia, and the placing of 2150 books there from our Camp Library collection. In addition to these we have made a loan of technical books from our shelves for immediate use by the soldiers. Linda Vista School sent a check of $10 to the Library to buy books for the soldiers, and this was used to purchase "Dyke's Encyclopedia of gas engines," which they had requested. The books are handled by the Y. M. C. A. It has been found necessary to rent rooms for the handling of our soldiers' books which are coming in continually. We have sent a number of boxes to Camp Kearny at the request of J. H. Quire, among them late humorous papers for a troop train just leaving. Books have also been sent to the Soldiers' and Sailors' rooms in the city.

Our reference department has been doing special war service in the preparation of bibliographies in co-operation with food conservation and child welfare, and at the Child Welfare Convention recently held here we also placed an exhibit and a deposit of books of interest to mothers; a member of the staff was in charge during the session.

We are helping in the Red Cross juvenile work by putting a deposit of books at the headquarters' rooms. These are especially selected and are under the charge of an educational director. They are especially for the use of boys and girls who are waiting to be assigned to service. The school libraries in such schools as are serving as vacation Red Cross centers are being kept open at such hours as will conform to this war service.

Other war work is being done by the publicity department of our staff in the form of comprehensive papers on each of the several war organizations, these papers to be read at public meetings of the War Savings Societies.

Miss Pearl A. Margison is the first member of our staff to leave for war service at Washington, D. C. Another, Miss Elizabeth D. Jones, served a week in the Camp Kearny Library.

The Library Magazine is going to do its bit toward conservation, and for the duration of the war, "take on the uniform of a plain, folded paper like a true soldier of Uncle Sam." It dons the khaki to cut expenditure to the minimum, and so "curry on" shoulder to shoulder with the nation's workers. The May-June number, just published, will be the last in dress suit.

Through Mrs F. M. C. Harmon, Library Publicity Director for California, we have farther contributed to war work in a full report for the A. L. A. conference at Saratoga Springs, and we are endeavoring in our local press and elsewhere to meet the government request for wide library war publicity. Along these lines was the Librarian's paper for the State Convention, which was on Camp Kearny.

Through the extension department we are supplying books to the city fire stations with the hope of vocational work later on; also a selected number to Board of Trade members whose busy lives leave little time to get in touch with current literature. One of the most interesting examples of this department is the sending of selected, discarded books to the new outdoor camp for tubercular children at Devil's Gate, Pasadena.

We have found it compulsory to provide an outside room for children, and a large, attractive, well-lighted room two blocks away will be opened in September. With the addition of one children's librarian, we hope to run both places with the present staff, thus striving for retrenchment.

A collection of war-posters is being added to our collection.

Dr Herbert Putnam made a visit to our library which, though hurried, was an inspiration, especially as at the request of our Library Commissioner, he consented to speak at a convention of southern California then in session in one of our churches to delegates who carried his strong message back to their people.

We place war service at the forefront in all our work.

PASADENA HIGH SCHOOL LIBRARY.
Jerome O. Cross, Prin. Miss Winifred Skinner, Lib'n.

We did not observe the book week as public libraries did, as that came just before vacation and there were salvage drives scheduled ahead. We thought it best to wait until after the holidays.

All our salvage drives are organized in this manner: Each first-period class chooses a sergeant to take charge of the drive in his room, be responsible for returns, etc. The sergeants of the rooms bringing in the most material are made lieutenants for the next week, and so on in military promotion. The rivalry thus provoked results in goodly amounts of salvage. The drive lasts for one day only. The book drive was only one of a series.

In addition to this spirit of rivalry the methods of advertising were as follows:

I. An article in the weekly paper of the school, telling of the need, the kinds of books desired, etc.

II. We aroused curiosity by a guessing contest—a clever student making cartoons illustrating titles of books found in the school library. Example: Uncle Sam and the Kaiser are pulling a map of the United States between them, illustrating "Struggle for a continent." (Incidentally, Uncle Sam is getting the best of it, of course!)

III. The usual posters, supplemented by one or two made by the art department.

IV. A day or two after the familiar poster of the signal flags had been displayed in a conspicuous place in the corridor, we had nine of the Boy Scouts in uniform march on the platform in assembly and give the signal "Send books." This little "stunt" seemed to make quite an impression on the students and also on a company of soldiers from Fort McArthur who were on the platform and who applauded vociferously. The Scouts marched on without announcement, gave their signal and then marched out behind the curtain without comment from the presiding officer. The fact that there were no "sailors" escaped notice.

Our drive resulted in 1350 books, a very large proportion of which are suitable for the camps. Among the books noted was a set of Stevenson, one of Balzac, of Tarkington, a set of science books, very many popular novels, as well as goodly numbers of the standard works and books. One ardent soul donated a copy of "Black Beauty," much to the indignation of its rightful owner, a younger brother, who demanded its return. There is also a pile of National Geographic magazines five feet high and a large number of "Life" and "Judge" which we are told can be used in unnumbered quantities in camps.

In addition to the books, there was over $70 worth of salvage, newspapers and magazines which has already been sold and paid for, with several odd lots yet to be heard from. We feel quite gratified with the results of the drive.

The staff members and students in the library have given a great deal of their time to what is known as the "war directory," a carefully made list of every person in Riverside who may participate in the raising of funds either by giving money or time. Riverside is a war chest city with an organization of several hundred workers. A drive is put over very rapidly and the information contained in the war directory is the basis of much of the work.

About seventy-five inquiries were received, although the advertisements gave less than a week of publicity before the opening of the school, June 24. There were three admitted June 24 and others will be admitted July 8. Between those dates we hope to have ten men in training. The candidates submit unusual schooling and business preparation.

The usual summer school luncheon will be held on Monday, July 22, to which all former students and neighbors and friends are invited. It will be held at the Glenwood Mission Inn.

Both the camp library and the other students will have opportunity to view the library service at March Field, the aviation camp near Riverside. The library service at March Field is now operated in the Y. M. C. A. hut and about 5000 volumes are available. Technical books were furnished by the American Library Association. The books are very well selected and the men at the aviation camp are loud in their praise of the A. L. A. Mr Ludden and Mr Wesson, now in charge of the hut, have entered into the spirit of this library service and are doing excellent work for their men and for us.

Miss Herrman attended the annual meeting of the C. L. A. at Del Monte Hotel, June 18-22.

Lakeview and La Presa schools have joined the County Library. Monument school withdrew from the County Library.

Escondido Public Library has been serving Escondido's surrounding country for the County Library in exchange for book service to the city on contract with the County Library, subject to discontinuance at any time by either party. The County Library withdrew its service after notifying the Board of Library Trustees that it was impossible to continue the service. The Board of Library Trustees decided not to ask the City Council to join the County Library at this time, so the county service to the country people or the Escondido Valley will be transferred to some business house in the near future.

East San Diego's Carnegie Building is now ready for occupancy and has been accepted by the Library Trustees.

§§§SAN DIEGO [FREE] PUBLIC LIBRARY. Mrs H. P. Davison, Lib'n Emeritus; Miss Althea H. Warren, Lib'n.

Rejoicing over the maximum appropriation, when the tentative budget was made up at the beginning of the year, was turned to woe in May, when the final budget was set and the public library cut down to $40,500 for 1918—within 3/10ths of a mill of the 4-mill minimum. The park, playground and operating departments suffered a similar fate, as the council maintained that all city funds other than expenditures for actual necessities should go towards the paved road and pipe line to Camp Kearny. A number of odious economies have therefore been forced upon the library board. Several of the branches have had to adopt shorter hours: the main library, and all branches, with the exception of the periodical reading room, are to be closed on Sundays during the summer; fiction purchases are to be reduced to a minimum; and a number of changes have been made in desk administration, which have lessened the staff by four and reduced the hours and salaries of three. The budget has thus

Lieutenant Eugene Ferry Smith, president of the library board, has been transferred from Waco, Texas, to Camp Greene, Charlotte, North Carolina.

Added to the two stars on our library service flag, won by the president of the board and Roger Wise, formerly a page in the library, two women of our staff are now on leave of absence for the duration of the war, to serve the Ordnance Section of the War Department in Washington. Miss Elizabeth Bailey, head of our registration department, left here in April, and was followed the next month by Miss A. Clover Hall, who has been in charge of our bindery books and library supplies for over three years. They write enthusiastically of the excitement of perverting Dewey numbers to army orders for peas and beans.

Our June bride this year was Miss Jean Powell, librarian of the Logan Heights Branch, who was married to Eugene Saxton, of Phoenix, Arizona.

Miss Vivien Mackenzie, a graduate of Western Reserve Library School, and for several years librarian at Oahu College, Honolulu, is now in charge of the Logan Heights Branch.

Other changes in the library staff during the quarter include the resignations of Miss Elizabeth Callaway, Mrs Effie Campbell, Mrs D. B. Hunt, and Miss La Reine Walton, junior assistants, and of Mrs Elsie Mary Wilson, senior assistant and librarian at Ocean Beach Branch. Miss Louise Carson and Miss Miriam Collins have been appointed junior assistants, and Miss Ethel Creigh, who has been on our staff for a year, has been put in charge of the branch at Ocean Beach.

Library service to the soldiers and sailors in San Diego County is now organized by a combination of the A. L. A. Library at Camp Kearny, the County Library branches at Imperial Beach and North Island, and the following list of smaller camps receiving gift books from all parts of California, and new technical books purchased by the A. L. A., which are distributed from the public library:

Through publicity in the local newspapers, the librarian has kept before the public the need for more books for the soldiers and sailors. The appeal has not been in vain, as 1500 books are now being prepared for shipment to the camp libraries. That the books previously forwarded have been appreciated by men at the camps is evidenced by the following letter received by Miss Mann upon receipt of the first installment of books forwarded by the Stockton Free Public Library:

Headquarters Eighth Division,
Camp Fremont, California,

March 29, 1918.

MISS HATTIE M. MANN, Librarian
Stockton Free Public Library,
Stockton, California.

Dear Madam: The commanding general requests me to reply to your favor of March 19, and I am glad to state that the 15 boxes of books sent by you have arrived and are in the American Library at this camp.

The commanding general desires at this time to thank you for your kindness and to assure you that the books are greatly appreciated.

Yours very truly,

"How the children can save America" was the subject chosen by Miss Rosamay Ryland of the Young People's Department for the last story hour of the season held April 27, 1918. Miss Ryland gave interesting stories of war gardens and emphasized many ways in which young people can help Uncle Sam. A short talk was given by Miss Doris Barr on "Food Conservation." It was cleverly adapted to her young auditors and impressed the fact that in saving food we are helping to win the war. Potato posters, the work of pupils of the art department of the high school under the direction of Miss Montgomery, added to the interest of the talk, Miss Barr calling attention to the fact that the day had been designated "Potato day." Mrs. A. E. Pryor, woman food administrator for the San Joaquin County unit, made an appealing address, urging the young people to honor and love the Stars and Stripes and be real patriots. She told them to help their parents in saving food in order that more might be sent to our soldiers and our allies over there.

Miss Mann and Miss Orr attended the joint meeting of the first and second districts of the California Library Association at Camp Fremont, June 1, 1918.

Miss Mann and Miss Condit attended the annual meeting of the C. L. A. June 18-22, at Del Monte.

Miss Mann submitted a report of the activities of the libraries of the Fifth District to the president of the Association. The circulation from headquarters increased this quarter to 161, of which 118 books were nonfiction.

The Daly City Branch, the new address of which is 6370 Mission street, Daly City, held a display of foods and literature in a store window, from April 18 to May 3. This was the most attractive arrangement of the exhibit, which is traveling through the county, yet shown. Dry foods were placed within containers formed by canned goods (cans of the same color being used for each one).

Illustrative literature was banked at the back of the window, so that it made almost a "solid display." During the time it was in the window, it attracted considerable attention, whether because of the clever arrangement or because of interest in the subject, only time will tell!

On May 4, the exhibit which had been returned from Daly City, was shown at a meeting of the Home Economics committee of the county, at the Sequoia High School, when the County Librarian spoke on the available literature and the service of the County Library in co-operation with the food committees throughout the county.

May 24 the exhibit was sent to Half Moon Bay to be displayed in conjunction with the annual exhibit of the domestic science department of the high school.

been held at the library. Also an exhibition of chair caning from the Lincoln School.

In the interest of Food conservation, the library has had many pamphlets issued by the State and National Food Conservation committees, for distribution and for circulation. In connection with this there have been many recipes posted on the special bulletin board—recipes given by local people. Also the cooking classes of the high school, under the direction of Miss Pettit, have sent displays of cooked food, made from special Government Food Conservation Recipes. These exhibitions were held each week of the last three months of school and seemed to excite a great deal of interest in the subject. The recipes were afterward printed in the local papers.

The Library Wild Flower Show was turned over to the Irene Club, to be given for the benefit of the Red Cross. The usual wild flower lovers kindly sent specimens and the ladies were able to turn $68 over to the Red Cross.

Twelve hundred and ninety-four books were collected for soldiers' and sailors' libraries. They were prepared largely by outside help. The books made a very good showing, being nearly all new and fresh and of popular titles. They were shipped in June.

Collections of pictures, to be used in the machines for opaque projections in the schools, have been mounted and form a valuable adjunct to geographical and descriptive material in books. Seven hundred and twenty-six pictures have been mounted.

DIRECTORY FOR LIBRARY SUPPLIES AND OTHER ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Many public libraries waste a great deal of time and money before they find good places to get supplies. The plan is to give all libraries the benefit of the experience of the older libraries of the State by listing under different heads the houses that have been found to give satisfaction, the names and addresses being furnished by the older and larger libraries of California. In this way suggestions will be given as to where different sorts of books may be bought, where books may be rebound or periodicals bound, where library furniture may be bought, etc., both in California and in the East.

If any information is needed about the firms listed below which can not be obtained from the firms themselves, the names of the libraries recommending the different ones will be sent to any library upon application to the State Library.

DISTRICT MEETINGS.

First District Meetings.

The First District of the California Library Association was called to order by the President on the Oakland & Antioch train, about nine o'clock on the morning of April 28, 1918. There were fourteen librarians and six of our friends.

After a very pretty ride we reached Diablo station, and at once started on the long walk. Several of us decided at the outset to go a short distance and return for the 3.30 train. Others thought their strength would place the limit, but most of us aimed for the top. So, at the toll house the general meeting adjourned. The ascent is fairly gradual, the walking good, and the day most beautiful, and by 2.30 everyone who wished to do so had arrived at the monument.

The atmosphere was not clear, the only drawback, so the view was not as extended as we had hoped.

The return trip was very easy, and we reached the station with nearly an hour to spare. The outing was much enjoyed and no casualties were reported.

The business meeting of the First District of the California Library Association was called to order by the President, Chas. V. Park, on the afternoon of June 1, 1918, in the A. L. A. Library building at Camp Fremont. About thirty-five members and friends were present.

The Secretary read the minutes of the meeting held at Lane Library, San Francisco, November 17, 1917, at which time Miss Stillman acted as Secretary pro tem. The Mount Diablo trip, April 28, was reported by Miss Hays. Both these reports were adopted as read.

A proposed amendment to Article 6 of the Constitution of the California Library Association, relative to the personnel of the Nominating Committee, was presented. Mr Clark was asked to give further explanation of the amendment, but there was no discussion of the subject, as it will come up in the regular business of the annual meeting to be held at Hotel Del Monte, June 18-22.

Miss McCardle, the State President, was called upon to make any announcements she wished concerning this annual meeting. In pursuance of the new amendment, it was necessary to elect a representative on the Nominating Committee. Miss Coulter was nominated. The Secretary was instructed to cast the ballot for Miss Coulter, who was declared elected a member of the Nominating Committee for the First District.

Adjournment.

At about 3.20 the members of the Second District, having finished their drive, arrived at the Camp Library and the program was opened by a short explanatory talk by Mr Park giving the purpose of the gathering; namely, to hear about Camp Fremont Library.

M. J. Ferguson, State Librarian, gave the history of the inception of the idea of the library for this camp in the fertile minds of Misses Bailey and Patterson; the gratuitous superintendence of the erection of the building by Mr Clark; the gathering together of the books by Mr Henry and the opening of the library to the soldiers, until the arrival of Mr Richards.

As the Governor of the State had selected June 1 as the day to review a part of the troops, General Morrison could not be present in person, and deputed Chaplain Rice of his staff to represent him. Major Rice spoke of the appreciation of the men for the library as a base for information for enlisted men who are training to be officers without the advantages of West Point. A few months of intensive training now has to do the work of four years, and the library is of great assistance. The men in the hospitals, the recruits in detention tents, and the officers at their quarters all find the books of great use in information and recreation. The library building affords a quiet, light, comfortable place for the men to pass their leisure and the service is excellent.

J. S. Richards, the Librarian of Camp Fremont, was then introduced and gave a graphic account of the use of the library by the soldiers. There are now 16 branches and 28 stations. At the stations there are carriers for 40 volumes and the self-charging system is used. The circulation during April was 10,000 books, 299 being the daily average at the central library. Mr Richards gave random lists of books borrowed by individual men and lists of requests not in the Fremont collection, and they very nearly covered the field of human knowledge.

After the formal program one of the regimental bands furnished us with stirring music outside under one of the big trees, and the company slowly melted away to the Hostess' House for tea.

L. MAY BROOKS, Secretary.

Second District Meeting.

A meeting of the Second District, California Library Association, was held in Palo Alto, June 1, 1918. The morning session was in the Defenders' Club, and Mrs Maddox, one of the group of women who started the National Defenders' Club in Palo Alto, told of the opening and the work of the club; the changing of a big bare loft into a charming, homelike club-room; the fixing up of the donated furniture; and the work done in the canteen. She also told of two surveys which had been made in Santa Clara County, one of the women's organizations engaged in war work, and another of all agencies that have the right to solicit funds for war work.

Miss Anne Bell Bailey, the President, in welcoming the delegates and friends, read a letter from the Secretary of the C. L. A. asking for material for the exhibit at Del Monte at the state convention, and librarians were urged to send in any helps or aids used in their work.

Miss C. L. Ebbets spoke on food conservation in connection with the library handling the educational matter necessary for distribution from the central bureau.

Miss J. M. Fenton showed scrap books made by the school children of Oakland, for use in the convalescent wards of the base hospitals. Miss Mary Barnby had some very interesting photos of a food conservation exhibit in Oakland.

Several soldiers from Camp Fremont entertained with songs, giving an idea of how the men entertain themselves in the club.

Luncheon was served at the Belgian Market, prepared by Chef Victor of the St. Francis Hotel, and supposed to be strictly a "Hoover luncheon." After lunch an auto ride around Palo Alto, through the kindness of Guy C. Miller and the courtesy of the Palo Alto Chamber of Commerce, was enjoyed by all, and ended at the Camp Fremont Library. The afternoon meeting was a joint meeting with the First District in charge. Mr Park asked Mr Ferguson, State Librarian, to tell of the start of the Camp Library. J. S. Richards, Camp Fremont Librarian, told of the development and present work of the library. Chaplain Rice tried to show what the library meant to the enlisted men and how they appreciated all that had been done for them.

Miss McCardle invited all the delegates to attend the state convention at Del Monte, giving an outline of the program in store for them.

A band concert by one of the regimental bands completed the program of the day, and those present drifted away, some to the trains for home, and some to the new Hostess' House for tea. Everyone voted it a profitable as well as enjoyable meeting.

MARY GERVAIS, Secretary.

Fourth District Meeting.

The meeting of the Fourth District of the California Library Association was held in Bakersfield, in Memorial Hall in the Court House, April 19, 1918. There were thirty-five in attendance.

The meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock by the President, Mrs Julia G. Babcock. Mayor C. L. Taylor gave the address of welcome. He assured the delegates that Bakersfield welcomed them to everything if they had plenty of money, but, unlike many other cities, Bakersfield welcomed them even though they had no money to spend. He invited them to come here to live. If they could not come, he wanted them to want to come.

Miss Sarah E. Bedinger gave a very interesting paper on the History of the City Library of Bakersfield. "Great trees from little acorns grow" was shown in the growth and development of her library from the organization by the W. C. T. U. some time in the eighties of a library company, shares being sold at $1.00 each, to the present library system that may reach every man, woman and child in the city through the City Library and its branches.

Miss Mary Young, of the Kern County Free Library staff, delightfully sang several selections, responding most graciously to encores. She was accompanied on the violin by her brother, V. R. Young.

Mrs Bessie Herrman Twaddle then told "What Tulare County has done in war work." Her library has been the distributing center for all war service literature, the librarian asking for large supplies of everything that could be used to advantage, including Pledge Cards, Liberty Loan posters and publicity material on W. S. S. and Thrift Stamps. These were posted in windows of all branches and schools. The library has been represented on every patriotic committee and the librarian is busy in the library and out. Shipments of books to the camp libraries were made from the branches instead of from the central library because of the crowded quarters and lack of office help.

Then followed the roll call of librarians, who responded with news items concerning their work. Telegrams of greeting were received from Miss Hitt and Miss Laugenour.

Miss McCardle, of the Fresno County Free Library, called attention to the fact that eight years ago the staff consisted of a librarian and two assistants. Now the work requires a librarian and sixteen assistants. In July, 1917, Fresno Public Library became a branch of the Fresno County Free Library. Every library in the county is now a part of the County Free Library, except Coalinga, which is a union high school district. Besides these regular branches, there are three playground branches.

Miss Provines, of Stanislaus County Free Library, said that their activities consisted largely of war work and that the librarian had organized many Red Cross units and had interested all possible, especially the children.

Miss Bigley, of Merced County Free Library, was successful in having the salaries of her staff materially raised, and told of an art exhibit which was held in the library at the time of the Teachers' Institute.

Mrs Reardon, of the Tulare City Library, was especially interested in Americanization of the Portuguese and Armenians.

Miss Ingram, of the Visalia Public Library, also told of their work with foreigners.

Miss Ferris, of the Kings County Free Library, and Miss Steele, of the Hanford Public Library, were interested especially in the practical war service.

Miss Bedinger, of the Bakersfield Public Library, reported that 400 books had been shipped to Camp Kearny. She also mentioned that the salaries of all her assistants had been raised.

The morning session then adjourned for luncheon at the Tegeler Hotel, where a very pleasant social hour was spent. Beale Memorial Library was then visited.

The program was resumed at half past two. During a short business session a Committee on Resolutions was appointed, consisting of Miss McCardle, Miss Provines and Miss Ferris. Mrs Babcock was elected the Nominator from the Fourth District.

Following this, Superintendent L. E. Chenoweth gave an address on Library Service to Schools. He paid tribute to the librarians, whom he had always found a source of never-failing support and optimism in the work that he and his teachers were trying to carry on. He then told of the library diploma in use in Kern County, which is given to each child who completes a course of supervised, directed reading.

Library War Service was the subject of a very inspiring talk given by our State Librarian, Milton J. Ferguson. He said that librarians have a great work to do in helping to win this war. Their work is of two kinds. First, to provide good books to occupy the mind of the soldier during the leisure time. This is of immense value in building up the morale in our Army. Second, to provide books of value, books needed in training an army to win. The men are very eager for these books that will make them better fighters. The closing thought was: "We must have a big civilian army back of the military army. We must 'carry on' here as well as at the front."

Miss McCardle then told of the California Library Association annual meeting to be held at Del Monte, June 18-22. She most emphatically urged all workers in the San Joaquin Valley to become members of their State Association.

On motion of Miss Bedinger, the Secretary was instructed to make a report of this meeting to Mrs John Schurch, formerly Miss Kumli.

It was moved by Miss Provines that thanks be extended to the President of the District for the splendid program provided for the occasion, to Miss Young and her accompanist for the delightful entertainment, to the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trade for the pleasant auto trip, to the Mayor of the city for the kindly reception, and to the G. A. R. for the hospitality in turning over this room. Carried.

The meeting then adjourned for the automobile trip to Edison, the Oil Fields and Stockdale Ranch given to the guests by the courtesy of the Bakersfield Chamber of Commerce.

DELLA F. NORTHEY, Secretary.

WHEREAS, It has pleased God to call to Himself our beloved Chief, Mr James L. Gillis, in whom during his life we found both leader and friend, and in whose death we have sustained an irreparable loss, be it therefore

Resolved, That we, the members of the Fourth District of the California Library Association, do hereby express our deep sense of personal sorrow, our obligation to him for all that we derived from him both as friend and as chieftain, and our profound sympathy with each member of his family in their greater loss; and be it hereby

Resolved further, That we pledge ourselves anew to the carrying out of the work which he left for us to continue, to fealty to his successor, and to the developing through every means in our power of the best library interests of the State and Nation.

AND WHEREAS, In the recent death of Mr L. F. Brite, for sixteen years Supervisor of Kern County, we feel that the members of the staff of the Kern County Free Library have lost a true and valued friend, and the library interests of Kern County sustained a profound loss, be it therefore

Resolved, also, That we extend to the members of Mr Brite's family and to the staff of the Kern County Free Library our expression of profound sympathy; and be it Resolved further, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this meeting, be printed in NEWS NOTES, and copies thereof be sent to Mrs James L. Gillis and to Mrs L. F. Brite, in whose sorrow we so deeply share.

Fifth, Eighth and Ninth Districts Meeting.

The inspiration that comes from large numbers of persons, with a common interest, being gathered together, was demonstrated in the joint meeting of the Fifth, Eighth and Ninth districts of the California Library Association that was held in Oroville, Saturday, March 30, 1918.

The morning was given over to a general reception in the Butte County Free Library, which proved a delightful place for the greeting of friends and the exchange of ideas on the individual phases of library work.

A delicious luncheon was served in one of the library rooms.

The program for the afternoon meeting, which was held in the auditorium of the Public Library, was divided into two parts.

The first was a round-table discussion of library problems, arranged by Miss Mann, President of the Fifth District, and Miss Clarke, President of the Eighth District, with Miss Mann presiding.

Miss Helen Bullock, of the Lodi Public Library, gave an interesting account of the story-hour, as conducted in one of the branch libraries on the lower East Side in New York City.

Distinctive features of the work with the schools was the next topic. Miss Hitt brought out the fact that in Yolo County, where the school work has been carried on longer than in any other county, with the stock of supplementary books constantly growing, it is becoming necessary to make fewer purchases each year in order to fill the demand for supplementary books, and more funds can be used for books of other classes, pictures and records. Miss Jammé, of Colusa County Free Library, spoke on the advisability of giving service to the schools as soon as possible after the establishment of the county library, and having the schools join in numbers rather than gradually, in order to develop the co-operative plan of the service. Miss Clarke discussed the great value of records in connection with the schools, and this topic was further enlarged upon by Miss Culver and Mrs Ada Jordan Pray, of Oroville. Miss Culver spoke of the large use of pictures that is made in the Butte County schools.

After a brief recess, the second part of the meeting was begun, with Miss Culver presiding.

Mrs A. F. Jones, on behalf of the Board of Library Trustees of the Oroville Public Library, gracefully extended the welcome of the city to the gathering.

M. J. Ferguson was appointed as chairman of a committee to draw up resolutions expressing the sentiment of those present on the death of Mr Gillis. Miss McCardle was asked to send the greetings of the joint meeting to Mrs Gillis and family. A committee was also appointed to send a bouquet of flowers to Mrs Gillis, in recognition of the nineteenth anniversary of the appointment of Mr Gillis as State Librarian. Greetings were also sent to Mrs May E. Smith, Librarian of the Oroville Public Library, who was unable to attend because of illness. Thanks were expressed to the Boys' Band, of Oroville, that played during the luncheon. Miss Mann, Miss Clarke and Miss Culver were appointed Nominators from their respective districts to the annual meeting of the California Library Association, to be held at Del Monte, June 18-22, 1918. Miss McCardle, as President of the Association, announced the date of this meeting and urged everyone to attend.

A. L. Cowell, of Stockton, then gave an interesting address on library publicity, urging more attention to this department of library work in order to bring the resources of the library to the public.

M. J. Ferguson, State Librarian, inspired his hearers in an address on the librarian's part in the war, it being the part of the "man behind the man behind the gun."

Joseph H. Quire, Librarian of Camp Kearny, recounted the work of the library in the Army camp, giving word-pictures and details that all were delighted to hear.

Miss Clara B. Dills also added a brief word of the life at Camp Lewis, which camp she had recently visited.

During the afternoon Miss Lotta Harris, of Oroville, charmed her audience with her rendition of several songs.

The meeting adjourned with the feeling that it had been a valuable and satisfactory one to everyone there. Then followed the added treat of an al fresco supper, an entirely impromptu arrangement, on the banks of the Feather River; a most enjoyable ending to a delightful day.

LOUISE E. JAMMÉ,

Secretary Ninth District.

The library workers of the Fifth, Eighth and Ninth districts of the California Library Association, coming together in joint session at Oroville on the 30th day of March, 1918, are inexpressibly saddened by the absence of James L. Gillis, who for many years has been our leader and our guide. We, therefore, through our Committee, wish it to be recorded that we have this day and on this occasion, which were desired and looked forward to by him, turned our thoughts to a contemplation of the great service rendered the people of California through his tirelessness, friendliness, energy and ability. And while there is a deep sorrow in our hearts over the passing of our friend and co-worker, we must also record that there is a satisfaction and a joy that fate has permitted us during these many years to associate with and to work with a man of such right thinking, such faithfulness and such generosity as James L. Gillis exemplified throughout his life. We want his family to know that we grieve with them in their irreparable loss.

Committee:

Seventh District Meeting.

A meeting of the Seventh District of the California Library Association was held on the evening of April 20, 1918, in the auditorium of the Monday Club House, Eureka, Calif. The President, H. A. Kendall, called the meeting to order and the following program was rendered: Solo, "Red is the English Rose," by Miss Harriet Fenwick; address, Mrs M. D. Henshall; solo, Miss Florence Connick; address, Milton J. Ferguson. Mrs Henshall spoke of the School side of Library work and Mr. Ferguson on Library War Service.

A business meeting of the Seventh District of the California Library Association was held May 18, 1918, at the County Library, Eureka, Calif. The President, H. A. Kendall, presided, and the following members were present: Ida M. Reagan, Mrs V. C. Bacon, Florence Simpson. At this meeting the suggested amendments to the Constitution of the California Library Association were read and discussed, and the sense of the meeting seemed to be that the delegates to the convention use their own judgment in this matter. Ida M. Reagan was elected a member of the Nominating Committee to represent the Seventh District at the annual meeting of the Association at Del Monte, June 18-22, 1918.

REFERENCE DEPARTMENT.

SUSAN T. SMITH, in charge.

The Reference Department furnishes information to any inquirer. It furnishes books to public libraries on request of the librarian, and to any other educational institution on request of its official head or its librarian; to individuals through the signature of a state officer, of the Librarian of the local library or of the official head of any other educational institution or on receipt of a $5.00 deposit; to a club or grange on request of its president, secretary or librarian. In counties having county free libraries, all requests must be made through the county free library.

The State Library pays the cost of transportation as follows: to any general branch of the county free library that requests books for general library service and is located in a part of the county supporting the county free library; to any (elementary or high) school district branch of the county free library that has joined the county free library and is wholly in a part of the county supporting the county free library; and, for school service only to any (elementary or high) school district branch of the county free library that has joined the county free library and is wholly or partly in a part of the county not supporting the county free library. In every other instance the charges both ways are paid by the borrower. All express companies grant a half-merchandise rate to the borrower on return shipments, and a half-merchandise rate both ways on shipments sent to libraries.

At the Annual Convention of High School Principals in Oakland, April 13, 1918, the Committee on Co-operation between county librarians and high schools made a report as to the best means of securing this co-operation. The plan which they recommended was unanimously endorsed by the convention. Copies of the report were sent to all county librarians.

The financial basis for co-operation as proposed is as follows:

Sec. 10. a. The reference section of the library of a smaller high school—say, up to 350 pupils—will cost from $800 to $1200, depending somewhat on the enrollment of the school, the courses of study and the particular library method of the school. The most essential books could be purchased the first year, and others added the second year or the third year if necessary. By thus distributing the initial expense over two or three years, it could not prove a burden to the district. Other additions to the reference section and replacements, will be needed from year to year, and should be provided for in the annual budget of the school district.

b. The cost of supplementary reading, general literature, books for temporary use, and periodicals, with other necessary service hereinbefore indicated, should be borne in part by the county because to an extent such service is in the interest of the county or the community as a whole, and in part by the school district because of the special school service rendered. Your committee agrees that the minimum amount that the school district should pay per year in this connection would be $75.00 for the first 25 teachers and pupils in average daily attendance for the previous year, $2.00 each for the next 100 in average daily attendance, and $1.00 each for each additional average daily attendant. While this would make an increase of about forty per cent over the amount now spent by the average high school for books and magazines, the real value of the service to the school will be increased a great deal more than forty per cent.

As this plan was prepared at the urgent request of the county librarians, the State Library recommends that all contracts made with high schools be in accordance with the regulations adopted. No other arrangement, either for part service or special service, can be satisfactory to either party concerned. If high schools will not join according to the plan, the county librarians should refuse to give service of any kind. It is also to be noted that the State Library will give free service only to those high schools contracting according to the whole plan, as adopted by the convention.

The county librarians are urged to read the report carefully before entering into any agreements with high school principals. The State Library will be glad to explain any points that are not clear.

CATALOG DEPARTMENT.

IDA G. MUNSON, in charge.

The work of the Catalog Department is proceeding along two parallel lines: the cataloging of the regular additions of new books, and the recataloging of much material needing a fuller treatment than it has heretofore received.

During April, May and June, 3255 volumes were cataloged, adding 13,025 cards to the catalog.

CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT.

EUDORA GAROUTE, in charge.

The California Department aims to have a thoroughly good collection of books on the history and description, resources and industries of the State, as well as the works of California authors in all departments of literature. These are made accessible by means of a card catalog. Full names and biographical sketches of California authors, artists, musicians, pioneers and early settlers are being secured, together with their photographs. The collection of bound periodicals is quite large. The Department also contains about 6000 bound volumes of newspapers, a file of which is being indexed with reference to the history of the State. Students will be assisted in their work.

Pioneers and Early Settlers.

A son of Stephen Edward Gillis has placed on file biographical cards for his father and also for James Norman Gillis. The Gillis brothers, through their friendship and association with Mark Twain and Bret Harte, are widely known. Many people of distinction have traveled to the Bret Harte country to interview these sturdy and gifted pioneers. They have both passed on but have left behind them an atmosphere of romance that will cause them to be long remembered.

John Taylor made the voyage to California in 1849 in the ship Orpheus, coming around the Horn. Mr. Taylor was prominent in San Francisco for 50 years, being connected with many leading institutions such as the California Academy of Sciences and California Pioneer Society. He was also a director in many business corporations. In 1856 he served as a member of the famous Vigilance Committee. His death occurred in 1902.

Other cards received are those of William J. Organ, Lewis G. Cabanis, Otis Curtis Freeman and Nathan Hammond Garritson.

The Call Index, covering the years April, 1905, to December, 1912, is being copied for the State Library at its Sutro branch, the managers of the Call having made this possible.

Catalog.

Three hundred and twenty-six cards have been added to the California catalog during April, May and June.

Donations.

Manuscripts, old ballots and other valuable material have been received from the following sources: Marysville Public Library, Miss Mary Freeman, Miss Nellie J. Cabanis, J. A. Fairchild, T. A. Perkins, C. N. Thompson, J. J. Boyce, Mrs W. J. Organ and W. G. Cohen.

Mrs I. G. Shaw presented seven early account books and Charles K. McClatchy added to the collection an original Sutter letter.

The work of gathering in material relating to the history of the motion picture in California has been taken up. A very interesting collection of this material has been received from Rob Wagner. Mr Wagner has recently written a book on this subject and is considered an authority.

A large number of historic pictures have been added recently.

BOOKS FOR THE BLIND DEPARTMENT.

MABEL R. GILLIS, in charge.

Embossed books in five different types are sent to any blind resident of California upon application. Circular and finding list, with Call slip postal, will be sent on request. Writing appliances and games for the blind are loaned as samples to those wishing to buy such articles, so that the different kinds can be tried before they are ordered. Addresses of firms supplying all articles loaned will be furnished on request.

Books sent to individuals from an institution distributing embossed literature are carried free through the mails.

The first book was loaned June 13, 1905. There are now 1060 blind borrowers, 26 borrowers having been added during April, May and June. Total accessions are 8278, as follows: New York point books 1738; New York point music, 160; American Braille books, 2014; American Braille music, 934; European Braille books, 833; European Braille music, 44; Moon books, 2052; Moon music, 3; Standard dot books, 16; Line books, 161; Line music, 21; Ink print books, 170; *Appliances, 63; *Games, 39; Maps, 30.

Copies of magazines have been donated during the last three months by J. R. Atkinson, F. B. Beans, Mrs. A. W. Joy, Bessie A. Long, Wm. A. Miller, John O'Donnell, Mrs. L. Sargent, Christian Record Publishing Co., Free Gospel Library for the Blind, Michigan School for the Blind, Pennsylvania Institution for the Blind, Society for the Aid of the Sightless, Navier Free Publication Society for the Blind, Ziegler Publishing Co.

Other gifts are indicated in the list of books, etc., which have been added to the library during the last three months. See page 444.

During April, May and June, 3657 books, etc., were loaned as follows: New York point, 670; American Braille, 1041; European Braille, 360; Moon, 1551; Standard dot, 0; Line, 4; Ink print books, 21; Appliances, 7; Maps, 0; Games, 3. The loans were divided by class as follows: Philosophy and religion, 346; sociology, 26; language, 24; primers, 49; science, 21; useful arts, 49; fine arts, 0; amusements, 3; music, 56; literature, 207; fiction, 1819; travel and history, 391; biography, 199; periodicals, 557.

The double postals which have always been sent to borrowers to announce the shipment of books will be discontinued on account of the increase in postage and the continual growth of work in the department without a corresponding growth in the staff. Instead of the double postals being sent, a single addressed return postal will be placed in the front of each book. These postals may be used for requesting books or for any other correspondence with the State Library. If not needed, postals should be returned in the book. It is hoped that this plan will work out satisfactorily.

The return address for the State Library on book packages is now placed on the wrapper with a rubber stamp. This is for the conservation of paper and saves much of the time used in pasting on the paper return labels. A supply of the printed return labels is still kept on hand for the use of borrowers, who may lose their wrappers or who may have donations to make to the library.

While the library wishes all borrowers to have as long a time to read a book as is necessary, we would like to remind them that books should be returned promptly when they have been finished. Other readers are often waiting for books and promptness in their return is appreciated by the library and by borrowers.

Home Teaching.

Miss Foley, home teacher of the blind, is at the Sutro Branch of the State Library, Sacramento and Webster streets, San Francisco, every Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. She gives lessons regularly in Alameda, Berkeley, Decoto and Oakland. Miss Morrison, home teacher of the blind, is at the Los Angeles County Free Library, tenth floor, Hall of Records, on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons from 1.30 until 5.30 o'clock and at the Long Beach Public Library the second Thursday afternoon in each month. She gives lessons regularly in other nearby places.

From April 1 to June 30 they gave 390 lessons in the homes of the blind and 221 lessons at the libraries and institutions on the 75 afternoons they spent in them. Miss Foley and Miss Morrison have made 123 visits and calls in connection with the work for purposes other than giving lessons, and received 20 visits in connection with the work.

During the quarter Miss Foley and Miss Morrison spent 139 hours or correspondence and preparing lessons. They wrote 235 letters and 62 postals and received 160 letters and 12 postals. They also answered and made 393 telephone calls. Their various other activities in connection with their work can not be easily tabulated.

Persons who know of possible pupils anywhere in Orange or Los Angeles counties are urged to communicate with Miss Catharine J. Morrison, 306A S. Bonnie Brae, Los Angeles, and anywhere around the bay with Miss Kate M. Foley, Sutro Branch, State Library, Sacramento and Webster streets, San Francisco (telephone West 3046).

*Appliances and games are loaned as samples to any one wishing to try them.

LIBRARY SCHOOL.

BEULAH MUMM, in charge.

The Library School was established in 1913 for the purpose of helping to supply the demand for trained librarians in California. The year's course begins in September and ends in June. It aims to cover the various branches of library science needed in all libraries, and at the same time places particular emphasis on the needs and conditions of California libraries.

College or university graduation is required for admission. Applicants must be at least twenty years of age, and under thirty on the day of the beginning of school. There is no tuition charge, and all necessary supplies and textbooks are furnished by the Library.

A copy of the Circular of Information may be obtained, upon request, from the State Librarian, Sacramento, California.

Outside lecturers have spoken to the class of 1918 on varied topics. On April 12, Rev Harvey V. Miller, of the Sacramento Congregational Church, told about the possibilities of the county library in the isolated rural community. On April 17, Miss Edna Holroyd, C.S.L.S. '15, and Librarian of the Tuolumne County Free Library, described the progress of the work in Tuolumne County. May 21, Mr Robert E. Cowan, of San Francisco, gave a lecture on California bibliography. On May 24, Dr Aurelia H. Reinhardt, President of Mills College, gave a most inspiring talk on what librarians can do to help win the war. May 31, Dr Margaret S. McNaught, Commissioner of Elementary Schools, spoke on the possibilities of library work in connection with rural schools. On June 3, Miss Hazel Askey, assistant in the Siskiyou County Free Library, gave an account of the work in that county.

In April, Miss Eddy and Miss Mumm of the State Library, and Miss Beal of the Civil Service Commission, spent a day in Palo Alto at Stanford, and two days in Berkeley at the University of California, interviewing applicants for the next library school class. There is, of course, a wide interest in war activities among college students, but in spite of this the prospects for the coming year are good and the class promises to be up to the usual standard.

Beginning on the first of May, members of the class visited the headquarters of the Yolo County Free Library at Woodland. The girls made the trip two at a time, spending the full day at the library. Each student was supplied with a sheet of questions to be answered, covering in detail the operation of the county library.

The Sutro Branch occupies the top floor of the Lane Medical Library Building, Sacramento and Webster streets, San Francisco, and is open every day except Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

To determine the county in which any place is located see list following these introductory paragraphs.

Those libraries are marked with an asterisk (*) which are not free to the public for either loan or reference purposes.

Libraries marked with ‡ are United States depository libraries; those marked with § are depositories for the Official Gazette of the Patent Office; those marked with || are geological depositories; those marked with # are Library of Congress card depositories. This information was revised in March, 1916.

Branches of the county free library receive supplementary library service from the State Library free of transportation charges with the exception of those branches where the name is in italic. When the branch has a reading room, it is indicated by r.r. in the list of branches under county free library.

The months are abbreviated as follows:

January Ja	July Jl
February F	August Ag
March Mr	September S
April Ap	October O
May My	November N
June Je	December D

In order that the figures for circulation may be uniform, current magazines are included in the total whether reported that way or not.

An effort is being made to have the statistics uniform in reference to number of branches. Any distributing point through which service is given directly from headquarters is counted as a branch. For example, in a school with several class rooms, if service is given directly to each class room separately, each room served is counted as a branch. But, on the other hand, if a school district has joined and both school and community service are given from one location, such service is counted as two branches.

There are in California 42 county free libraries (58 in operation); 3 library district libraries; 4 high school district libraries; 129 libraries supported by city taxation; 53 towns or districts with free public libraries that are included in county free library service (28 under sec. 3; 1 under sec. 4; 22 under sec. 16; 12 under Pol. C., sec. 4041); 66 law libraries, of which 55 are county law libraries; 58 county teachers' libraries; 356 libraries in educational institutions, of which 6 are universities, 7 colleges, 8 normal schools, 273 public high schools, 62 private schools and other institutions; 45 miscellaneous institution libraries and 47 association or society libraries; 30 subscription libraries. In connection with the above libraries are 2836 branches and deposit stations.

There are 176 library buildings, of which 158 were gifts, and of these gifts 145 are from Andrew Carnegie.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

The County Library, through the cooperation of the Medical branch, was able to fill a request for a sectional skeleton to be used in giving a first aid course.

The County Department of the Oakland Free Library on August 1 became the Alameda County Free Library and moved into its new headquarters on the first of September. A pleasant light room has been reserved for the library on the second floor of the Hall of Records.

brary and so there was no interruption of the work that had been carried on with these libraries.

The Alameda County Library has contracted with the Oakland Free Library for service to be given Piedmont and Emeryville, two incorporated towns not having libraries. This service will be given from the two Oakland branches, Golden Gate and Piedmont. These branches are located in the district just on the edge of these two communities. At an early date the County Library will establish a branch in each of these towns also, so in this way the demands of all the people residing in these districts will be met.

Mr Frick, County Superintendent of Schools, has turned over to the Alameda County Library the Teachers' library and also the Teachers' library fund. The County Superintendent's office is next door to the County Library office, which is a great advantage.

The tax rate for 1918-19 will be 5 cents on $100. This will raise about $18,000.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

The Library's appropriation for the year in the municipal budget will amount to about $105,000.

On August 1st the County Department of the Oakland Free Library became the Alameda County Library, and the Oakland Free Library discontinued its county-wide service. A new contract was made with the County Library by which the Oakland Free Library will still serve the people of Piedmont and of Emeryville through its Piedmont Avenue and Golden Gate branches respectively.

The Branch Department of the Library has moved into the commodious quarters formerly occupied by the County Department.

On September 26th the Golden Gate and Piedmont Avenue branches were restored to the old hours of opening, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on week days, which had been reduced on September 1, 1917, to a five hour schedule.

The new Carnegie buildings for the Alden and Golden Gate branches are nearing completion, and will probably be occupied some time in October.

There have been several staff changes during the quarter. Miss Nelda Evers was transferred to the Branch Department, Mrs. Fern N. Bateman to the Piedmont Avenue Branch, and Miss Jeanette C. Anderson to the East Oakland Branch. Miss Emma C. Keeler, who had been serving as an assistant in the Palo Alto Public Library, was appointed as an assistant at the Golden Gate Branch. Miss Zaida V. Rawlins of the Substitute Staff was promoted to the rank of assistant. Miss Haven of the Catalog Department was granted a six months' leave of absence, and Miss Shirley Preston received a year's leave in order to enter the departmental service in Washington, D. C.

News comes that Mrs. Potter of the Catalog Department, who is on leave for service in France, has been placed in charge of the A. L. A. War Library service in Paris.

During September Miss Harris and Miss English of the Fresno County Library and Miss Bailey of the San Mateo County Library were visitors at the County Library office.

During the heavy storm in September a leak in the roof caused a flood to descend on the two rooms of the County Library office. Much damage was done to rugs, filing cases, new books and new pamphlet files which had just been installed.

Two schools joined the County Library in September, Valle Vista and Franklin. The tax rate for next year will be .4 mills on the dollar.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

During the Summer Session at the Humboldt State Normal School, a special course of nine weeks in the Administration of School Libraries was offered, open only to teachers who were doing special summer work at the normal school. Much better results are obtained by segregating the classes for normal school students and for experienced teachers, and it is the plan to offer such a course each summer. Several displays of books on various subjects were made, and the librarian gave an assembly talk on the war books. Mrs Whitbeck was a summer visitor and gave a talk on Business Efficiency, beside visiting the story telling class, where she demonstrated how not to tell a story.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

We have a large war map (Literary Digest $1.00) which has been mounted on cardboard. One of the boys keeps the battle line up to date. He uses black and white headed pins for the French and British, and has small flag pins for the United States troops. To make the line easily discernible across the room he has carried colored string from pin to pin throughout the line. There is always a large crowd of enthusiastic boys around the map.

We have added two new tables and chairs, making the seating capacity of the library now about sixty students.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

For some months the library has maintained an information desk on food conservation, under the direction of Mrs

C. C. Adams, until recently the woman food administrator of the city. In August a regular office for the food administration was opened in the basement of the library. This is open daily. Information is given on war foods, and sugar cards are signed here.

In August Mrs Adams arranged an exhibit at the library of samples of canned and dried fruits and vegetables prepared at the municipal cannery by volunteer workers.

The catalog department has been moved to the large room on the upper floor formerly used for club meetings. The art gallery is now used for all meetings of organizations. The former catalog room will be filled with book stacks.

During the summer the exhibit shown in the art gallery was a collection of paintings, mainly by Stephen Pennoyer. They were much admired.

In September the library showed a large number of the mounted pictures in our own collection. We are offering to lend these for a month, in frames, for home decoration. To start this service, we bought eighteen frames in all, in three sizes, to fit the various sizes of the mounts. The frames are without glass, and have movable backs, fastened by buttons, so that a picture can readily be inserted. They are also fitted with screw eyes, so that it will be easy to hang them. The cost of the eighteen frames was about ten dollars. We hope that by placing good pictures on the walls of homes and rooms of tourists, we shall give real pleasure to our patrons, and perhaps enlarge the general knowledge of pictures. More frames will be purchased if the demand warrants it. Heavy envelopes made from wrapping paper are provided in which to take the pictures home.

For some time we have felt that the school children should be given lessons in the use of the library, and that a librarian should visit the school rooms and talk to the children about the books in the traveling libraries that are sent to the schools. Also, the teachers need assistance in choosing suitable reference questions for the children to look up in the library. It was not possible to assign anyone from the library staff to this work, because of the press of duties in the library building. Accordingly, the librarian talked the matter over with the superintendent of schools, and then went before the Board of Education and suggested that they employ a supervisor of library work in the grades. The board voted to employ a trained librarian for half time. Miss Elizabeth Riddell, librarian of the Vermont Square Branch in Los Angeles, was appointed, and began work in September. She will also have charge of the school library from which the teachers get books for supplementary reading.

There have been some changes in the staff recently. In September Miss Ruth Burton left to enter the university of Washington as a student. At the same time Miss Edna Anderson went to Washington to take a position in the War Department. New members of the staff are Mrs Violet Gresham, formerly high school librarian here; Miss Geraldine Shipley and Miss Helen MacDonald, graduates of the Los Angeles library school in the class of 1918; Miss Mary Oxley, from the public library of Cedar Rapids, Iowa; and Miss Rena Clark, from the public library of Terre Haute, Indiana. Miss Helen Courtright, formerly assistant librarian, is now librarian of the high school.

The circulation for the three months, July–Sept., averaged fifteen per cent more than for the same period last year. In August the library loaned over 35,000 books, the largest number ever loaned here in one month.

committee of the State Council of Defense.

A selected list of books and periodicals on engineering and related subjects was compiled by the Industrial department, and published for the use of those seeking to fit themselves for government service.

Methods for the conservation of foods and fruits were exhibited and recipes distributed in the Circulation department.

The Art and Music department reports an increase in the use of mounted pictures. 18,918 were issued in the year ending June, 1918, as against 13,070 in the previous twelve months.

The Los Angeles Public Library War Savings Society, organized February, 1918, has sold to members of the staff $1300 worth of Thrift and War Savings Stamps.

82,000 volumes have been received for camp libraries and 58,000 have been distributed to date. The library has just shipped 2,500 books to Miss Harriet Long, who used to be County Librarian in Kern County, but is now representative of the American Library Association at San Antonio, Texas, and from that point is supervising the work of supplying books to the soldiers on a certain section of the Mexican border. Her section is the eastern portion, the western section being in charge of Miss Ethel McCullough, whose headquarters are at El Paso.

There has been an unusually large number of resignations this summer, due largely to the war conditions. Vacancies have been filled in part by graduates of the last class of the Library School and in part by members of the class of Junior Attendants, which was conducted for the first time this summer. This is an intermediate grade between Pages and Senior Attendants. In a large library like this it is possible to use Junior Attendants in purely clerical positions, thereby releasing the more highly trained graduates of library schools for the more difficult duties, such as reference work.

Red Cross work has grown tremendously in the larger branches. The membership in the North East Branch is 1200 and in the Boyle Heights Branch 900, an example of the adjustment possible between library services and war work.

It is estimated that between forty and fifty papers published in towns and cities of California will be withdrawn from our files by the action of the War Board forbidding free distribution of newspapers.

Several changes have been made in the faculty of the Library School of the Los Angeles Public Library because of Mrs Brewitt's resignation to become librarian of the Alhambra Public Library. Marion Horton, for the past year instructor in the Library School, has been appointed acting principal for one year, Arnie McPherron Leaf, instructor, and Elizabeth Williams, reviser. Mrs Leaf is a graduate of Stanford University and of the Los Angeles Library School. She has studied in the Los Angeles State Normal School and has been a member of the faculty of the English department at Stanford University. Miss Williams is a graduate of the Los Angeles Library School.

Twenty-three students have been accepted as members of the Class of 1919. Ten of these are college graduates, two with masters' degrees. The others have had one or two years or from one to six years of library experience. Six partial students, already in library work, have registered for one or two courses.

Additions to the equipment of the school will make the students' work more efficient this year. A special typing room with new typewriters and desks has been arranged on the ninth floor of the library. Other furniture has been purchased during the summer, as well as complete files of library periodicals and the usual material relating to library economy, so that the school now has a strong collection of library literature.

The Library School of the Los Angeles Public Library was admitted to membership in the Association of American Library Schools at its annual meeting in July. This is a high tribute to the efficiency of the school, since only eight others in the country are admitted and no other library school west of the Mississippi has met its requirements.

The Association recognizes the steady growth of the school from a training class, which accepted only students for the Los Angeles Library, to a school whose graduates are in demand in libraries all over the country. Its faculty of national reputation, attractive quarters and valuable collection of material on library economy make it well equipped to prepare students for positions in many different types of libraries.

During the summer the school has given a two months course of training in library methods which prepares for the position of junior attendant. Eighteen students completed the course and required practical work, which was chiefly in the registration and circulation departments. The practice was planned to give an opportunity for patriotic service as well as drill in library methods. The students mimeographed lists of patriotic books for children, food conservation recipes for distribution in the main library and the branches, and made readable lists of books for the Base Hospital library at Camp Cody.

Kelly, Genevieve, teacher-librarian, Corcoran High School.

Knowlton, Gladys, assistant, State Library, Sacramento.

McClees, Sidney, children's librarian, Cahuenga Branch, Los Angeles Public Library.

McLaughlin, Gertrude, assistant, Kings County Free Library, Hanford.

received from various sources a number of valuable sets of historical and genealogical publications that have discontinued issuing some years ago.

The average number of gifts the past three or four months was more than fifty volumes. Several rare and valuable works have been added that are not open for general use. A rare edition of the life of Washington, and a discussion of the Declaration of Independence published at the time of Washington's death are among these.

While the war has made a decrease in the interest of some of those who formerly made use of the library, still many others are coming, and the demand for genealogical information continues about the same as before.

The library of the College of Dentistry, University of Southern California, is open every day from 10 to 4 o'clock for the benefit of the students of the College of Dentistry, and all ethical members of the dental profession, residents of the State of California. An assistant librarian is in attendance at all times to help the students to locate information which they may be seeking.

The library consists of volumes on dental science and allied subjects, and volumes upon the fundamental medical sciences. It is a strictly dento-medical library. During this summer we have added about fifty-two bound volumes of dental journals and between fifteen and twenty new works on the various branches of dental science. Medical book houses of Los Angeles have a standing order from this library to forward in some cases one copy, in special cases more than one copy, of all books which may appear upon dentistry and the allied subjects.

LOS ANGELES CO.—Continued.Pasadena—Continued.*QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

The most important item which Pasadena High School Library can give to News Notes of California Libraries is that of the removal of the library from the third floor down to the first floor of the main building. Two large rooms have been thrown together and fitted up for the library. New oak shelving and stacks to match the furniture have been installed. The new rooms give more space, better light and ventilation, and best of all, will bring the library down nearer the center of the school plant where it will be convenient for both teachers and students.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

During vacation the Tenth Street Branch was opened every afternoon, to provide a place for the children of the neighborhood.

During July the library conducted demonstrations of the drying of fruits and vegetables at the main library and at each branch. Miss Porter of the City Domestic Science Department gave the talks. A model sun dryer, such as any one could make and operate at very small cost, was made from government drawings, and used in the demonstrations. The library believes that the demonstrations have led to some food saving which would not otherwise have been made.

The board voted September 3 to do away with any allowance for illness. An increase of $5.00 to each staff member was made, with the belief that this would more than compensate for the allowance formerly made for illness. All absences for whatever cause bring a proportionate deduction from salary.

An additional $5.00 raise to each member of the staff was voted at the same meeting, making a total increase of $10.00 to each worker.

Miss L. B. Kirkman was married to J. C. Penley during her vacation. She returns to work October first.

Miss Joy Peck was married to C. C. Brisco during September, returning to work October 7.

Miss Margaret Parke has leave of absence to attend the University of California.

Miss Ruth Bishop has leave of absence to attend the Los Angeles Library Training School this winter.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

The Riverside Public Library has developed its war work to such dimensions and such intensity that war work stands first in point of service.

Mr J. F. Daniels, Librarian, Riverside Public Library, has been appointed supervisor of library work at March Field and in addition is conducting a series of Wednesday night meetings on the Y. M. C. A. program. The library at March Aviation Field shows an active use by the thousand men, including the ground school and cadet fliers. The shelving has been increased, more books have been added and an excellent selection of technical books has been sent by the A. L. A. The gratitude of all the men in camp for periodicals and technical books sent by the A. L. A. would convince any one that the money is well spent.

Miss Irene Hunter, daughter of the Rev. W. A. Hunter, graduate of Colorado College, is the volunteer library worker at the Y. M. C. A. Hut, March Aviation Field.

Miss Janette Lever, reference librarian, has been given a leave of absence to take up war work in Washington during the period of the war. Miss Lever is a filing clerk in the Ordnance department and began her work in June.

Miss Mildred Parsons, first assistant, also has been given leave of absence to do war work. Miss Parsons has left for France, where she will take a position in the office of the Chief of the Quartermaster General's office.

Miss Lois A. Johnstone, for the past year assistant in the San Bernardino County Library and a librarian of experience, has been appointed first assistant in the absence of Miss Parsons.

Apprentices are receiving instructions and the work of the staff has been divided up so that it may be carried on without interruption until the return of the absent members.

The war work of the library has continued throughout the summer. Scrapbooks are being made and sent out as fast as needed; books for the soldiers are coming in; the Food Conservation bulletin board is kept up to date; and preparations are being made for the great drive in November.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

In this day and age it is hard to tell just where library work begins, or ends, it is so intermingled with war work of one kind or another. At present our basement is being used as a "Club Center." Eight sewing machines have been installed and the different clubs and women's organizations of the town do Red Cross work, or French or Belgium Relief sewing. The librarian has been made manager of this center, and since the middle of July there have been turned out 128 pajama suits and 100 chemises, beside sewing on 300 labels on 150 pairs of socks, and doing sewing for the relief of France and Belgium. This of course is outside work and does not in any way interfere with the regular work of the librarian.

Two new book stacks have been installed at the rear of the librarian's desk which will be used for filing of magazines in cases, to save the cost of binding while prices are so high. A new typewriter chair and a movable shelf for the desk are some of the helps the library board has furnished for the librarian. Also Miss Thelma Sikes has been engaged to assist Saturdays during the school year.

A war map has been placed in the lobby of the library which proves of much interest to the public and gives the librarian something to do these days to keep up with the Allies. A "Food Bulletin" table is on the other side and is in charge of the teacher of Domestic Science in the grammar school. Mrs Jennie Slugg Goerlitz, who is specializing at present on sugarless recipes.

The Upland Public Library was represented at the United War Service Drive meeting in Los Angeles September 23 by E. C. Harwood, the president of the library board, and the librarian.

Library Club.

The first meeting of the Library Club since its organization at the Upland Public Library in May of this year will be held at Chaffey Library of the Ontario-Upland High School Saturday, October 5, at 10.30 o'clock. This club was organized for mutual help, and is composed of the librarians and all those interested in library work of the cities of Pomona, Ontario, Claremont and Upland, and surrounding towns. Officers of the organization are president, Mrs F. H. Manker of Upland; secretary-treasurer Mrs Robinson of Claremont; executive board members W. A. Fiske of the Chaffey Library and Miss Harris of Pomona Public.

A report of the state convention at Del Monte will be given by Miss Monroe of the Ontario Public, and Miss Jacobus of the Pomona will talk on "War Work in Libraries." Music will be furnished by the hostess library, and a brief report, by the president of the United War Service Drive meeting held in Los Angeles. The business of adopting a constitution and by-laws will also be presented.

The object of this club will be twofold—getting acquainted with the surrounding librarians, and the bringing of the work of the state and district to those librarians and assistants who are unable to attend such meetings.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

Five additional school districts have joined the County Free Library: Chula Vista, La Presa, Monserrate, Olivenhain and River. The county library is open Saturday afternoons for the convenience of county teachers, beginning Oct. 5, 1918.

Twenty-three teachers called to select books for schools during September. 2315 books were sent to schools during September.

The East San Diego Branch of the County Library moved into the new $10,000 library given East San Diego by the Carnegie Corporation on August 1. 1100 additional books were sent out for the opening and Miss Herrman with two of her staff were there all day, helping with the moving and planning the readjustment. The City Council has voted to allow the Y. M. C. A. the use of the basement every evening except that one already accorded to the Boy Scouts. The building is so planned that the basement floor makes an ideal place for a civic center.

Books recently returned from Camp Kearny carried a high average circulation, non-fiction a trifle higher than the fiction, about six issues to the volume. When you remember that the most popular volumes were so worn out that title page, date slip and all records were gone entirely, it is a good record for books other than the best sellers.

Miss Herrman was elected as secretary of the United War Work Campaign committee organized to carry on the work for the November campaign. Fletcher Forward was added to the staff as shipping clerk at $50 per month and Mrs Grace Head was given an increase in salary to $60 per month.

The tax rate for 1918-19 will be 1m. on the dollar.

The following branch custodians have been appointed: Miss Florence Hewson of El Cajon; Miss Margaret Grand of Julian; Gretchen Leonore Flower of San Diego State Normal.

The service given to National City Teachers' Library has been merged with that of the high school library. The work was merged when Miss Bomgardner went to National City as high school librarian some time during the fall of 1917.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

The National City High School joined the San Diego County Free Library in April and has greatly profited by the action, especially in connection with the work of the English Department, which has already drawn heavily upon the County Library's drama collection.

Many new purchases have been allowed by the school board, notably, of catalog cabinets and files for bills and pamphlets, and of a large number of those reference books which are necessary to the proper equipment of a high school library. The total number of magazine subscriptions is raised this year to eighteen. The Readers' Guide has been subscribed for, as well.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

The public library has suffered great loss in the resignation of the president of its board of trustees, Eugene Ferry Smith, who left Camp Greene, North Carolina, in August, to go to England with the 310th Aero Squadron. His resignation as a member of the Board of Library trustees was presented to the Mayor at the time of his leaving the country. Lieutenant Smith is still in England, in an aero camp near Liverpool, but expects soon to cross to France. He writes of visiting the public and private libraries in Winchester and Liverpool, and of the able work of the English libraries which are devoting almost their entire time to collecting and distributing books to the army.

Recent changes on the library staff comprise the resignation of Miss Vivien C. Mackenzie, who in the first three months accomplished splendid work as librarian of the Logan Heights Branch, and who left September 1 to become reference librarian at Fresno; the marriage of Miss Esther Wrottenberg, who resigned as reference assistant in September; the appointment of Miss Claire Bonnell, graduate of the library school of the University of Wisconsin and formerly branch librarian in Portland and Los Angeles, as librarian of the Logan Heights Branch; the resignation of Mrs Bae B. Quereau, librarian of the University Heights Branch, who has gone to Washington to accept a position in the War Department, and the appointment of Mrs Ruth Keefe Eldridge as Mrs Quereau's successor on our staff.

On October 2 an apprentice class of six members began a three months' course under Miss Warren's direction. Lectures, problems and assigned reading will occupy five mornings each week. In the afternoons the students are assigned to practical work in the departments of the library. Each member works one evening a week. The lectures will cover reference work, cataloging, loan desk methods, children's work, and book selection.

It is interesting to note that the 12,833 items that were added during the year by gift and deposit, were divided as follows: from publishers, for the Publishers Deposit Section, 1189; from libraries, carrying out the storehouse plan, 2807; from individuals, making the Sutro Branch the custodian of their private collections, 2362; from institutions and societies making the Sutro Branch their library headquarters, 6475.

The one especially new activity of the year has been the taking in for safe keeping of manuscripts for unprinted books. The manuscripts of several different California authors have been deposited. The largest deposit of this kind was made by the Theodore H. Hittell Estate. It is made up of the unpublished works of the late Mr Hittell.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.A Depository for Authors' Manuscripts.

The Sutro Branch of the California State Library, located in San Francisco, is offering to become a depository for authors' manuscripts. Authors are being invited to send to the Sutro Branch one copy of each manuscript submitted to editors; and the idea is to develop a depository of writings; not only of printed publications but of original manuscripts as the authors wrote them; unedited, uncut, uncensored, and even rejected.

Authors have regretted often, when they came to make a book, that they had their stories only in the printed, more or less altered form; no original manuscripts. And editors of other men's work have wished that they had complete, original manuscript deposit to go by.

It would be a comfort to know that there was a place where one could keep and get all one's own and all the other writers' complete and original works.

It should be noted especially that the deposit in each case remains the property of the author or the depositor.

The following letter is being mailed to authors and is printed here as further explanation of the plan:

The Sutro Branch of the California State Library offers to act as custodian of two copies of each article or book written by an author, one copy in the form in which it went to the editor or publisher and the other the final form in which it appeared in print.

Such a file would be an invaluable historical record. It would help preserve for all time source material along two different lines: the work of editors and publishers during a particular period of history and the true picture of each writer.

It is a matter of great regret that we have in many, many cases no way to distinguish between the writer's own work and that of the reviser, printer and proof reader. A writer's copy is often cut and revised so greatly when it comes back to him in the form of galley proof that it entirely misrepresents him. "Misrepresents" may or may not be an improvement in the minds of the reading public. The fact is that what the public reads is not what was written by the author.

Will you help in this undertaking? For the past will you send two copies each (one in the original and one in the final form) of as many of your writings as possible? And in the future will you arrange to do the same for everything you write?

And of your manuscripts for which you have as yet not found a printer or publisher, will you file one copy now for preservation? Unpublished manuscripts are cared for as confidential deposits, if that is what you prefer. We already have several filed with this agreement. By placing them in our custody, your work is preserved until such time as conditions will make it possible to get it into print.

We suggest that all copies of everything you send in be considered a deposit and remain your property. Receipts on three by five inch slips will be sent to you for each item deposited.

We hope to hear that you will cooperate in the making of this historical record.

The Sunday issue of the San Francisco Chronicle, October 13, 1918, printed the following as its leading editorial:

WHAT THE AUTHOR WRITES.Novel Plan for the Preservation of Original Productions Which Will Invite Discussion.

A question of world-wide interest to the writers and readers of books is raised in a very practical form by the Sutro Branch of the California State Library, which offers "to act as custodian of two copies of each article or book written by an author, one copy in the form in which it went to the editor or publisher and the other the final form in which it appeared in print."

The circular goes on to say that "such a file would be an invaluable historical record. It would help preserve for all time sources of material along two different lines: the work of editors and publishers during a particular period of history, and the true picture of each writer."

It is surely not too much to say that this idea will provoke more discussion than any other literary issue raised in a century and not excepting even the question of international copyright. To many an author, and especially to those affected by the mutilations of their publishers, the spoiling of copy is a far more serious matter than the pirating of books. Piracy is the tribute which theft pays to merit, and sooner or later the much-pirated author can get even with those who have robbed him, but what redress is there for the writer compelled to permit his name to go on the cover of a book vitally different from what he made it?

In some cases the years bring their revenge, and the popular writer may insist upon the publisher printing everything exactly as written, and even insist that new editions of old works contain the excised material, or the material written in either by the editor or by the author under pressure.

Perhaps every one knows that a drama as presented is rarely what was written by the dramatist, and that the author has not yet been found who would recognize his book as that presented in a moving picture, but, except when the dramatist suffers in his volume, he is not so immediately concerned. If the play fails he wants to forget it, and if it succeeds he is bound to take all the credit and say nothing about the stage manager, the actors, the stage carpenters and the electricians who collaborated in the success.

But the reading public is not so familiar with the fact that books undergo great changes from the time the manuscript leaves the authors' hands to the time of publication. In many instances the alterations are merely trivial details of editing, and in such cases the form of preservation suggested by the Sutro Branch of the State Library would be quite unnecessary and would indeed lead to a useless cluttering up of the shelves.

It is also not apparent that there would be any advantage in duplicating articles contributed to newspapers and magazines. Here the right of the editor is not to be questioned. As the person responsible for the policy of his paper his word is and must be law. The article end of the proposition presents many other difficulties, and, in any event, there is not much interest in knowing what the editor of ten years ago cut out of a contributed article.

But it is a fact that sad havoc has been played with the manuscripts of books, and that the reading world is most anxious to know just what it was the publisher cut out of the volumes of a favorite author. In the case of forgotten books it does not much matter, and it might be suggested as a practical detail that the library making the proposal return the manuscript of works which do not live to see a second edition. This would save shelf room, and shelf room threatens to be the big problem in such a scheme.

Readers of yesterday's books, and yesterday's books are those that have lived, know that many a masterpiece was mutilated by the publishers, and they would give much to know just what was written—information not available in all cases.

It requires no stretch of the imagination to see this suggestion of the Sutro Library forming the basis of world-wide discussion, and, incidentally, bringing additional fame to the literary interest as pursued in California. American authors do not suffer so much from their publishers as from the Comstockian censorship, but all over the world the mutilated manuscript is the author's lament, and, therefore, this big Californian idea will arouse interest wherever it is exploited.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

The Stockton Free Public Library War Savings Society reports fourteen members and $700 subscribed to October, 1918.

The Stockton Free Public Library has recently acquired by purchase and gift two maps of Stockton and San Joaquin County published in early days. On account of their historic value these maps have been framed and hung in a conspicuous place in the library. One of these maps was purchased from R. C. Tumulty and pictures the city of Stockton in 1861, by Duncan Beaumont. The map was published by Kierski & Bro., stationers. The other map is an index map of San Joaquin County showing all tracts of land purchased or located upon it to April 1, 1862, and character of all original titles, also county roads, ferries, etc. This map was compiled from the books of the U. S. Land Office, from the books of the state locating agent and from surveys of Duncan Beaumont, George E. Drew and Joseph P. Neall. The original drawing was approved and published by the Board of Supervisors May 1, 1862, and drawn and published by H. P. Handy. George E. Catts was the donor of this map. He informed the librarian that it was originally owned by Captain Johnson. That the merchants of early days realized the value of the art of advertising is quite evident as the entire margin of the map of the City of Stockton, $3\frac{1}{4}$ by 4 ft., is bordered with circles, each of which features advertisements of mercantile firms.

A War Directory is maintained at the Stockton Free Public Library, of leaders in the various war activities in Stockton and San Joaquin County.

1316 books were collected at the Stockton Free Public Library and forwarded to the libraries at the U. S. Naval Training Station on Goat Island. These books were the gift of the citizens of Stockton and San Joaquin County.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

An attempt is made to make the library system as nearly like that of a city library as possible. One teacher is in charge, but the regular librarians are all students. Three are chosen from the study hall, for each period of the day, each one remaining in the library a week at a time. Cards are issued to all students and teachers, and books are let out for a period of two weeks, with privilege of renewal.

The books are classified according to the Dewey and the Cutter systems. There are shelves for periodicals and government publications, and a rack with sticks for newspapers.

horn is a lapsed district and joined merely to give the other schools the advantage of the money it will receive this year. Lake, South Fork, Coast Range and Dibble Creek districts have been suspended and are not receiving service. There are but four districts in the county which do not belong to the county library. Two of these are new districts which have sent word of their intention to join and so have received a few books. Fifty-eight elementary schools in all are being served.

The three high schools contracted for service again this year.

Miss Cleona Eslinger, who has been assistant in the county library for the past two years, attended the summer course in library methods given by the University of California this summer.

Miss Margaret Livingston who has been first assistant during the past year left October 8 to take up her new work as County Librarian of the Colusa County Free Library. Owing to lack of funds the Tehama County Free Library will attempt to get along for at least part of the time without a first assistant.

The county library tax was left the same as the year before at 2 cents on the hundred dollars. Owing to the increased valuation this will bring in about what 3 cents did two years ago.

QUARTERLY NEWS ITEMS.

The assessed valuation of Santa Paula for the year beginning July 1, 1918, is $1,598,286, and the library is to receive as its appropriation 2.6 mills on the dollar, being $4,155.54 for the coming year, an increase of .5 mill over last year.

During the summer this library has been selling Thrift and W. S. Stamps for the schools. $1226.52 worth of stamps were sold for both the grammar school and the high school. This work served two purposes: we were helping the government, and we brought many people into our library that might not otherwise have come to us. We lost no opportunity to increase our patronage.

A campaign for books for the soldiers overseas has just been undertaken by the high school under the direction of the library, and they have collected for us 700 more books for the soldiers. These will be prepared a little later and sent off where they are most needed.

At present the grammar and high school pupils are making scrapbooks and filling story-holders for the sick soldiers in the hospitals both at home and abroad. This work was begun by the librarian a month ago, and quite a number of the patrons of the library have taken a keen interest in them, also. We will soon have 500 scrapbooks, containing 8 pages, and 400 story-holders filled and ready to send to "our boys" who need them so much. The response has been wonderful, parties to make scrapbooks being held all over town.

As to special work in the library, the chief work, besides the constant reorganization of the catalog, has been the complete rearrangement of the pamphlet file, together with an index to the same, thus making the material up-to-date and very accessible.

DIRECTORY FOR LIBRARY SUPPLIES AND OTHER ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Many public libraries waste a great deal of time and money before they find good places to get supplies. The plan is to give all libraries the benefit of the experience of the older libraries of the State by listing under different heads the houses that have been found to give satisfaction, the names and addresses being furnished by the older and larger libraries of California. In this way suggestions will be given as to where different sorts of books may be bought, where books may be rebound or periodicals bound, where library furniture may be bought, etc., both in California and in the East.

If any information is needed about the firms listed below which can not be obtained from the firms themselves, the names of the libraries recommending the different ones will be sent to any library upon application to the State Library.

REFERENCE DEPARTMENT.

SUSAN T. SMITH, in charge.

The Reference Department furnishes information to any inquirer. It furnishes books to public libraries on request of the librarian, and to any other educational institution on request of its official head or its librarian; to individuals through the signature of a state officer, of the Librarian of the local library or of the official head of any other educational institution or on receipt of a $5.00 deposit; to a club or grange on request of its president, secretary or librarian. In counties having county free libraries, all requests must be made through the county free library.

The State Library pays the cost of transportation as follows: to any general branch of the county free library that requests books for general library service and is located in a part of the county supporting the county free library; to any (elementary or high) school district branch of the county free library that has joined the county free library and is wholly in a part of the county supporting the county free library; and for school service only to any (elementary or high) school district branch of the county free library that has joined the county free library and is wholly or partly in a part of the county not supporting the county free library. In every other instance the charges both ways are paid by the borrower. All express companies grant a half-merchandise rate to the borrower on return shipments, and a half-merchandise rate both ways on shipments sent to libraries.

From July 1, 1917, to June 30, 1918, 14,114 author requests have been looked up, 4245 subject requests filled and 6926 shipments made. 43,236 books and 1572 pictures have been loaned.

CATALOG DEPARTMENT.

The work of recataloging the older material in the library, a large portion of which has been reclassified and treated much more fully than had hitherto been done, is practically completed. The staff of catalogers is at present engaged in cataloging the collection of laws in the Law Department, in addition to the regular work of cataloging the new material which is constantly being added to the general library.

During July, August and September, 2244 volumes were cataloged, and 12,307 cards were added to the catalog.

CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT.

EUDORA GAROUTTE, in charge.

The California Department aims to have a thoroughly good collection of books on the history and description, resources and industries of the State, as well as the works of California authors in all departments of literature. These are made accessible by means of a card catalog. Full names and biographical sketches of California authors, artists, musicians, pioneers and early settlers are being secured, together with their photographs. The collection of bound periodicals is quite large. The Department also contains about 6000 bound volumes of newspapers, a file of which is being indexed with reference to the history of the State. Students will be assisted in their work.

Pioneers and Early Settlers.

Cards of three pioneers who arrived in 1848 have been received. William Henry Tillinghast was one of these. He was Treasurer of San Francisco in the early days, a member of the Vigilance Committee, First California Guards and Volunteer Fire company.

After an active life as banker and merchant he died in Sausalito, August 20, 1880.

Others who arrived the same year are Henry Willard Bigler and Willard Whipple. Of those who came in '49 we note the following: Gilbert Douglass, James McClatchy, Thomas Elwood Stanton and James William Woodman. Those arriving in the fifties are Charles Elmer Bunnell, Tobias Grider and Thomas Mooney.

Catalog.

One hundred and ninety-four cards have been added to the California catalog during the last quarter.

Donations.

Nothing of unusual importance has been received. One manuscript might be mentioned as being unique and of interest to our musicians. It is the articles of agreement between Frederick Kraus and the officers of the 6th Infantry regarding a regimental band. The terms of the agreement are quite unusual.

During the fiscal year 1402 research subjects were looked up. 1454 patrons were served and 174 biographical cards, 504 books and pamphlets, 436 pictures, 555 programs, 147 manuscripts, and 237 miscellaneous gifts were received by the California Department.

Home Teaching.

Miss Foley, home teacher of the blind, is at the Suto Branch of the State Library, Sacramento and Webster streets, San Francisco, every Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. She gives lessons regularly in Alameda, Berkeley, Decoto and Oakland. Miss Morrison, home teacher of the blind, is at the Los Angeles County Free Library, tenth floor, Hall of Records, on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons from 1.30 until 5.30 o'clock and at the Long Beach Public Library the second Thursday afternoon in each month. She gives lessons regularly in other nearby places.

From July 1 to September 30 they gave 258 lessons in the homes of the blind and 146 lessons at the libraries and institutions on the 58 afternoons they spent in them. Miss Foley and Miss Morrison have made 114 visits and calls in connection with the work for purposes other than giving lessons, and received 36 visits in connection with the work.

During the quarter Miss Foley and Miss Morrison spent 121 hours on correspondence and preparing lessons. They wrote 223 letters and 101 postals and received 143 letters and 17 postals. They also answered and made 408 telephone calls. Their various other activities in connection with their work can not be easily tabulated.

Persons who know of possible pupils anywhere in Orange or Los Angeles counties are urged to communicate with Miss Catharine J. Morrison, 306A S. Bonnie Brae, Los Angeles, and anywhere around the bay with Miss Kate M. Foley, Suto Branch, State Library, Sacramento and Webster sts., San Francisco (telephone West 3046).

Report of Kate M. Foley, Home Teacher of the Blind, Nov. 1, 1917, to June 30, 1918.

I have the honor to present the report of my work as Home Teacher of the Blind of San Francisco and the bay region, covering a period of eight months, beginning Nov. 1, 1917, and ending June 30, 1918.

On Nov. 1, 1917, I entered upon my duties as Home Teacher of the Blind for San Francisco and the bay region, leaving Miss Catharine Morrison in charge of the work in Los Angeles. I had been in correspondence with her for some time prior to her appointment as home teacher, and I spent the month of October going about with her, explaining our methods, and introducing her to the pupils. I am in constant communication with Miss Morrison, and in close touch with the work in Los Angeles and vicinity.

I spent the month of November locating the borrowers whose names were on our lists, and I found a number had died, some had moved away, and several had stopped reading, and could not be induced to resume study. I found ten or twelve who were in need of help and encouragement, and to them I gave regular lessons. These were located in San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, and Alameda, and so it was necessary for me to study the maps and car systems of the four cities, in order to save time and energy. In order to make our work known to the public, the State Library issued an announcement, which was sent to the various clubs and organizations in San Francisco and vicinity. By way of further publicity, an article was printed in the Bulletin of Jan. 5, giving our work in detail. This article brought thirty-five pupils during the month of January, and is still bearing fruit. The article was so well written, and the work of home teaching so fully described, that the Tennessee Commission for the Blind asked permission to reprint it for use in a publicity campaign for home teaching in that state. This article proves that a proper presentation of the work is absolutely essential to attract the attention of the public and secure its co-operation. With this end in view, I have availed myself of every opportunity to speak before civic and social organizations. Since January, I have made twenty-two public addresses, including a District Federation of Women's Clubs, a Convention of the Parent-Teachers Association of the bay counties, the State Conference of Social Agencies at Santa Barbara, and the meeting of the California Library Association at Del Monte. These addresses have attracted widespread attention to our work, and home teaching of the blind is classed among the highest forms of social service. We extended our service to San Francisco at a very opportune time, as the thousands of war-blinded soldiers in England and France have aroused the public to the necessity of studying the blind and their problems. The fact that the State Library has been engaged in the re-education of the blind adult for the past thirteen years has not been generally known, but now that it is understood, the Red Cross, and the various organizations interested in rehabilitation, are glad to avail themselves of our services, and to know that we are so well equipped for the work. We are arousing the public from its lethargic attitude toward the blind, and proving that this class of people has been greatly neglected and misunderstood. Our idea that, in order to be able to care for and employ the blinded soldier, we must first understand the needs and capabilities of the blind civilian, is meeting with a ready response from those interested in re-education, and, in this connection alone, our service to the blind of the State is unique and far-reaching.

In November, 1917, I visited the San Francisco Relief Home, and found twenty-three blind men there. I formed a class at once, and since that time I have gone there once each week, giving lessons to those who cared to learn, and reading a story to all the men in the ward. Three of the men have learned to knit, and one does unusually fine whittling. The management is very much pleased with the improved condition of the blind inmates, and every courtesy and assistance is given to us there.

Early in January, I established headquarters at the Suro Branch of the State Library, and selected Thursday of each week as the day to spend there, to give lessons, and to answer questions, and to make appointments with those wishing to consult me upon matters connected with the work. The location is convenient, and every kindness is shown to the pupils by the Branch Librarian and the staff.

On Jan. 15, I started a class at the Industrial Home for Adult Blind in Oakland, and I devote Tuesday afternoon of each week to that institution. I found that a great many of the inmates had not learned to read, and that others had stopped borrowing books. The weekly lessons stimulate the interest of the pupils and almost every week a new one is added to the list. Every encouragement and facility is afforded by the Superintendent, Mr Douglas Keith, who is heartily in sympathy with our work, and realizes its uplifting influence upon the inmates. I organized ten of the women of the Home into an auxiliary of the Navy League of San Francisco, and Mrs Keith consented to act as teacher. The work of this blind auxiliary is finer than any sent in by any of the auxiliaries of the Navy League of this region. Encouraged by the success of the first ten, other women are learning to knit, and soon we hope to have twenty knitting regularly. A unique and interesting feature of the work of the blind auxiliary is that one of its members rips up garments poorly knit by seeing people, and the other members make perfect garments of the used wool. Thus far, fifty pairs of socks, twelve helmets, four sweaters and four mufflers have been ripped, and perfect garments returned to the Navy League. The wonderful work done by this auxiliary has attracted the attention of the public, and is a potent factor in the campaign of enlightenment we are conducting here.

In addition to my regular work of teaching, I have twenty-six correspondence pupils, from Humboldt to San Diego County in this State, and in Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico. Many of the Los Angeles pupils correspond with me, and so I am kept in close touch with the blind in this and neighboring States. I am also teaching four children by correspondence. They cannot attend the special class in Los Angeles, and there is no room for them in the State School at Berkeley. Two of the children are attending country schools, the teachers helping them with lessons previously prepared by me. The correspondence takes a great deal of time, but is an important part of the work, as it reaches those to whom it is not possible to give oral instruction. The county librarians send the names of the blind in their counties, and their interest and co-operation is responsible for a very considerable increase in the number of borrowers and correspondence pupils.

Through the kindness of Miss Mary Barmby, Librarian of Alameda County, I am able to teach in Hayward, San Lorenzo, and at the Masonic Home at Decoto. Miss Barmby takes me with her when she visits these places in her automobile.

It has taken some months to organize the work here, and to become accustomed to the new surroundings, but I feel that I am gaining ground, and I hope for better results during the coming year. Our efforts in behalf of the blind are receiving increased recognition, and the fact that the University of California has asked us to give a course of lectures on the blind and their needs, at its summer sessions both in Berkeley and Los Angeles, establishes us as an authority on matters pertaining to the blind.

My grateful acknowledgments are due to Mrs George A. Clough, of San Francisco, for introducing me to representative people in the city and vicinity, and for a reception given to enable me to explain the nature of our work.

I am deeply indebted to Dr and Mrs Allen H. Suggett for their unflinching kindness and constant encouragement, and for the use of their automobile, in locating pupils living at a distance or in inaccessible places.

In conclusion, I wish to express my gratitude to Mr Milton J. Ferguson and Miss Mabel R. Gillis for their confidence in me, and for their generous appreciation of all my efforts. The work of this department has grown appreciably during the past year, and it is my earnest hope that, during the coming year, we may enlarge our field of usefulness, and succeed in bringing about a closer relationship between the public and the blind of our State.

Report of Catharine J. Morrison, Home
Teacher of the Blind for October
1, 1917, to June 30, 1918.

During the nine months from October 1, 1917, to June 30, 1918, the work of Home Teaching for the Blind in and about Los Angeles has gone on with some gratifying results. When Miss Foley left the first of November the work was so well organized that at first it was simply a matter of carrying pupils already well started and of becoming acquainted with the borrowers and those connected with the work. For this reason I was able during the months of November and December to make a good many calls as well as to give the regular lessons. From that time on, however, the finding and starting of new pupils has taken precedence over everything else. Miss Foley left the field with fifty regular pupils in Moon and Braille to which thirty have been added since that time, and three old pupils resumed work for a time by taking up new systems. Only three have been graduated as the majority of the pupils still continue to be elderly people who need the personal lesson and visit and find it hard to read and select books without help. The most of the new pupils have come to me through those who have already learned and wish to pass its benefits on to others. In four cases the new pupils are in a measure learning English as well as the touch system so that their lessons have been more frequent.

One of the most satisfactory out-of-town classes is that at the Soldiers' Home, organized in May, where seven Civil War veterans are learning to read and as one of them expressed it, "Doing the right thing by you." Weekly trips have been made there since the middle of May with very gratifying results. I have also made regular trips to Pasadena, Long Beach, Covina, Orange, Ramona Acres, Redondo and Sawtelle and special trips have been made to Lankershim, Whittier, Inglewood and Baldwin Avenue.

I have helped only two children during the year since the Special Class for blind children in Los Angeles, which now has an enrollment of seventeen pupils, does that work. One boy from the Garvanza schools has come to me regularly for reading and writing, and I am preparing a girl from the Pasadena schools for entrance to the California School for the Blind in the fall. One visit has been paid to the Special Class.

The County Charities have continued their friendly interest and co-operation by giving me the names of a few of my new pupils. Through their department of Industrial Extension work for the handicapped, a few of my pupils have been able to do a little work in chaircaning and basketry at the rooms of the Charities.

Miss Buck, who has charge of this department, gives them instruction and has so far been able to secure a few orders. I have been allowed to give a few lessons at the Charities. I have also been able to secure a little wool for Red Cross knitting for one of the pupils and to sell some holders knit by her. We hope in the coming year to especially extend this department or work.

Acknowledgments are again due the Broadway Department Store, Bullock's and The Fifth Street Store for donations for the Christmas shopping, and to Mr J. A. Aldritt, whose loss by death is keenly felt by all those connected with this work, for assisting with the shopping for both the adult blind and the children of the Special Class. The help and encouragement which Mr Aldritt has always given us cannot well be estimated. Thanks are also due to Mrs Roalfe for remembering the children of the Special Class at Christmas time with gifts.

We are also still indebted to the Ebell Club of Los Angeles for their continued kindness in defraying the expenses of the pupils of the Special Class to and from school.

We are especially grateful to the Girls' Collegiate School for the automobile drives and the hours of reading given to some of our most shut in pupils by a Club formed by some of their pupils and teachers. They have not only continued this during the year but expect to keep it up during the vacation months.

We still feel our great indebtedness to Miss Celia Gleason, Los Angeles County Librarian, for the use of her private office twice a week for classes, and to her and her staff for their continued courtesy and help.

LIBRARY SCHOOL.

BEULAH MUMM, in charge.

The Library School was established in 1913 for the purpose of helping to supply the demand for trained librarians in California. The year's course begins in September and ends in June. It aims to cover the various branches of library science needed in all libraries, and at the same time places particular emphasis on the needs and conditions of California libraries.

College or university graduation is required for admission. Applicants must be at least twenty years of age, and under thirty on the day of the beginning of school. There is no tuition charge, and all necessary supplies and textbooks are furnished by the Library.

A copy of the Circular of Information may be obtained, upon request, from the State Librarian, Sacramento, California.

The sixth class of the Library School began work on Wednesday, the 18th of September, with twelve students. As Mr Ferguson was away on the United War Work Fund Campaign trip, welcome was extended to the class by Miss Gillis.

Work has been started along the usual lines with lectures in cataloging, classification, business methods, California reference, bookbuying and other topics. In connection with cataloging, a course of ten lectures in subject heading work has been introduced, while the work in book selection and school library service has been considerably enlarged.

A new course of lectures has been introduced on library war service. The course will deal with the campaigns for funds, camp libraries, base hospital libraries and the collection and preparation of books for these libraries. The lectures will be given by Mr Ferguson, Director American Library Association, Western Military Division, by Mr Quire who has returned to the State Library after serving for a year as librarian of the Camp Kearny Library, and by Miss Gregory, who has charge of the camp library work at the State Library.

In the practice work schedule a new plan has been adopted, according to which each student will have work in the different departments for three half days a week instead of five. This will allow more time for the preparation of assignments and will mean that the work in each department will be more concentrated.

SUTRO BRANCH.

MRS LAURA STEFFENS SUGGETT, in charge.

The Sutro Branch occupies the top floor of the Lane Medical Library Building, Sacramento and Webster streets, San Francisco, and is open every day except Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

LIBRARY WAR SERVICE.

The State Library has been acting as headquarters for American Library Association, Library War Service, for the State. Applications for service are made here, shipments are directed from here or made from here from gift books sent in by nearby libraries and from purchased books sent here by the A. L. A. Practically all of the purchased books and many of the gift books have been processed at the State Library.

BAMFORD, MARY ELLEN. Ti. 1899.

Ti, a boy of San Francisco's Chinatown, furnishes the title for this book which presents an interesting picture of this "bit of old China." The missionary work among the Chinese of this quarter is featured.

BANCROFT, GRIFFING. The Inter-

The desolation that came to Eden Valley, Southern California, through the establishment of a Japanese colony within its peaceful borders is graphically pictured.

"The plot is merely a thread on which the author has hung together a rather interesting essay on the Japanese in California."—New York Times.

BONNER, GERALDINE. Rich men's children. 1906.

The unnatural and artificial lives led by the children of some of the bonanza kings of the seventies are here depicted. The mother lode country and San Francisco furnish the local coloring.

The story opens with an old fashioned stage robbery in the Sierras. The treasure secured plays an important part in the subsequent narrative. Sacramento and San Francisco are the cities in which most of the action takes place. As in a number of recent books, the earthquake and fire gives the author an opportunity to clear up the situations and make a desirable ending.

BURCHELL, SIDNEY HERBERT.
Jacob Peek. 1915.

A romance of Southern California orange groves. The book also contains entertaining descriptions of outlying points of interest and of desert charms.

CANFIELD, CHAUNCEY LEON. The diary of a forty-niner. 1906.

COOLIDGE, HERBERT. Pancho Mc-
Clish. 1912.

Pancho McClish and his father are itinerant horse dealers. The story is told by a walf who accompanies them in their wanderings through Arizona, Texas and California. They traverse the latter state from San Diego to the lava beds of the north.

COONEY, PERCIVAL JOHN. The Dons of the old pueblo. 1914.

A most exciting account of the occupation of Los Angeles by the American forces at the time of the conquest of California. The Dons are the old Californians who resented the treatment accorded them by the Americans. The author says: "That we failed to understand them, and they us, was neither their fault nor ours, but due to differences deep down in the natures of both races."

CRESPIGNY, CAPTAIN CHARLES de. Where the path breaks. 1916.

Barbara Ray, a California girl, marries an English officer. He is erroneously reported killed in action. They are reunited later. Santa Barbara supplies the California coloring.

DE RYEE, WILLIAM. Truth unadorned. 1916.

San Francisco furnishes the atmosphere for this story of realism, in which a young sculptor and his model defy the conventions.

DRYDEN, HENRY FRANCIS. Jimmy's gentility. 1915.

ELLERBE, ROSE LUCILE. Tales of California yesterdays. 1916.

The loves, superstitions and simple customs of the Spanish-Californians are charmingly pictured in these tales of California yesterdays. San Gabriel, San Pedro and other Southern California places are used as local settings. There is one San Francisco story.

EMERSON, WILLIS GEORGE. Vendetta of the hills. 1917.

The site of old Fort Tejon and the surrounding country, including Bakersfield, is graphically pictured. The title explains the action of the story.

FISHER, FREDERICK VINING. The transformation of Job. 1900.

Community life in the high Sierras in the early days, together with excursions to the big trees and Yosemite, furnish the inspiring atmosphere in which an orphan boy works out his own salvation.

FISHER, MARY. The Treloars. 1917.

A family living in the hills near Berkeley. "The chief value of the book is its concise comments on social and ethical problems of today."—Overland, July, 1917.

FOOTE, MRS MARY (HALLOCK). A picked company. 1912.

The sordid side of life in the golden days of '49 and the early fifties is shown in all its repulsiveness. The greater part of the book is a picture of early days in Oregon.

— The valley road. 1915.

How a mining engineer undertakes to develop a project involving great difficulties is the theme. The events cover many years. Marysville, Colfax and the adjacent country is the locality where this project is exploited. The San Francisco disaster is also featured.

Seven short stories of the old California mission days.

GOODRICH, SAMUEL GRISWOLD. The adventures of Billy Bump. n.d.

A book for children, written in the stilted style of its day. Recounts the adventures of a boy who came to California in 1849, made a fortune in the mines and then lost it at the gaming table in San Francisco. His reformation follows.

GUEZENEC, ALFRED. L'amour au nouveau monde. In French. n.d.

A romance of the Santa Cruz mission in the days of the Padres.

— Bras d'acier. 1891.

The adventurous days of the gold rush furnish opportunities for a French hero to perform most remarkable feats of prowess. Indians, gamblers and adventurers add interest to the exciting events here pictured. The action takes place in San Francisco and the placer mines.

GUNNISON, CHARLES ANDREW. The beautiful eyes of Ysidria. 1894.

— A Napa Christchild. 1896.

Two old-fashioned Christmas tales. The first gives vivid glimpses of the Napa valley as seen from the surrounding hills. "Benicia's letters." These letters are written by a Californian who is far from home. In them he expresses his love for his friends in far away Santa Clara valley.

HEATH, SARAH RITCHIE. The Padre's little caretaker. 1913.

A romance of Carmel mission. How the little caretaker, through her great love for and devotion to Father Serra and the mission, made the restoration of Carmel possible, is the theme.

HUDSON, LILLIAN. Governor Thurmond's birdhouse. 1915.

An up-to-date story for children. The author says: "Our town sits proudly on the uplands of the peninsula that extends like a sheltering arm around the western rim of the most beautiful bay in the world and which terminates in San Francisco."

JESSOP, GEORGE H. Judge Lynch. 1889.

JOHNSON, ELIZABETH WINTHROP. One chance in a hundred. 1911.

This story has Idah Meacham Strowbridge's "Greater love hath no man" as a base, but gives the hero a fate less bitter. It describes vividly the country around Los Angeles. Monterey and San Francisco are described less fully.

Orchard folk. 1898.

Two California stories. "The Deliclans." The life of the Spanish-California families living in Santa Barbara during the fifties and later is portrayed.

"Silvela of Dulzura," the second story, is in a measure both a sequel and a contrast to the former story. Los Angeles county furnishes the setting. The easy going, pleasure loving ways of Benito Silvela are typical of the early Californians.

KNIBBS, HENRY HERBERT. Overland Red: a romance of the Moonstone Canyon trail. 1914.

KNOX, JESSIE JULIET. In the house of the Tiger. 1911.

A study of the traffic in Chinese girl slaves, describing fully many Chinese customs, and tracing the traffic from its base in China to San Francisco Chinatown. Much local color is introduced in regard to the Rescue Mission in San Francisco.

KYNE, PETER BERNARD. Cappy Ricks. 1915.

San Francisco as headquarters for the wholesale lumber and shipping trade of the Pacific coast is featured. Cappy Ricks, proclaimed by his associates "a character," is described as being "master of many ships but skipper of none."

— The long chance. 1914.

A tale of the early days in California when corrupt men in the State Land Offices maneuvered to get the best land and water rights for themselves. It gives a good description of California desert lands.

— The three godfathers.. 1913.

LONDON, JACK. The abysmal brute. 1913.

San Francisco—its prize ring and sporting life exposed—the theme. The redwoods and mountains of Mendocino are also described.

— The little lady of the big house. 1916.

A large ranch in the California foothills, with its various activities, furnishes an opportunity for exhaustive discussions on agriculture and stock raising; also charming descriptions of surrounding scenery are given. The plot is not of vital interest.

— Michael—brother of Jerry. 1917.

— The scarlet plague. 1915.

On the shores of the Pacific, near the site of the Cliff House, Professor James Howard Smith, in the year 2073, tells his great-grandchildren of the scarlet plague that wiped out the peoples of the earth in the early part of the twenty-first century. Surrounded by a world reverted to barbarism, he tells of the former glories of San Francisco, with its 4,000,000 population, and of the devastating plague that passed over it, leaving it desolate.

— Star rover. 1915.

— Turtles of Tasman. 1916.

Eight short stories. The California coloring is slight.

"In the drooling ward" a glimpse of life in the Glen Ellen Home is given.

MCNEIL, EVERETT. Fighting with Fremont. 1910.

Historic events such as the Bear Flag revolution, the killing of Cowie and Fowler and the final conquest of California are told in story form for boys. Kit Carson plays a prominent part in this tale of adventure.

MASON, MRS GRACE (SARTWELL).The golden hope. 1916.

A tale of the "land of little rain"—the eastern border of California. A struggle to reclaim the desert and its outcome.

MEYER, GEORGE HOMER. Almirante. 1890.

A romance of the old-time California before the conquest. The coast country furnishes the atmosphere.

MICHAELS, JANIE CHASE. Polly of the Midway-Sunset. 1917.

The oilfields of the San Joaquin Valley furnish the local setting.

MITCHELL, EDMUND. The call of the bells. 1916.

How the bells of the Mission Inn, Riverside, as played by a young girl, brought back to manhood and usefulness two men.

The main theme of the story centers around the labor troubles that develop in a large iron works in San Francisco. Local atmosphere is plentiful.

NORRIS, FRANK, Vandover the brute. 1914.

This story was written by Mr Norris in 1894 and '95, but was not published until a number of years after his death. San Francisco is the place chosen as a setting for this strong but repulsive novel.

NORRIS, MRS KATHLEEN (THOMPSON). Martie the unconquered. 1917.

A California town in the bay region. San Francisco and New York are the localities in which a California girl lived, loved and finally achieved success as a writer.

— Saturday's child. 1914.

Susan Brown, a San Francisco girl, is the personality around which is woven a story of a life of poverty, then wealth and finally service. San Francisco, in the days when Zinkands, the Tivoli and the Chutes flourished, furnishes the local coloring; which trips to Sausalito, San Rafael and Oakland lend variety.

— The story of Julia Page. 1915.

A young girl rises from a home life where standards are low to an accepted place in the best social circles in San Francisco. The characters and setting are quite typically Californian.

PHILIP THAXTER. 1861.

The adventures of a New England boy who came to California during the flush times of the gold rush. His trip by sea, his experiences as a gambler and his pursuit of wealth in the mining regions are set forth. The book contains much local color, such as the hanging of the Mexican woman at Downville, a historic event that caused great excitement in the state at the time it occurred.

REED, CONSTANT. John Halsey. 1884.

ROYCE, JOSIAH. The feud of Oakfield Creek. 1887.

This is a novel of California life in the last quarter of the nineteenth century. It pictures home life in San Francisco and the bay regions at a time when the struggles of the pioneers had become a shadowy past, and the great fortunes of California were being firmly established.

SABIN, EDWIN LEGRAND. Gold seekers of '49. 1915.

A juvenile. The adventures of Charley Adams and his father, who travel to California via the Isthmus of Panama; one-half of the book is devoted to the voyage. Conditions in San Francisco, Sacramento, etc., during the gold rush are well described. The book contains several charts and maps, as well as a chronological outline of the history of California.

SATTERLEE, ANNA E. The wonder girl; a tourist tale of California. 1915.

SIEGHOLD, MRS KATE (PRICE). Old mission tales. 1915.

Mission days in Monterey are pictured with much charm.

STEELE, MRS ROWENA (GRANICE). Dell Dart; or Within the meshes. 1874.

Founded on facts, this story deals with the life of a beautiful but unfortunate girl whose complete life story is not disclosed until the end of the book. The opening scenes are in Sacramento, later the action changes to the mountains in Sierra County.

"The man known to the reader as Cheeney Dart was a member of the California Legislature somewhere between the years of '54 and '64"—so we are told in the preface.

THE STRAIGHT ROAD. 1917.

The strike in the hopfields at Wheatland is cleverly worked into the story and gives it an historical atmosphere. The struggles of a woman to earn a living and keep straight both before and after becoming a hop picker give the impression of being real experiences.

THOMES, WILLIAM HENRY. On land and sea; or California in the years 1843-44-45. 1892.

Deals with historic events and prominent Californians of the above period. Life at Monterey, San Francisco, Santa Barbara and other coast towns, is faithfully described.

— The whaleman's adventures. 1872.

Charles Allspice's adventures aboard a whaler and in the Sandwich Islands fill the first half of the book. The remainder recounts his adventures during three visits to California; on the last of these he visits the interior and the gold country. The most conspicuous aspects of the gold rush are described, though the whaleman's individual experiences are usually in the foreground.

UPTON, CHARLES ELMER. Down Wild Goose Canyon. 1910.

Simple short stories suitable for children. "Down Wild Goose Canyon," "In darkness," and "A girl of the Sierras" are incidents with a slight California coloring.

VACHELL, HORACE ANNESLEY. Spragge's Canyon. 1915.

A character study of a San Francisco society girl, a country girl and a California mountaineer, and what happened when they were thrown together in the high Sierras. Many California towns are mentioned, and ranch life as it existed in California at that time is vividly portrayed.

— The triumph of Tim. 1916.

An English lad leaves his village home and comes to San Francisco where he spends ten years making and losing a fortune. Local coloring is of slight importance.

VAN LOBEN SELS, MRS HELEN (ELLSWORTH). The blue jays in the Sierras. 1918.

Adventures of four happy children, who live on a ranch near the Sacramento River, during a camping trip to the high Sierras, are entertainingly told.

VERNE, JULIO. Escuela de los Robinsones. 1898. Spanish.

San Francisco, which is featured as the capital of California, furnishes the background for the first part of the story. The scene then shifts to an island in the Pacific.

WALCOTT, EARLE ASHLEY. The apple of discord. 1907.

Labor troubles and anti-Chinese riots. The days of Denis Kearney and the sand lot meetings combine to give a strong local coloring to this historic tale of San Francisco in the late seventies. The activities of the Committee of Safety are also faithfully portrayed.

— Blindfolded. 1906.

A mystery story, radiating the atmosphere of San Francisco's Chinatown, waterfront, stock exchange and other centers where the adventurous life of the city finds expression.

— The open door; a romance of mystery. Time 1905. 1910.

With its setting in San Francisco the plot of the novel hinges on the attempt to discover the true murderer of Arthur Griscom, a wealthy young man and member of the social set in that city.

WHALEY, MRS MARIA LOUISE (THEISS). By earthquake and fire; or, The checkered romance of two generations. 1914.

The San Francisco disaster is the historical event that furnishes the author with an opportunity to untangle the threads of the story and bring about a most happy ending. Colorado figures in the opening chapters.

WHITAKER, HERMAN, ed. West winds. 1914.

Short stories by California authors, illustrated by California artists. "Bufoe the mascot," "Pals," "The corner table," and "The temptation of Ann O'Brien" have an incidental California setting; the last two have San Francisco as a background.

WHITE, STEWART EDWARD. The gray dawn. 1915.

This is the second story of Stewart Edward White's California trilogy. It pictures the gray days of San Francisco's history during the period 1852-1856 when its citizens determined through their well organized Vigilance Committees to win back the city to a state of law and order. The volunteer fire companies are also given prominence.

WOLF, EMMA. Fulfillment: a California novel. 1916.

A novel dealing with the married life of two modern San Franciscans—he a wealthy oil man, she a member of the intellectual set of the Bay City. The sub-title, a California novel, is rather misleading, inasmuch as the book throws very little light on California conditions.

WORTHINGTON, ELIZABETH STRONG. Twenty-eight seconds and after. 1906.

A tale of the San Francisco disaster. The experiences of a single family serve as a background for pictures of this time gathered from contemporary accounts. The first chapter gives some detail of the old Latin Quarter.

WRIGHT, HAROLD BELL. The eyes of the world. 1914.

A protest against the conventional ways of the world. The action is staged in Southern California.
